FIVE SENATORS GET CAMPAIGN FUNDS INQUIRY

Quiz Into Sums Expended by Senate Aspirants Widely Acclaimed.

JOHNSON APPOINTED CHAIRMAN OF GROUP

Choice of Investigators Limited to Those Not Up for Reelection.

MRS. M'CORMICK IS SEEN FIRST SUBJECT

Wheeler, in Radio Address, Cites Financial Tactics of Mark Hanna.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The 1930 model of the Senate campaign expenditures investigating committee was created yesterday amid such acclaim by the contesting candidates as to make one feel silly for ever thinking that anything might be found to be wrong.

Senator Hiram Johnson was named chairman, the other members being Senators Patterson, of Missouri; Goldsborough, of Maryland; Pittman, of Nevada, and Wagner, of New York.

The Senate earlier had adopted without record vote the resolution Senator Norris, of Nebraska, for the investigation, but an amendment by Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, considerably restricted the list of senators from which Vice President Curtis had to select. Insisting that it might be unfair for any senator to serve if there was a contest in his State, Mr. Wash had the personnel of the committee restricted to those senators who not only are not up for reelection themselves, but in whose States there is no contest. This reduced the number of States from which senators might be drawn to sixteen and the number of senators to 28.

Davis Highly Pleased.

Otherwise the investigation may be as broad as it is long. It has full authority to investigate almost anything pertaining to the campaigns, and $100,000 with which to do it.

Senator Grundy, of Pennsylvania, already had welcomed an inquiry in his State; in fact, insisted that one be made; and that it pay particular attention to Wallace W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Secretary of Labor Davis' embrace of the inquiry was no less restrained.

"Thank God that so far as Pennsylvania is concerned money will not be able to buy the senatorship of that great State," he exclaimed.

"The Senate will be commended by all right-thinking people for having authorized this investigation," Mr. Davis said. * * * "More than affecting the primaries and elections immediately concerned, a great and permanent service will be done the country, as the youth of America will be able to understand that money can not buy public office and that public office still is a public trust."

Will Turn to Illinois.

From Mr. Davis' and Mr. Grundy's statements it becomes clear that everybody has had Pennsylvania all wrong.

Pennsylvania is to be a focal point of interest, though, as a similar Senate committee got a scalp there in 1926.

It would seem that the committee's first work, however, will be in Illinois inasmuch as the primary is over out there. There have been published reports of heavy expenditures on the part of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick in that primary and similar reports have reached senators. Mrs. McCormick has been quoted, however, as saying that her affairs were in order for a scrutiny. Her father was quite an apostle of huge campaign funds.

Senator Norris has tried to emphasize that his resolution is not aimed at any one, that he wants an investigation in his own State where he is up for reelection.

Address by Wheeler.

Senator Wheeler, of Montana, speaking over the National Radio Forum last night from Station WMAL charged that it was Mrs. McCormick's father, Mark Hanna, who introduced the extensive use of money in political campaigns.

"In 1896," he said, "one of the most successful national politicians this country has ever produced, Mark Hanna, whose daughter, Ruth Hanna McCormick, just received the Republican nomination for senator in the State of Illinois, managed McKinley's campaign. He systematized and developed a practice which was rooted deep in the soil of American politics, namely, the practice of assessing corporations and business men who might be benefited or injured by legislative action.

"The campaign fund of 1896 was unprecedented in its size and in the

TRADE BOARD MAKES PEACE WITH CROSBY

Organization Pledges Help to New Commissioner in Annual Meeting.

DIRECTORS ARE ELECTED

Featured by a declaration of peace between the Washington Board of Trade and the new commissioner of the District, Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, and a speech by Dr. William Allen Wilbur, provost of George Washington University, in which he said that suffrage in the National Capital would be a great handicap to education, the Board of Trade held its annual election meeting last night at the Willard Hotel.

Coming as an aftermath to a strenuous battle in which the Washington Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations participated, a formal pledge of cooperation to Gen. Crosby and Dr. Luther Reichelderfer was expressed by E. J. Murphy, president of the organization, and also through enthusiastic applause of the board members.

Both Gen. Crosby and Dr. Reichelderfer were present at the meeting. They were presented to the Board of Trade members by E. C. Brandenburg, past president of the organization, and responded to the ovation with remarks in which any direct reference to their new duties was carefully avoided.

Thus was ended the fight of the largest trade organization in the city to prevent the nomination of Gen. Crosby on the grounds that he is still an Army officer, though retired.

Dr. Wilbur, speaking in the absence of Dr. Cloyd Heck arvin, presiMdent of George Washington University, evoked applause with a stand that was in opposition to a pet ambition of the Board of Trade—suffrage for the citizens of Washington. Dr. Wilbur declared that the reason the National Capital is a good place for universities is because the people don't vote. Politics, the provost pointed out, would probably destroy the harmony and quiet atmosphere that is imperative to education.

"Party alignments and the resulting atmosphere would be a great nui-

LAGUARDIA DEMANDS STEEL MERGER QUIZ

DELAY ON PROJECT SEEN

(Associated Press.)

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, said yesterday that information being received by him indicated more strongly than ever that the proposed merger of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation with the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. was in violation of the antitrust laws.

The New Yorker recently charged in the House that the proposed merger would violate the Sherman antitrust law. He introduced a resolution demanding that Attorney General Mitchell investigate the proposed consolidation. "Evidence being placed in my possession," Mr. LaGuardia said, "warrants court action."

He declared he had been informed that large blocks of stock have been purchased by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and that some stock had been purchased with cashier's checks. Asserting that some Youngstown stock had been bought at from 24 to 34 points above the market price, the New Yorker said it was "conclusive proof that it was being purchased for merger purposes only and not for speculation."

He said he understood a large block of stock sold by Lucian Kennedy had been paid for by a cashier's check on the Union Trust Co. of Pittsburgh and added that the fact that it was paid for in that manner aroused suspicion.

"If it is found that the Bethlehem Steel Corporation purchased any of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. stock with corporate funds, that is a clear violation of the Clayton act," he said.

Youngstown, Ohio, April 10 (A.P.). Financial observers here tonight believed that indefinite postponement was in prospect for the merger of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. They based their conclusions on a statement of Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and chief merger op-

Law's Jarring Note Mars Young Elopers' Symphony

Virginia Couple Balked at License Bureau by Police.

The spring love song of Annie Elice Teele, 14-year-old schoolgirl of Marshall, Va., and Franklin William McIntyre, 19-year-old student of Rectortown, Va., fell flat late yesterday when the jarring notes of a policeman's voice interrupted their matrimonial melody.

The romance of the Teele girl and McIntyre, which flourished in the rolling Virginia hills, would have culminated in their marriage here had not the parents of the girl learned of their elopment.

A telephone call to the District police resulted in the stationing of two detectives at the License Bureau. Unaware of the discordant note in their plans, they rolled up into the District in a new car, which the pro-

Officers Announce Intention of Studying Jobs Before Making Changes.

The new Board of Commissioners of the District was brought into official existence without unnecessary ceremony yesterday and immediately began to function as an official body.

Dr. Luther Reichelderfer and Maj. Gen. Herbert B. Crosby were sworn into office by Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the Board of Commissioners, a few minutes after 2 p. m., in the office of Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, retiring president of the Board of Commissioners.

As soon as the office could be cleared of those who came to witness the ceremony the new Board of Commissioners met in executive session and on motion of Col. William B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner, elected Dr. Reichelderfer president of the board and, on motion of Gen. Crosby, named Col. Ladue as the Commissioner to act as president in board meetings when Dr Reichelderfer is absent.

Contracts Are Awarded.

The new board then approved the recommendation of Col Ladue that two pending contracts for the construction of sewers be awarded. One, for the construction of a service sewer in the vicinity of Piney Branch road and Sheridan street northwest, was awarded to W A. Pate, jr., low bidder, for $2,128.06. The other was awarded to the Warren F. Brenizer Co., low bidder, for construction of a replacement sewer in Third street, between Quackenboe and Sheridan streets northwest, for $6,317.08.

Dr. Reichelderfer, it was decided, will occupy the office which has been used by Commissioner Dougherty, at the northeast corner of the District Building. Col. Ladue will retain his office at the southeast corner and Gen. Crosby will use the office at the northwest corner, which has been occupied by Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro.

The new Commissioner will receive the department heads of the District government in Dr. Reichelderfer's office at 10 o'clock this morning and then will settle down to what they described as a "study" of their jobs. There was some general discussion of

BRISTOW SAYS GUIDE PLANNED TO BETRAY HIM

U. S. Mining Man, Freed by Mexican Bandits, Files Report.

TOWNSPEOPLE HAIL HIM ON HIS RETURN

American Avers Release Was Expedited by Aviator.

CAPTORS FEARFUL OF FLIER PURSUIT

He Taught Them Poker and They Gave Him Farewell Party, He States.

Tepic, Nayarit, Mexico, April 10 (A.P.).—On the morrow of his release from more than a month of captivity at the hands of bandits who held him for ransom, J. E. Bristow, American mining man, in a complete report to Mexican military authorities today accused the guide accompanying him at the time of his capture of having delivered him over to the bandits.

Mr. Bristow affirmed that T. C. Fields, who had been hired as interpreter and guide, had laid a kidnaping plot in concert with the Delgado bandits. He said the actions of Fields after the prospecting party had entered the bandit country on March 7 were suspicious, and he believed Fields had tried to collect the ransom for himself.

Shaved and dressed in his own clean clothes, Mr. Bristow today looked little the worse for his experience. He declared that he felt fine, and that what he most wanted now was to clear up the connection of Fields with his kidnaping.

Unknown Flier Alarms Bandits.

The droning of an airplane, piloted by a fellow American, who dropped close to his kidnapers' volcano lair, was a strong factor in the release of J. E. Bristow.

Lieut. H. W. Lucas, of Los Angeles, a former Navy flier, who now pilots a passenger plane between Tepic and Mexico City, tried to locate Mr. Bristow's kidnapers early this week and for 20 minutes circled above the volcano, Ceboruco, where the bandits were hiding, without catching sight of them.

Mr. Bristow revealed that Lieut. Lucas circled the actual bandit camp for some time and that the kidnapers feared they had been discovered. They were, therefore, inclined to hasten the ransom negotiations and to listen to argument for a much less ransom, as they did not know at what time government troops, advised by the unknown flier, would sweep down on their retreat.

TRIPLE NAVY TREATY IS AGREED UPON WITH 5-POWER TRIMMINGS

Detailed Figures of Navy Sizes Under Triple Pact

London, April 10 (A.P.).—The naval agreement to which the United States, Great Britain and Japan will subscribe soon will regulate the size of the fleets of these three powers for the next six years.

It is understood that a clause providing that it extend for that period and that any nation's right to expression of a new position at the next conference will not be prejudiced will be placed in the treaty. This will take care of Japan's concessions from the 10—10—7 ratio of large cruisers she had claimed.

The figures for the three nations will stand as follows:

	United States.	Great Britain.	Japan.
Battleships	15	15	9
Total cruiser tonnage	*323,500	339,600	208,900
8-inch cruisers	18	15	12
6-inch cruisers	*143,500	192,000	100,450
Destroyers	*150,000	150,000	105,500
Submarines	*52,700	52,700	52,700

*Tons

It must be borne in mind that between the United States and Great Britain will exist a so-called optional clause, under which the transfer of cruiser tonnage on the basis of 30,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers equaling 45,000 tons of smaller cruisers, will be permitted to operate. Thus within these maximums transfers will be permitted from large to small cruiser classes and vice versa.

Other than ships definitely to be set out in the treaty under the so-called displacement table, it has been agreed that the age limits will be set at 13 years for submarines, 16 for destroyers and 20 for cruisers. The replacement table will provide certain exceptions on age limits for Japan, and to a lesser degree for Great Britain, in order to keep shipyards busy.

The result of the settlement has been to leave Japan at or below her present tonnages in all categories, with minor exceptions, and to effect reductions where found possible, with special emphasis on reduction in submarine tonnage.

Japan's figures will stand as follows:

Eight-inch cruisers, 108,400 tons, keeping her present fleet; 6-inch

London Parley Will End Soon in Part Failure, Part Success.

U. S., BRITAIN, JAPAN FINISH AGREEMENT

Terms Being Drafted; Rapidan Figures Are Used as Basis.

FRENCH AND ITALIANS TO CONTINUE TALKS

Will Join Pact Reached by Other Three Nations to Limited Extent.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The London naval conference will wind up, probably at a plenary session next Tuesday, with a three-power pact with some five-power trimmings. The European nations represented at this parley have been unable to settle their controversies, but Great Britain, the United States and Japan have completed an agreement, though not the text of it, limiting their fleets in all classes of fighting ships.

Following a day of feverish activity among all delegations, Prime Minister MacDonald in the House of Commons tonight announced the result of the conference, part failure and part success, and expressed hope for signature of a treaty at a plenary session early next week. He said:

"I wish to make a very brief—it must be brief under the circumstances—statement on what has happened at the naval conference today.

Triple Pact Announced.

"I am happy to state that this forenoon an agreement was finally reached between the United States, Japan and Great Britain on a naval program including all categories of ships. The terms of the agreement are now being drafted, but they follow very closely those figures announced last September and October during the negotiations with the United States and show substantial reductions. A 'white paper' will be prepared (an official government document).

"From time to time since the opening of the conference, various points of disagreement that have held up progress toward disarmament have been settled, and these, it is hoped, brought together in one instrument, will be signed by the five powers.

"The differences in the naval requirements of France and Italy have proved to be intricate, and at a meeting early this evening between the French, Italian and British delegates it was decided that as such substantial agreements had been come to, it was both unnecessary and undesirable to keep the full body of delegates sitting in London pending the settlement of difficulties which primarily concerned the three delegations only.

Adjournment to Be Proposed.

"And so we shall propose at a plenary session, to be held early next week, that the agreement now come to shall be signed, and the conference adjourned on the understanding that France, Italy and ourselves shall continue efforts to come to an agreement in unison with that which has been reached between the United States, Japan and ourselves."

In answer to a question from Stanley Baldwin, Conservative leader, as to when the "three-power agrerment, pact or treaty, or whatever name you like to give it" would become effective, the Labor premier replied:

"With regard to putting the agreement in force I am not familiar with the machinery provided by the Japanese constitution, but it will have to go before the Senate of the United States, which I suppose will be done as speedily as possible.

"And so far as we are concerned, if it should emerge in the form of a

Wickersham Draws Lobby Quiz Criticism

Caraway and Tinkham Say Hoover Law Enforcement Chairman Occupies "Absolutely Indefensible" Position With Diversity of Interests.

(Associated Press.)

Criticism of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission, for serving as chairman of the foreign policy committee of the Federal Council of Churches while acting as attorney for international bankers, was voiced yesterday before the Senate lobby committee by Chairman Caraway and Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts.

Senator Caraway said Mr. Wickersham was in an "absolutely indefensible position." Representative Tinkham commented that it seemed there was a "diversity of interests."

The name of Mr. Wickersham, who is a former Attorney General of the United States, was added to the long list of notables who have figured in lobby committee testimony while Representative Tinkham was demanding an investigation of the Federal Council, the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals and the Antisaloon League.

Noting that he had requested the information, the Massachusetts representative said Mr. Wickersham had informed him of his chairmanship of the foreign policy committee of the Federal Council, and that either he or his firm had represented foreign corporations and international bankers. The law enforcement chairman retired several months ago as an official of the council.

"If these facts are of any interest or importance to you," Mr. Wickersham wrote Representative Tinkham, "I cheerfully place them at your disposal."

"How does he qualify as an officer of the Federal Council?" asked Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin.

"I suppose because he is active in international business," Representative Tinkham replied.

Representative Tinkham did not finish with his attack upon the Antisaloon League and will appear again next week. The committee adjourned until Tuesday. Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, will testify then.

Later, representatives from the Federal Council, Methodist board and the Antisaloon League are expected to appear. The Federal Council has asked permission to testify in reply to Representative Tinkham's charges and an opportunity will be given the Methodist organization if it desires to appear.

After renewing his charge that the Federal Council and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals have violated the principle of separation of church and state by political activities, the witness, an outspoken wet, assailed the Antisaloon League for its methods in advocating prohibition.

LETTERMAN WORKS, DESPITE HIS ARREST

Pratt Shifts Sergeant to Precinct Duty; Replaced by Aid in Raids.

ARRAIGNMENT DUE TODAY

Although Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman, chief of the police vice squad, was arrested yesterday and released under $500 on a charge of unlawful entry in conducting a raid on the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Eleck Harmon, on S street near Sixteenth northwest, he was not suspended by Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police. Instead, he was transferred to his old position of sergeant at the First Precinct.

Detective Richard J. Cox, second in command of the vice squad, was named temporary successor of Sergt. Letterman, despite the fact that he participated in the warrantless raid.

Sergt. Letterman was immediately granted five days' leave of absence, but he was not suspended and will not be before the outcome of the charges. Maj. Pratt said that the charges against him boiled down to over-zealousness and involved several controversial legal points. No moral turpitude is charged, he said, and consequently there is no justification for suspending the officer.

The former vice squad leader will be arraigned today in the United States branch of Police Court.

Preparation of formal charges on which Letterman will be given a hearing before the Police Trial Board in the same case were completed yesterday and signed by Maj. Pratt.

The case will be ready for trial Wednesday, but it will likely be postponed if court charges are still pending at that time.

Sergt. Letterman was in the Police Court when the warrant was ordered issued by Assistant United States Attorney Charles B. Murray, and immediately made bond of $500.

Issuance of the warrant followed lengthy discussion of the case between Mr. and Mrs. Harmon and Mr Murray and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover and Mr. Murray. Mrs. Harmon swore to the warrant.

The exact charge as contained in the warrant says: "* * * he, the

PARLEY AGREEMENT MEETS HOOVER AIM

President's Desire for Big Ship Holiday Reflected; Cruiser Plans Cut.

SENATE VIEW IN DOUBT

(Associated Press.)

The new limitations of naval tonnage disclosed yesterday in London reflect President Hoover's desire for a battleship holiday and for a preponderance of the 8-inch gun type of cruisers, but they also mean a modification of the big-cruiser program laid down by Congress.

It was about this latter point that most of the preconference controversy centered, and it is upon this provision of the agrement that any opposition which may develop in the Senate is expecetd to focus. Big navy advocates have insisted that construction of the 23 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruisers already authorized is essential to national defense. Even before the London conference met, it was disclosed that any modification of that program would come under scrutiny when a treaty finally was submitted for Senate ratification. President Hoover counts on the effect of concessions made by the other powers to overcome any such objection.

While some features of the London agreement remain undisclosed, figures contained in yesterday's dispatches from London indicate that the United States would build but eighteen of the 10,000 tonners, abandoning the five which were to have been laid down last. Only two ships of this type now are in operation. Eleven others are in various stages of construction. The remaining ten of the building program of 23 still are in the future.

Of the smaller, 6-inch gun cruisers, the United States now has in operation but ten ships, totaling 70,500 tons. Under the agreement, the total American small cruiser tonnage would be 143,500, which would mean practically doubling the existing strength. In tonnage this would more than offset abandonment of the five 10,000-tonners, so that under the agreement the total American cruiser

Bankers' Divorced Wife Asked $250,000 of Millionaire, 67.

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Adelaide Lean, 58, divorced wife of Charles Kaufman, a Detroit banker, was today awarded $25,000 by a jury in supreme court in her $250,000 breach - of - promise suit against Charles F. Harman, 67-year-old millionaire bachelor.

The jury, after deliberating only a few hours until 5 p. m., yesterday reached its decision then and left a sealed verdict, which was opened today.

Counsel for Harman, who has charged that Mrs. Lean and her friend, Mrs. Lena Turner, now 70 years old, planned to get him to marry Mrs. Lean so that both could live on his bounty, moved to set aside the verdict on the grounds that it treaty it will just be ratified in the usual way, and not by resolution of this House. It would be signed by us, but the signature would not have effect without ratification later on.

"In the interval between signing and ratification," I am perfectly certain that this House will have an opportunity of expressing its views on the contents of the document, whatever form it may take."

The American, French, Japanese and Italian delegations put out views varying, and in some cases conflicting, as to the probable form of the proposed treaty, but it was clear that a general understanding has been reached as to the form of the oceanic powers' agreement and the European powers' disagreement and that only drafting difficulties remain. It is not yet certain, despite Mr. MacDonald's statement, that these will not prove formidable.

Briand Demurs to Form.

The Americans and British, it is understood, are proposing a treaty of a different form from that wished by Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France, the oceanic powers desiring that all five nations sign a battleship holiday clause as the first part of a general treaty, while the French suggest that the battleship holiday be left to Great Britain, the United States and Japan so that France can build battle cruisers against the German Ersatz Preussen.

The view taken by the Americans and British, although no American comment for publication was available, is that the treaty should consist of three parts, the third part containing the agreed American-Japanese-British figures, including the last one reached this morning—that the Japanese may scrap no battleship but keep the Kongo as a training ship. This means that the 15-15-9 battleship ratio is to be complicated by each of the three powers being allowed to make one battleship useless for combat and usable as a training ship. Japan is to have three other training ships, dismantled cruisers.

On part 1 of the proposed treaty, the battleship holiday, the French take issue with the Americans and British. This will doubtless be thrashed out at meetings tomorrow of the heads of the delegations.

French Idea Outlined.

The general idea of the French is to have the first part of the treaty deal with agreements as to the unit size of submarines and humanization of submarine warfare signed by all five powers. This part of the treaty, as the French envisage it, would also embody an agreement on methods of naval limitations—that is, the compromise between limitation by total tonnage and by classes of ships—and the agreement on defining special classes of ships not subject to limitation. Figures would be left blank.

To some extent this corresponds to the points of the second part of the treaty put forward tonight in British quarters and published by British press associations as emanating from the Americans. The British official spokesman tonight gave his blessing in general terms to what were termed by British correspondents "the American draft terms," which include the third part of the treaty devoted to the three-power agreement.

This part, since it does not concern the French and Italians, is capable of more precise definition and has been settled, excepting the text. It will contain the Rapidan figures already published and the Japanese figures as finally agreed upon. There will also be a clause permitting any of the three powers, if menaced by the building of a nonsignatory of this section of the treaty, to build additionally, the other two powers to have the same right.

U. S. Hopes for Best.

It is fervently hoped and believed by the Americans that the British will not avail themselves of this right during the life of the treaty. The point is stressed that while the British feel they must retain the right to additional building, this does not imply that they will exercise it. Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden is understood to have said that he will oppose building above the Rapidan figures, but the attitude of the Tories, if they succeed to office within the next six years, is doubtful. M. Briand told the French press tonight that Great Britain, France and Italy will make an agreement to continue diplomatic negotiations, particularly at Geneva, with a view to reconciling their differences, political and naval.

The French foreign minister expressed himself as delighted with the result of the conference which he called entirely successful from the French viewpoint since France has throughout maintained her principles as set forth in her declaration of December 20 and in addition has obtained results useful for Geneva in definition of total tonnage.

Italy Expected to Stand Firm.

When correspondents visited Italian headquarters at Claridge's, however, they learned at once that the global tonnage, category compromise clause, which the other four powers hope to insert in a five-power agreement, is by no means certain of acceptance by Italy. In my opinion, Italy will not budge and the clause will have to be left out.

The famous security formula, search for which has monopolized the attention of the conference for three weeks, disappeared tonight. The formula is dead and appears almost forgotten. It was not even mentioned in Mr. MacDonald's statement.

ITALIAN CITIES PLAN HONORS FOR VERGIL

FETES UNTIL OCTOBER 15

Mantua, Italy, April 12 (A.P.).—The year 1930 being the 2000th anniversary of the birth of the poet Vergil, all Italy is preparing to celebrate the bimillenary. Delegations are expected from several other countries.

The United States is sending a number of its classical scholars. So far as known, however, there are no high school seniors in the party to chant praises of the man who wrote the epic beginning "Arma virumque cano."

April 21, the birthday of Rome, has been set for commencing the observance. The ceremonies will continue at various places until October 15, the actual date of the poet's birth. They will have three centers—Mantua, where Vergil was born; Rome, where he worked, and Naples, where he lived.

Mussolini will take part in the Rome program on April 21. The head of the government is giving official recognition to the bimillenary because this year is being celebrated as making the turn toward victory in Italy's struggle to make herself independent of foreign wheat. Vergil was a great poet of the farm as well as being chronicler of the adventures of Anaeas. His pastoral poeom, the Georgics, was, in fact, written to encourage farming at a time when the agriculture of ancient Rome was on the wane.

M. Briand said there would be no mention in the treaty of security obligations under Article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations.

This means that strong opposition here to additional British security commitments has triumphed and that Mr. MacDonald was unable to proceed with his efforts to give France satisfaction in the face of the French refusal to reduce tonnage figures.

Grandi Again Refuses.

Mr. MacDonald told the Italian Ambassador here today that the security formula is dead. M. Briand, however, visiting Dino Grandi later in his sick room, again asked the Italian foreign minister if Italy would be a party to a security agreement. Signor Grandi refused.

For a last time M. Briand asked Italy to accept a difference in strength between the two Latin fleets. For a last time Signor Grandi refused, and the five-power agreement, so far as London is concerned, vanished at that moment. The two statesmen shook hands, however, and promised to go on talking elsewhere.

Secretary of State Stimson and the other chief American delegates probably will sail for home on the Leviathan, April 22, or on the George Washington a week later, if Mr. MacDonald's views about the quick conclusion of a treaty prove too optimistic. Should the treaty have to be referred to Tokyo or other capitals for governmental consideration before signature, it is probable the United States will permit Ambassador Charles Gates Dawes to sign the final instrument after the departure of Mr. Stimson and the rest of our delegation.

Limitation Moot Point.

An interesting point emerged tonight in the differences of opinion expressed in various delegations regarding inclusion in the treaty of a clause defining a method of naval limitation. Powers possessing large navies have always favored limitation by classes of ships, smaller navies have wanted limitation by total tonnage.

France, now that her chief rivalry is with Italy, has joined the majority, and Italy alone remains wedded to global tonnage. It is because global tonnage limitation favors smaller navies that Italy probably held out against the proposed clause embodying a compromise on the two methods.

Parliamentary opinion, after Mr. MacDonald's statement, was not enthusiastic tonight. The coldness of former Premier Stanley Baldwin's correct, precise statement was the subject of much comment. He uttered no word of congratulation.

Lloyd George Is Absent.

Lloyd George was away. Sir Herbert Samuel, for the Liberals, congratulated Mr. MacDonald on the measure of success achieved and paid tribute to the British delegation's hard work.

Some Conservative opinion was that the agreement was not satisfactory and that, failing European agreement, Great Britain should have kept a free hand.

Left Wing Labor is disgruntled at what it claims is a failure to reduce battleships and the increases contemplated in the cruiser category. There is, however, general belief that the conference seems destined to wind up at once.

The ratios involved for Japan are the following: 8-inch cruisers, 60.2; 6-inch cruisers, 70; destroyers, 70.3; submarines, 100. Total in auxiliaries, 69.7; total for entire navy, 63.6.

Footless Youth Star Hurler for Prep School

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—A footless youth of 20 has become the baseball star of Brooklyn Preparatory School.

With both legs off 9 inches below the knees as a result of being crushed beneath the wheels of a train seven years ago, Johnny Dollard has pitched his team to victory in both its games this season and also has come through with some timely hitting. He scored his second victory yesterday when he struck out five batsmen and hit a single that drove in two runs.

tonnage would be 323,500, compared to a total of 300,500 tons built, building or authorized under the existing program.

What effect the "optional clause" proposed at London may have remains to be developed. It is understood this clause would permit a limited transfer of tonnage from the large-cruiser to the small-cruiser class, or vice versa. Under such an arrangement, it might be possible for the United States to build three more 10,000-ton ships, bringing its total to 21, but that would require a reduction of 45,000 tons in smaller cruisers.

Great Britain already has in operation or building all of fifteen larger type cruisers allotted her under the agreement. She also has four Hawkins type cruisers, carrying 7.5-inch guns, which presumably are destined to be scrapped. Of the smaller cruisers the British navy has 39, aggregating 177,685 tons. Her total present cruiser tonnage is given in American naval tables as 401,791. Under the agreement she would have 339,600 tons.

Japan to Complete Program.

Japan is to complete her present program of twelve larger type cruisers, of which eight already are afloat, and is to have a small increase in 6-inch-gun ships. Her total cruiser strength, built and projected, now is 206,815 tons. Under the agreement she would have 208,900 tons.

Assuming that the proposed holiday would include the year 1936, the United States and Great Britain each would defer indefinitely laying down ten replacement battleships, while Japan similarly would defer construction of six.

Replacement tables of the Washington treaty provide that this replacement building begin for all three nations in 1931, the United States and Great Britain laying down two ships each and Japan one. The same program for each nation would apply in 1932, while in 1933 each of the three would lay down one ship. In 1934 Great Britain and the United States would lay down two ships each and Japan one, and in 1935 each of the three again would lay down one. In 1936 the tables call for two ships each for the United States and Great Britain and one for Japan.

Aircraft Carrier Limitation.

The new provision as to aircraft carrier limitations is designed to cover the omission from the Washington treaty of a prohibition of the use of ships of less than 10,000 tons as carriers. Presumably this is aimed at the possibility that fast modern merchantmen could be built with such service in mind without violation of the letter of the Washington treaty.

Under the London agreement the United States, Great Britain and Japan each would have 52,700 tons in submarines. Figures compiled by the American Navy Department put the present submarine tonnage, built, building and authorized as follows: United States, 87,232; Great Britain, 72,521; Japan, 78,497.

The new London figures on destroyers are United States, 150,000 and Japan, 145500. The total existing and authorized tonnage for each power under the American Navy figures is United States, 290,304; Great Britain, 198,400; Japan, 129,375.

Navy's Rifle Manager Proves Best Pistol Shot

Annapolis, Md., April 10.—Though he managed the affairs of the Midshipmen Indoor Rifle Team throughout the season recently closed, S. S. Eaton, of Auburn, Me., senior, discovered only a few days ago that he is a skilled marksman with the pistol. Yesterday he joined a group to shoot for the prize offered as an annual award by the Secretary of the Navy and came through with flying colors, registering the highest score, 228. Joseph C. Ruddy, of New York City, swimmer and water polo-ist, was second, with 227.

The prize, a .38-caliber pistol, will be presented along with other awards to be made during June week commencement festivities.

CEREMONY IS SIMPLE

the division of supervision of the departments yesterday, but for the time being the division was left as it has been.

Transfer Is Mentioned.

There was mention of transfer of the Health Department from its present grouping with the Police and Fire Departments, which will come under supervision of Gen. Crosby, to place it under the supervision of Dr. Reichelderfer.

There was no fuss or feathers about the induction of the new Commissioners into office. Four baskets of flowers stood on a table in one corner. It had been announced that none would be admitted to the ceremony except one or two personal friends, necessary officials and newspaper reporters, but when it was seen that the number present could be accommodated without undue crowding those waiting were admitted. Mrs. Reichelderfer was present.

Commissioners Dougherty, Taliaferro and Ladue stood chatting with Dr. Reichelderfer and Gen. Crosby for a few moments. Standing at his desk, Mr. Dougherty asked for attention and said:

"The President of the United States having nominated and the Senate of the United States having confirmed the two eminent men present here, we are about to induct them into office. They have asked that the ceremony be simple and that there be no speeches. Mr. Garges will administer the oath of office to Dr. Reichelderfer."

Badges Are Pinned On.

When Mr. Garges had administered the oath of office, Commissioner Taliaferro pinned on the new Commissioner's coat the gold badge of his office. The oath was administered to Gen. Crosby by Mr. Garges and Commissioner Dougherty said he himself would pin on his successor the gold Commissioner's badge. Col. Ladue congratulated his new colleagues, and the ceremony was over except for a few minutes of handshaking and congratulations offered by District officials and some few friends. Then the new Commissioners posed with Mr. Garges for the news photographers. The room was cleared and the new board went to work.

The first meeting was a brief one, after which they saw newspaper reporters, announced what had been done, and said that they had no statements to make for publication. Gen. Crosby said "The first thing I've got to do is to study my job" and Dr. Reichelderfer agreed with him. He added, "We may not be good newspaper copy, but we want to be perfectly frank with the public at all times."

Gen. Crosby subsequently made a brief inspection of his new office and both he and Dr. Reichelderfer left together shortly after 4 o'clock.

Bulgaria Peasants Told to "Clean Up"

Government to Impose Fines on Those Who Remain Dirty.

Sofia, April 12 (A.P.).—Bulgarian authorities, having found that methods of persuasion have failed to inculcate ideas of hygiene among the peasants, are about to institute a system of fines for offenders.

Befort putting this into effect, however, a two-week period of "clean up" was proclaimed, with mayors, tax collectors, school teachers, doctors and priests doing their best to induce the peasants to heed the government's desires. As a starter police stations, public libraries, cafes and other public places were given thorough scrubbings. With these examples before the peasants the campaigners went after the latter's yards, houses, wells and cisterns. They also urged personal applications of the principle that is generally recognized as next to godliness.

But the task is a big one, because generations of peasants have lived to ripe old ages without going through what the country folk consider a lot of unnecessary fuss. Family wash days are rare, and Saturday night is just another evening to most of this class.

7,000,000 NEED JOBS IN U.S., SAYS HARRIS

Immigration Ban Urged as Aid to Unemployed in Senator's Bill.

BINGHAM OPPOSES MOVE

(Associated Press.)

Immigration restrictions against the Latin-American countries and the Philippines were proposed in both branches of Congress yesterday as a means of checking what was described as the "deplorable" unemployment situation in the United States.

Opening debate in the Senate on his bill to apply the quota laws to all Central and Southern American nations, Senator Harris (Democrat), Georgia, said 7,000,000 persons, many of them veterans of the World War, were out of work in this country and that thousands of their jobs had been taken by Latin immigrants, mostly from Mexico.

Representative Welch (Republican), California, testified before the House immigration committee at initial hearings on his bill to place Filipinos under the same restrictions now applicable to Chinese and Japanese, that "deplorable" unemployment conditions existed in his State as a result of the presence of 60,000 Filipino immigrants competing in all kinds of work with white labor.

Contending the Harris bill would increase rather than retard unemployment, Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, opposed it on the further ground that it would "strike a blow at Pan-Americanism from which it would be very difficult to recover."

Mr. Bingham argued that onlyy about 2,000 persons enter the United States annually from the 18 Latin-American countries south of Mexico and most of these were students, travelers and agents to purchase goods.

"These nations are not flooding our markets with cheap labor," he said, adding that friendly relations would be seriously affected by any immigration bar.

Senator Harris insisted his bill would help labor and business, especially in the cotton belt. He said approximately 56,000 Mexicans enter the United States every year, mostly of the "lowest peon class," and enter into competition with American labor in the cotton fields of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

WOMAN "CRASHES" INTO MEN'S SCHOOL

Pittsburgh Girl Enters Carnegie Tech Via Stenographic Route.

METALLURGY HER HOBBY

Pittsburgh, April 9 (A.P.).—Stenography has given Zita Hill a chance to crash one of the few remaining "men only" doors and break into science.

Three years ago, at 17, she tried to take a chemical engineering course at Carnegie Tech, but found that only men were admitted.

Then she spent two years in the women's department of the school, the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College. She studied stenography as well as science, studied music and sang occasionally over the radio.

Still she desired to study science alone. Her chance came when the bureau of metallurgical research at Carnegie needed a stenographer, who could learn to polish minerals for microscopic examination.

Miss Hill applied and got the job on her record of scientific study.

Half-way into Tech via the stenographer route, she found she could crash the next gate by night work. She decided to take the night school course in metallurgy.

"I prefer metallurgy to music," Miss Hill says, "because I find it more interesting. There is always some new problem to work out."

Alleged Bed Bugs Lead to $500 Suit

Woman Had to Sit Up All Night, She Says in Accusing Firm.

Bed bugs in a furnished apartment which one rents and which one is unable to inhabit without alleged difficulties is worth at least $500 actual damages, according to a suit for that amount of damages filed yesterday in Municipal Court by Mrs. Richard Lewis, of Columbia road northwest near Fourteenth street.

Mrs. Lewis charges that she rented a furnished apartment from Maurice Baskin & Co., Inc. of 1424 K street northwest, late at night and paid her rent in advance. Mrs. Lewis charges that she was unable to occupy the apartment because it was "intolerably infected with bedbugs" and that she was compelled to sit up all night in a chair.

The woman tells the court that she left the apartment the next day and that her efforts to obtain a readjustment have failed. Attorneys Sanford & Happ appear for the plaintiff.

Chicagoan Tells Court Gin Is Fur Restorative

Chicago, April 10 (A.P.).—The value of gin as a fur restorative was argued before Judge John L. Lupe today.

"It revives the fiber, makes the fur glisten and keeps away moths," Jacob Cohen mentioned, in explaining why he had a gallon of the substance in his fur store.

The court was interested in Cohen's contribution to industrial chemistry—but not impressed.

AGRICULTURE RATES IN TARIFF ACCEPTED

LEVIES ARE INCREASED

(Associated Press.)

The heart of the tariff bill—the agricultural schedule—was accepted by the congressional conferees yesterday, virtually as rewritten upward by the Senate.

While the House bill carried general increases in farm rates, the Senate boosted these still higher in scores of instances. Only rarely did the House conference group hold out yesterday for its lower duties. A few of the House duties agreed upon exceeded those of the Senate.

Only two disputes in the agriculture section—the seventh of the fifteen rate schedules—went over for future decision.

These involved the Senate amendments placing a duty of 7 cents a pound on long staple cotton now on the free list, and increasing the rate on frozen eggs from 6 to 11 cents a pound against a House rate of 8 cents.

Controversy on Cotton.

Representative Garner (Democrat), Texas, one of the five House conferees, said the three Republicans on the House conference committee insisted on returning long staple cotton to the free list.

A discussion of the controverted Cuban raw sugar levy, reached at the morning session, also was passed over in deference to pledges that the House would be permitted to vote on the item.

The House has raised the Cuban sugar levy from 1.76 to 2.40 cents a pound. The Senate pared this down to 2 cents.

Sugar Cane Rate Raised.

Taking up the less controversial rates in the sugar schedule, the conferees compromised on a duty of $2.50 a ton for sugar cane, now dutiable at $1 a ton. The House bill provided $3 and the Senate $2.

Senate farm rates approved at the first of the two daily sessions carry much higher protection for cattle, milk, cream, live and dressed birds, oats, cherries, lemons, alligator pears, mangoes, wheat unfit for human consumption, canned oysters, soya bean oil and oil-like meal and other similar products, vinegar and dates.

The House duties were accepted in t hecase of frozen halibut, canned clams, grain screenings and pineapples in crates.

A compromise rates of 8 cents a pound but not less than 40 per cent stitutes. Compromises also were was fixed for cheese and cheese subreached on Brazil nuts, the duties being 1½ and 4½ cents, respectively, on unshelled and shelled, compared with 1 cent on both now in effect.

GREAT FALLS PLAN TO BE INVESTIGATED

Indorsement of Project by Engineer Group Is Postponed.

The Washington Chapter of the American Association of Engineers decided last night to appoint a committee to investigate the proposed Great Falls water power project before indorsing the plan.

While reiterating its stand in advocating a water power development, the association felt that it would be well to have a committee investigate all phases of the project.

At the request of the Board of Trade the chapter appointed K. P. Armstrong and W. A. E. Doying to represent it on the committee planning for the observation of the bicentennial birthday of George Washington.

The chapter went on record as approving the Teachers Union stand to have $126,000 recently pruned from the Board of Education budget placed back again, declaring that the 78 teachers who were omitted because of the slice in the budget are necessary.

The nomination committee reported the following candidates as officers of the chapter: For president, Morton G. Lloyd, and Linn W. Searls; first vice president, W. I. Swanton and Nelson T. Tubbs; second vice presidents, Donal Lee Chamberlain and Herbert Coward; corresponding secretary, Henry Warrer Austin and Donald Kenty MacKenzie; recording secretary, W. W. Duncan and Henry J. Kelly; treasurer, Vernon D. George and Max Shulman.

Snyder's Victory As Marshal Seen

Favorable Report Expected, Despite Protest at Judiciary Hearing.

The nomination of Edgar C. Snyder for another term as United States marshal here will be favorably reported, it was indicated yesterday after a hearing before a subcommittee of the Senate judiciary committee.

Miss Susan Davis, of the Winston Hotel, opposed the nomination, charging that Marshal Snyder's office had erroneously recorded the date on which a summons was served on Jesse W. Nicholson, of Chevy Chase, whom she is suing for damages. The error, she said, resulted in an award to her being set aside. Miss Davis was accompanied by Attorney Oscar H. Brinkman.

Marshal Snyder's attorney, Joseph C. McGarraghy, read a statement in which the former admitted the error, but insisted that everything possible had been done to correct it. Evidently this explanation satisfied the two members of the subcommittee, Senators Gillett (Republican), Massachusetts, and Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona.

Temporary Alimony Increased in Mott Suit

Upon motion of her attorney, Stedman Prescott, of Rockville, Judge Robert B. Peter yesterday increased the temporary alimony allotted to Mrs. Daisy P. Mott, who is suing for a limited divorce from Thomas T. Mott, of Edgemoor, Md., wealthy automobile distributor, alleging cruelty.

The alimony was raised from $75 a month to $300 a month by order of the judge. Attorney Prescitt pointed out that Mr. Mott has an annual income well over $25,00 a year. Mrs. Mott filed suit Tuesday in circuit court at Rockville, alleging that her husband had been excessively cruel and had thrust her from their home in severe weather thinly clad.

QUIZ IN 1922 SLAYING FINDS WIDOW SILENT

'Attic Lover,' Hid by Woman for 18 Years, Is Held as Killer.

WOMAN NEAR COLLAPSE

Los Angeles, April 10 (A.P.).—Mrs. Walburga Oesterreich, the woman involved in the eight-year-old mysterious murder of Fred Oesterreich, wealthy Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturer, today made her promised appearance before the district attorney, but refused to talk of her husband's slaying or of Otto Sanhuber, 36, her alleged "attic lover" and confessed slayer of Oesterreich.

An expected meeting between Sanhuber and "Dolly" as he said he had called her during the eighteen years she hid him in secret compartments in her Milwaukee and Los Angeles homes, did not materialize. As she left the investigator's office, Sanhuber entered through another corridor. The district attorney had planned to bring the two face to face for questioning. On the woman's plea that she was too distraught over the murder reinvestigation, she was allowed to return to her Beverly Hills home. She agreed to come back tomorrow.

Jerry Geisler, attorney for Mrs. Oesterreich, said he had advised her not to talk because of "her highly upset condition," and because he was not yet familiar with all angles of the case. He said she would await the "next move, which probably may be a summons from the grand jury."

A battery of news cameras clicked amid the boom of flashlights as the comely widow approached the office. She willingly posed for news pictures.

The district attorney had announced his intention to question Mrs. Oesterreich regarding not only the murder, but open statements made in an affidavit by Herman Shapiro, her former attorney. Shapiro said that a will, in which Oesterreich had left his widow but one third of his $650,000 estate, had been destroyed by Sanhuber.

Shapiro's information was the basis for the arrest of Sanhuber, who since has confessed shooting Oesterreich August 22, 1922, when the manufacturer quarreled with his wife. Sanhuber said he returned to his attic hiding place, throwing all investigators off the trail of the slayer by remaining there.

Man Handed $100 Fine In Second Speed Case

James F. Powers, of the Ambassador Hotel, was fined $100 in Police Court yesterday by Judge John P. McMahon on a charge of second offense speeding. The fine is the maximum under the law.

Powers is alleged to have attempted to force Policeman V. V. Vaughn, of the Thirteenth Precinct, off the road earlier in the day during a chase on Riggs road northwest. Vaughn testified that Powers was traveling at a 50-mile-an-hour clip and charged that the man ran off the road when he tried to cause him to crash.

Bank Official's Bond Is Posted by His Son

Charles A. McCarthy, former secretary-treasurer of the East Washington Savings Bank, posted $2,000 bond yesterday for his appearance at trial on an indictment charging embezzlement of the institution's funds. Willard S. Robbins, former clerk of the same bank, who was indicted at the same time on the same charge, pleaded guilty and is at liberty under a similar bond pending action of the probation officer, to whom his case has been referred.

Mr. McCarthy's bond was posted in cash by his son, Lieut. Weller McCarthy, of Camp Meade, Md.

APPROPRIATE FUNERAL DESIGNS

Brickbats & Bouquets

By JAMES HAY, JR.

THERE are two reasons why all the Democrats and some of the impartial observers declare that the iridescent Mr. Lewis has a chance to defeat the hard-hitting Mrs. McCormick for the Senate.

One reason, obviously, is that, with Illinois and Mr. Lewis wringing wet, Mrs. McCormick, who is bone dry, may lose the State's usually overwhelming Republican majority. The other is that he, noted for his resourcefulness as a campaigner, will conduct this fight in a manner beautiful to behold.

He will not, they say, take the role of a bludgeoning battler and so run the risk of creating sympathy for the representative of the so-called weaker sex. Instead, this politest of gentlemen will overwhelm her with chivalry and assail her with courtesy.

He will protest his inability to forget that she is the bright and particular star of that renowned sex to which the brains of Aspasia brought distinction and to which the loveliness of Helen of Troy gave everylasting adornment.

* * * *

A CLASS-A exponent of genuflexion, salaam and kotow, he will lead her through a graceful saraband of congratulation that she and he are one in their far-sighted, disdainful and hearty detestation of the world court.

In terms of a most flattering and caressing politesse he will call on all the gods to bear witness to the falling of his tears and the bleeding of his heart that a lady so high born, so intellectual and so beautiful, by advocating Volsteadism strikes a foul blow at the personal liberty of her freeborn, hard-working and thirsty countrymen.

A thousand times between now and November his superlative admiration of Mrs. McCormick will be just a little dimmed, just a trifle lessened, by her prohibition heresy.

* * * *

HE will, so to speak, use no rougher weapon against her than the cocktails of compliment and the highballs of reluctant challenge. He will seek to bewilder her with the gin rickeys of his respectful repartee and to disarm her with the sparkling burgundy of his gallant badinage.

He will scorn the common beer of verbal abuse customary between male opponents. He will abstain from the hard liquor of merciless denunciation. He will try to confuse the lady with the champagne of alliterative debate and to lure her into mistakes with the creme yvette of onomatopoetic despair at her persistent dallying with the dry doctrine.

In short, he will travel the hard road of political controversy like a sir knight of olden days riding down the verdant lanes of springtime to do battle for maidens in distress; and for weapons in his fight he will carry only suavity, smoothness and serenity with, of course, a notable armament of political sagacity.

CENTER MART BILL READY FOR REPORT

Two Other District Measures to Be Acted Upon by Committee.

HEARING DATE IS SET

The Capper bill authorizing $1,300,000 for a new Center Market here probably will be favorably reported by the Senate District committee this afternoon, together with two other measures.

These two are the joint resolution authorizing a street car merger and a bill to regulate the methods of lawyers and others who serve as guardians for insane veterans.

At a hearing on the Capper market bill recently, a score or more consumers and dealers urged its passage, while only two men appeared to oppose it. Consequently, the committee evidently is ready to make a favorable report today.

Another measure which will be before the committee today is the Howell bill to place a drastic prohibition enforcement act on the local statute books. It is doubtful, however, if any action will be taken on this measure today.

The Commissioners have asked the committee to give them authority to regulate billboard and other exterior advertising, and this request may come in for discussion today.

Senator Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin, announced yesterday that there would be a hearing at 10 o'clock the morning of Saturday, April 19, on the two bills to regulate the local real estate business.

CHILD HEALTH DAY MEETING IS BEGUN

National Chairmen Attend Sessions Sponsored by White House.

WILBUR DELIVERS TALK

May Day chairmen in charge of plans for the celebration of National Child Health Day began a three-day conference at the Carlton Hotel yesterday which was called by Mrs. Aida de Acosta Breckinridge, director of public relations of the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

Addressing the chairmen from the States and Territories, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur stated that in his opinion various governmental bureaus working for child health and education overlap in their activities, and expressed himself definitely against centralized control of child health work.

It was not his opinion, he said, that effective work among the States could be done by any bureau or person in Washington. Rather, he said, communities should handle their own problems and display a neighborly spirit in the work which the government had failed to do.

The meeting yesterday was addressed by Dr. H. E. Barnard, director of the White House conference, who explained the work which the group is trying to do. Other speakers were Miss Grace Abbott, chief of the Children's Bureau; Dr. C. C. Pierce, of the Public Health Service, and Dr. Walter L. Treadway.

Keith Company to Pay For Holding Furniture

Action of the B. F. Keith Corporation, owner of the Albee Building, in holding the office furniture of Charles B. Dodds, a newspaper correspondent, when he decided to move to the National Press Building in 1927, will cost the corporation $2,075.

A District Supreme Court jury before Acting Chief Justice Frederick L. Siddons yesterday awarded Mr. Dodds $2,000 punitive damages and $75 actual damages for the furniture. Attorneys John Lewis Smith and Alfred J. Bennett, who appeared for the corporation, announced they will seek a new trial. Mr. Dodds was represented by Attorneys George Curtis Shinn and Vernon E. Lowrey.

Ross Phipps Attachment Issued in Smith Case

The grand jury inquiry into the affairs of the F. H. Smith Co. and several of its officers and former officers and directors assumed a different angle yesterday when an attachment was issued for Ross Phipps, of Bradley road, Chevy Chase, Md., who is alleged to have ignored a subpena to appear as a witness in the inquiry.

While the investigation has been under way since Monday its purpose still remains a secret. Practically all the individual witnesses have been heard, but it is understood that the inquiry will extend into next week.

WORLD COURT FIGHT IN SENATE TO WAIT

Delay Until After Elections in Fall Assured; Next Year Is Probable.

DILL ATTACKS PROTOCOL

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Postponement of the World Court battle in the Senate until after the fall elections is now assured and President Hoover may wait until next year before submitting the protocol for ratification. In view of the administration's present attitude, another attack on the protocol delivered by Senator Dill yesterday failed to precipitate any statement in reply.

The senator from Washington declared that Senator Deneen in Illinois "gave himself as a living sacrifice to the cause of those internationalists who want this country to become entangled in the affairs of Europe by entrance into the World Court.

"I hope the President of the United States will take notice of this overwhelming repudiation of the World Court with the Root formula. I hope he will never present it. If he will but consider what the American people have always done when this issue has been presented to them as the controlling issue of a campaign he certainly will not prevent it."

Pressure for Action Felt.

There has been pressure from the internationalists exerted upon the White House and the Senate in support of early action on the World Court protocol and in some instances there have been warnings against the danger of delay. The pacifist and internationalist organizations have urged that the protocol be submitted for ratification before the Senate adjourns this summer and these organizations have assumed that President Hoover would respond to their appeals. But Senator Watson, the Republican leader, has maintained his opposition to the plan of initiating a bitter and protracted fight over the World Court at the present session.

There are indications of decreasing strength in the ranks of the World Court supporters and a corresponding increase in the strength of the court opponents. When the Senate ratified the protocol in 1926 with safeguarding reservations there were 76 senators in favor of the protocol and 17 against.

Of the 76 senators who voted for ratification only 45 now remain in the Senate.

Two of These Have Switched.

Of these 45 senators two—Senators Copeland and Trammell—have publicly switched and are listed among the most determined opponents of the protocol. The list of 43 who are on record as favoring the protocol with the American safeguarding reservations includes a number of senators on both sides of the chamber who are disappointed at the refusal of the league powers to accept the Senate reservations and are not inclined to accept the league reservations as drawn up by Elihu Root and Sir Cecil Hurst, of Great Britain.

There must be 64 votes in sight, or two-thirds of the Senate, to insure ratification when the protocol finally faces the test. Under present circumstances there is no assurance that the two-thirds majority would be procurable and this fact is given as an added reason for postponing the battle over ratification.

He was removed to Emergency Hospital in an ambulance, where it was found that he had a compound fracture of the left leg and a possible fracture of the skull. His condition was said last night to be serious.

Legality of Chinese Raid Is Questioned

Hearing of five of the sixteen Chinese held as a result of the raids early Saturday morning by narcotic agents and police on three houses in Washington's Chinatown were continued yesterday while United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage determines whether the raids were illegal.

Attorney E. Russell Kelly, who represents the Chinese, brought out that the warrant was issued for Narcotic Agent C. D. Fortner, and that Agent Fortner did not personally serve the warrant when the raid was made. The five Chinese for whom the hearing was held are said to have been apprehended at 318 Pennsylvania avenue. Mr. Fortner testified that he was searching another house in that block and that he turned the warrant over to another agent. Due to the evidence brought out, Commissioner Turnage reduced bonds of the five Chinese from $10,000, as originally assessed, to $2,000 each.

POSTOFFICE LEASE QUIZ STRIKES SNAG

New Charges Are Hurled as All in Senate Debate Urge Inquiry.

BROWN IS HIT SEVERELY

(Associated Press.)

The proposed Senate investigation of postoffice building leases throughout the country struck a snag on procedure yesterday as new charges were hurled in the controversy over the 1921 St. Paul commercial station lease.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, sought action on his resolution of investigation, but Senator Phipps (Republican), Colorado, the chairman of the postoffice committee, insisted that it be referred first to his committee. The upshot was that nothing was done, although all speakers professed a desire for the inquiry.

Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota, meanwhile issued a statement asserting that Postmaster General Brown in his report Wednesday on the St. Paul lease "deliberately attempted to mislead the Senate."

Only One Side Heard, Claim.

He said that the Postmaster General, who said he had no knowledge of the St. Paul dispute, had sent Assistant Postmaster General Coleman to investigate the condition of the building last fall and that Mr. Coleman had held ex parte hearings at a time when the Government was prosecuting condemnation proceedings. He said that Mr. Coleman called in "only witnesses for the owners, and their evidence alone was given out."

"It was a strange way for a client—the Postoffice Department—to assist his counsel, the attorneys in the condemnation procedure," said Mr. Maas, "and every other bit of help the Postoffice Department has given has been just as strange."

By a vote of 35 to 25 the Senate agreed yesterday to keep in the Postoffice Department appropriation bill the stipulation made by the House that no part of the money for next year's upkeep of Federal buildings shall be used a rental for the commercial station in St. Paul.

U. S. Not to Pay Rent.

Senator Phipps explained that the Government has not paid any rent on this building since March, 1928, when a grand jury reported that the lease with the Government was "tainted with fraud," and that it had no intention of paying any rental next year. He asked that the House restriction be eliminated lest it prejudice the Government's action now before the Court of Claims.

Discussing the St. Paul lease, which the Government has broken, Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, said he believed it was "grossly fraudulent." He added that he thought most of the Senate appropriations committee held the same belief. Senator Blaine announced he would make another attempt this week to obtain immediate consideration of his resolution which would provide for an investigation of all of the 1,200 leases by the Government of temporary buildings for postoffices.

Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, who led the attack against the postoffice leases, particularly that at St. Paul, asserted in the Senate yesterday there was evidence of fraud in connection with the issuance of bonds by some of the security companies holding these leases.

CHAPTER XX.

DID COLLEGE HELP ME?

I have occasionally been asked whether or not I thought that my college training was responsible for my success.

Like most questions, I believe that is a difficult one to answer with a single negative or affirmative, since it requires much discussion and explanation.

There has always been animosity on the part of many people who have never attended a university toward those who have. This is probably subconsciously prompted by envy and regret, as there are very few who will not admit that if they had the opportunity they would go to college.

It is true that in the past the requirements for entering college, for remaining within its walls and for securing a degree were not as exacting as they are today. There were not so many applications for admission as the average college receives today, and there was a looseness about the times that was felt in the classrooms and on the campus.

Conditions Different Now.

But today the average college can accommodate only one-third of the men who apply for admission each fall. Therefore the board of admission and the faculty feel that in justice to the thousands who are turned down, those admitted should give the best in them in an effort to utilize all of the wonderful advantages that the college affords them. In other words, among those refused admission are many who perhaps would give anything to have been admitted and who would work very hard, and for the more fortunate ones who are safely in to rest on their oars and become, as it were, slackers, is an injustice to these others.

I do not know a great deal about the requirements of other colleges, but I do know that to enter, stay within and graduate from Yale requires work, hard work and plenty of it. Neither money, family prestige nor athletic ability will keep a man in Yale University; and I have seen some of the biggest athletes severely penalized for misdemeanors that seemed comparatively slight In fact, the faculty at New Haven has just as high a regard for the 50 per cent of the men who are worknig their way through as they have for the remainder.

All Affected by Contacts.

It is an absolute impossibility for a young man to remain for the four years of a college course within this university (and I firmly believe such is the case in nearly all of our other American universities) without being tremendously affected by his classroom and social contacts. It is unreasonable to suppose that one could associate with the eager, fresh and talented minds of students and the cultured, highly specialized minds of the faculty without receiving some sort of impression. It is impossible to cheat in the classrooms and it is impossible to pass most of the courses without reading and study.

Therefore, it is an unavoidable fact that those who march in cap and gown at commencement have, perhaps in spite of themselves, received a great deal from their college life.

There are also the social contacts that come from rubbing shoulders with all the types that are found in classrooms. The mind is like a camera plate, unconsciously receptive to accents, manners, customs in dress, expressions of thought. And, of course, especially when an individual seeks to pattern himself after the most popular men on the campus and the natural leaders, within this period of four years he can transform himself in manners, speech, thought and action. There must be contact in the classrooms and at meal times; therefore, no matter how much a student may intend to live the life of a hermit he must be affected by his classmates.

The textbooks, written as they are by great minds and expounded to the students by specialists in the various subjects, help to mold the thoughts of the students who must read them. The college courses of today are so regulated that one must take a well-balanced group of subjects. Even though the student may have a leaning toward the sciences the faculty has learned that a sprinkling of the arts in a scientific course gives a more rounded education, and very often those who thought they wanted scientific subjects have found out, through being compelled to take an artistic course that they prefer the arts.

I took a course that gave me a little of everything.

There is little question in my mind that nearly everything I took has aided me, not only in my musical work, but in my general life. My biology has helped me in my mode of living through the knowledge and understanding of my physical self which it gave me. My courses in English have helped me to expres myself more fluently, sensibly and entertainingly. My economics and courses in history have made it possible for me to understand and appreciate every day events that I read or hear about. The several courses I took in the Yale Music School have aided me in an appreciation of dramatic music and the development of music, which have resulted in making my life's work all the more interesting. I had majored in Spanish with the intention of using it in South America as a stage band director or a night club orchestra leader; it has helped me in the vocal rendition of several tangoes that have made our programs all the more unusual.

Great Help From Psychology.

But it is the study of psychology that has really aided me in my music and contributed to my success in the various lines in which I now find myself; in the handling and treatment of those under me and those above me, my study of the various branches of psychology has been of great use to me.

Just one little psychological talk on speechmaking by one of the department heads who had made it his pet subject, has aided me in my delivery, not only on the stage, but at various formal and informal functions at which I have been asked or expected to say something. Moreover, psychology has been extremely valuable to me in shaping my judgment of what to play, when to play it and how to play it. It has helped me in my selection of tunes that looked like successful songs, and in my judgment of the crowds we play to.

Although for my own part the native talents that came to me through inheritance are greatly responsible for my achievements, I feel that my college training has helped me in many ways that I know of and many more that I am not directly aware of. Certainly a college training has never hurt an individual.

The boy who does nothing but carouse and dissipate at college would probably be even worse out of college, as, after all, that is a question of character, and I really believe that the requirements of college in classrooms and in sports make for the betterment of the individual and equip a man with a certain something that marks him apart from the rest of the community in which he continues to work after graduation.

WILD SCENES LAID TO OLGA EDWARDS

'KICKED AND SCREECHED'

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—Charles R. Jeffers, for 23 years confidential secretary to Nathan L. Amster, today recited to a jury his version of the embarrassment caused his elderly employer by the alleged importunities of Olga Eide Edwards. Miss Edwards is now on trial charged with having extracted from Amster nearly $200,000, most of it by threatening to expose him as the father of her child.

A visit from Miss Edwards to the Boston or New York offices of the traction magnate was a diverting occasion, as described by Mr. Jeffers—an event that caused the clerks and stenographers to stop work and stretch their necks to see and hear she entertained the help by allowing what was going on.

Once, he said, in the Boston office the child, Lee, now 6 years old, to circulate among them, prattling innocently about his "Daddy Amster."

Says $3,700 Collected.

"She kicked and yelled and screeched," Jeffers said, and the epithets which he testified she applied to Amster and himself were vivid and uncomplimentary.

Last fall, in a period extending from October 15 to November 11, just before Amster had her arrested, Jeffers said Miss Edwards collected from his employer a total of $3,700.

On October 16, he said, she rushed into Amster's office and shrilly declared:

"I'm through with these petty demands. I want $300,000 in United States currency."

Police Take Stand.

"I asked her," Jeffers said with a smile, "whether, in view of the small amount she wanted, she would have it now or after lunch."

On the day of Miss Edwards' arrest, Jeffers said he met her by appointment in the apartment of Louis Whicher, Amster's friend who testified yesterday. Taking with him five $100 bills, which he had marked with his initials. Detectives also took the serial numbers of the bills, he said, in order further to identify them. After she had accepted them, she was arrested.

After Jeffers had finished, the district attorney started calling members of his staff and police who participated in Miss Edwards' arrest. The detective who actually made the arrest will be the first witness tomorrow morning.

STEEL MERGER PLAN HELD LAW VIOLATION

ponent, and of Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland, associate counsel for Sheet & Tube, who has taken leadership in the propone\'s' legal battle.

Mr. Baker stated in open court this afternoon that even if the merger is confirmed by inspectors of election at the Sheet & Tube stockholders meeting "and Bethlehem so notified, that company will tell Sheet & Tube to get rid of its litigation before the deal can go through."

"Is it conceivable that a madman would go through with a deal like this as long as there are suits lying around?" Mr. Baker asked. Mr. Eaton, in a statement yesterday, said that he would "fight the merger to the last ditch," assuring his opponents that there will be plenty of lawsuits "lying around."

Next Meeting April 22.

Observers pointed out that the regular annual meeting of stock holders must convene, under the company's by-laws, on April 22. In view of Mr. Eaton's determination the litigation would not be ended by that time. After April 22, many of the controversial shares of stock may regain their right to be voted on the merger. This includes the 51,038 shares held by Otis & Co., which they bought after the last date of record. These shares also include 40,000 bought by other individuals after the last date of record.

The 51,038 will be voted by Eaton forces, who also claim a large number of the 40,000. Mr. Eaton now controls 310,000 shares, and the voting of the 91,038 in his favor would give him a total of 401,438, more than enough to block the merger, according to the observers.

In an amendment to a temporary restraining order this afternoon, Judge C. S. Turnbaugh held that vote on the 91,038 shares of controversial stock could be announced but it could not be recorded.

Merger Blocked, Claim.

Counsel for Myron C. Wick, jr., of Youngstown, chairman of the opposition proxy committee, to whom the restraining order was granted, interpreted Judge Turnbaugh's amendment as enjoining consummation of the merger. Arguments of the question of making the injunction permanent are scheduled to be held tomorrow.

Mr. Eaton, if he loses the fight to enjoin the recording of the 91,038 shares, intends to declare the stockholders' meeting of last Tuesday night illegal. He contends that the vote was "railroaded through" by merger proponents over several objections.

The sixth session of stockholders held this week on the merger vote met today, heard Judge Turnbaugh's decision and adjourned until 3 o'clock tomorrow.

Jury Trial Probable.

Attorney E. Russel Kelly, who represents Sergt. Letterman, stated that he probably would ask for a jury trial, although he still was undecided about a trial by the court.

Mr. Murray explained that Mrs Harmon had told him that when Sergt. Letterman appeared at her door and asked for Eddie Croggan he shoved her aside.

Among the witnesses whom Mrs. Harmon has cited for her side are Mrs. Josephine Given, said to have been a member of the grand jury that went out of office on Monday, and Lillian McKinsey, colored, an elevator girl at the apartment.

BRISTOW NARRATES STORY OF HIS DAYS WITH BANDITS

joicing and he was enthusiastically greeted by the Mexican residents, among whom were the president of the chamber of commerce, the mayor and all the hotel employes from the owner down to the porters.

The American mining man, with a month's growth of white whiskers, was clad in overalls and a huge straw sombrero. Although well-nigh exhausted, he said he was feeling fit.

The homecoming party to Tepic was hardly more demonstrative, however, than the farewell party he described when he left the bandits Tuesday night after the ransom had been paid. They killed a wild turkey, roasted it, and gave him a farewell party, which they made an event of much hilarity.

Bandit Leader Like Robin Hood.

Mr. Bristow said he found Cruz Delgado, leader of the bandits, to be almost a Robin Hood, and to this leader's actions the American prospector owes his life many times over.

One of his closest escapes came one night when five bandits slipped through the lines of the federal troops to the neighboring town. They returned drunk and bent on the idea of hanging Mr. Bristow to the nearest tree forthwith.

Mr. Bristow was unable to plead his case in Spanish, so he argued for his life by the universal sign language and by tracing pictures in the volcanic sand. Delgado then took up his defense and finally talked the intoxicated bandits out of the hanging.

Taught Them to Play Poker.

To while away the time the captors taught Bristow Mexican card games and he in turn instructed them in poker. Some of them, he related, became really proficient at the latter game.

The bandits placed Mr. Bristow in the hands of three "retired" robbers when they sent him back. The strange quartet traveled seven hours by horseback over wild mountain trails to Ahuacatlan, where Mr. Bristow's son, the American vice consul, and newspapermen were awaiting him. Mr. Bristow arrived at 3 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Bristow said that before he had parted company with the bandits, who were eight in number, they had begun a course of mutual language instruction. He taught them a few words of English and they taught him some Spanish.

Fields' Arrest Predicted.

Fields, questioned by the Associated Press correspondent prior to Mr. Bristow's release, refused to answer when asked if there was anything to reports that he had delivered Mr. Bristow through a ruse to the bandits.

He said Bristow was "a good man" and he hoped he would be freed without harm, but he had washed his hands of the affair.

The early arrest of Fields, as a result of Bristow's charges, was predicted in Tepic today.

Capture Is Described.

Mr. Bristow said that when he saw the bandits he dashed for a small hut where the party's rifles were kept, but found them missing. The bandits disregarded the others in the party and coming straight at him made signs that he should put up his hands.

They then conferred with Fields and ordered Bristow, Fields and two natives to mount on mules and the whole party started up the mountain side.

At the top they found the bandit leader sitting on a rock. This man has been identified as Cruz Delgado, whom Bristow said he had seen two days before sitting on a bench in the Village of Santa Maria del Oro, where his prospecting party was formed.

Fields Talks With Leader.

According to Mr. Bristow, Fields then took Feliciano Flores, second in command of the bandits, aside, and they engaged in a loud and long argument.

Finally Fields returned and said the bandits had agreed to accept 800 pesos (about $376), for which sum Mr. Bristow should write a check and Fields would go to Tepic and get it cashed.

Mr. Bristow said he protested, whereupon Fields, he said had become vicious and insulting. Therefore, surrounded by the bandits and their rifles, he did not dare resist and complied with the demand.

Glassmans Score Liquor Indictment

File Plea in Abatement, Protesting Recourse to Canceled Checks.

Herbert Glassman and David Glassman, who were indicted last month by the January term grand jury along with eleven other men on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law, yesterday filed pleas in abatement, attacking the validity of the indictment and the legality of the grand jury.

Through Attorney Alvin L. Newmyer the Glassmans set out that the United States attorney caused the issuance of a subpena duces tecum against a Washington bank, requiring the institution to present before the grand jury certain canceled checks on the two defendants' personal accounts. This, the pleas recite, violates the constitutional rights of the defendants, causing them to be witnesses against themselves.

Twelve other alleged points are raised in the pleas. Right of women to serve on the grand jury, the method of selecting the body and allegations that the jurors who voted for the indictment were not the ones who heard the testimony are among the points raised.

Kernahan Speaks Before Kiwanians

Delegates and Alternates to 1930 Convention Are Chosen at Meeting.

Two delegates and two alternates to the international convention at Atlantic City, June 29 to July 3, were named yesterday by the Kiwanis Club of Washington at its regular weekly luncheon in the Washington Hotel. James B. Edmunds, president and George H. Winslow, secretary, were the delegates chosen, while Charles H. Pardoe and Edwin F. Hill are the alternates. All selections were unanimous.

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, leader of the religious survey and visitation campaign which is being conducted in the Capital and environs, was the guest speaker. He chose as his topic, "Pleasing Personalities."

A report by Charles W. Pimper, chairman of the orthopedic and welfare committee, showed that the Visiting Nurse Society employed by the club to care for crippled children had cared for 59 clinic patients and made 170 visits to homes in the last month. The society reported raising $300 to train a nurse in orthopedic work, the Community Chest providing no fund for this purpose. One of the three nurses now employed is soon to leave the service.

Basil Miles' Death Quiz Is Dropped

U. S. Attorney and Department of Justice Officially Suspend Inquiry.

Inquiry into the death of Basil Miles, Washington diplomat, who died suddenly in 1928 while recuperating from an operation in Emergency Hospital, was officially dropped yesterday by both the United States attorney's office and the Department of Justice.

Both departments, in formal statements, declared that no evidence had been uncovered to indicate that Mr Miles died "of anything but natural causes."

The investigations, begun several weeks ago, have extended from coast to coast and are said to have involved several socially prominent persons. New York newspapers caused the inquiry by printing rumors to the effect that the diplomat had died of poison. Mrs. Miles, who is now Mrs. H. H. Rogers, wife of the Standard Oil magnate, was not questioned.

AMERICA ENSLAVES ELECTRICAL POWER

Billion of Dollars Will Be Spent This Year on Home Appliances.

$400,000,000 ON RADIO

Special to The Washington Post.

Peoria, Ill., April 10.—New York which ranks behind Chicago, Philadelphia and Detroit as a leading American user of electricity, nevertheless stands above any European city in its utilization of current. It uses only two-thirds as much as Chicago, but four times as much as London and more than twice as much as either Paris or Berlin.

Americans' use of current has reached a point where they will expend more than a billion dollars this year for household electrical appliances and merchandise alone, exclusive of tremendously bigger investments in the field of industry, according to Silas H. Altorfer, home utilities manufacturer. Radio sets and tubes may run to an additional volume of $400,000,000.

Stating that output of electrical power in the United States this year will exceed one hundred billion kilowatt hours for the first time, Mr. Altorfer pointed out that more than 4,000 towns and villages have added electricity in the past five years, an increase in communities served of 25 per cent.

"The last old-fashioned strongholds of 'hand-operated homes' are vanishing," he said. "In the smallest hamlet one can banish darkness with the flick of a switch, swish clothes clean in a porcelain tub instead of wearing one's self out over the old washboard, spin them dry for the line in the water extractor that has succeeded the outdated wringer. Spinner washers, vacuum cleaners, percolators, toasters, no wonder that we use as much electricity as all the rest of the world, although our population is only one-twentieth the total."

sance," he declared. "Lack of voting privileges in the District should have a tendency to level up citizenship. Patriotism is on a higher level in Washington than elsewhere in the United States. And it would not be wise to destroy the tranquility of this ideally situated university city with ballot boxes and the other paraphernalia of national elections."

Other speakers at the meeting were Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancelor of American University, the Rev. Dr. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University and Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of District schools.

Clark Pleads for Education.

Dr. Clark made a stirring appeal for continued support of education institutions in the National Capital. He referred to the importance of an expansion of research learning and told of what progress is being made in this direction. He pointed out that colleges in Washington must be beautiful to fit in with the setting of the National Capital.

Dr. Ryan gave a concise outline of the growth of Catholic University and told of the general plan of development of the university. He echoed the opinion of Dr. Wilbur that an atmosphere of quietus must be preserved in Washington for the benefit of education.

Listing of the most important requirements for an efficient school system featured the address of Dr. Ballou. These needs were a competent personal staff, an adequate program of instruction, adequate buildings and proper financial support. Dr. Ballou expressed advocation of a system of free public education extending from kindergarten through the university. He devoted the final portion of his speech to a description of what education is doing for the business man in creating demand for the finer things of life on the part of educated persons.

Marks was ordered held under $2,000 bond for hearing next Tuesday. Samuel Hardy, Department of Justice Agent, and P. L. Arrington, a policeman of the Fifth Precinct, are among the witnesses who will be heard at that date.

M'CORMICK BATTLE TO BEGIN IN OCTOBER

Illinois Nominee, Back in Capital, Plans Vacation in Wyoming.

WORK HAS ACCUMULATED

(Associated Press.)

After being whirled into Washington with a flag-waving welcome from her women colleagues in Congress, Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, victorious Republican nominee for the Illinois senatorship, announced yesterday that she will not start campaigning for election until October.

For she is looking forward to a rest in her ranch retreat in Wyoming, in the rugged Jackson Hole country, in the interim between the close of this session of Congress and the fall campaign.

"Just a little log cabin," is the way she described it, adding, "my ranch, not my farm."

Mrs. McCormick's home farm in Illinois is a business, not a recreation, and the remote Wyoming spot obviously has a great lure for a woman who has been making many campaign speeches.

The campaign just over she would not discuss. It was "all over," she said, and she pushed it into the past with a final gesture of her hand. Nor would she talk about her appointment to visit President Hoover today at 5 p. m.

She was "swamped," she said, "completely swamped," with work that had piled up in her two Washington offices while she was campaigning through Illinois. She made no appearance yesterday on the floor of the House, so the majority of her colleagues had no opportunity to express their reaction to her victory. First to welcome her at the station, however, was a Democratic sister representative, Ruth Bryan Owen, a warm personal friend of many years' standing, though their fathers were political foes. Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), California, and Mrs. Alice Longworth were also in the station crowd.

Mrs. McCormick's daughter Katrine accompanied her from Chicago, and her son Medill, 13, and her little laughter Ruth Elizabeth, called "Bazie," met her at the train.

Narcissus Show In Takoma Open

Awards Are Announced for Annual Takoma Park Exhibition.

A real treat, in the form of the fifteenth annual narcissus show of the Takoma Park Horticultural Club, awaits flower lovers at the Takoma Park branch of the Washington Public Library. There narcissi, jonquils, hyacinths, pansies and other flowers in varieties too numerous to mention are to be seen.

W. T. Simmons, with his numerous fine entries, won the greatest number of first awards this year. His collection of 24 blossoms won a blue ribbon, as did his King Alfred trumpets and several other varieties. W. H. England and E. C. Powell both took two blue ribbons and Fred Duehring, C. H. Popence, Miss Margaret C. Lancaster and Mrs. R. G. Pierce won one blue ribbon on their narcissus entries. Mrs. L. M. Spray took first honors on her hyacinths; Mrs. E. L. Crandall, on her tulips; Mrs. W. W. Stockberger, on her grape hyacinths; Miss Marjorie Hansen, on her squills, and Fred Harries, on his pansies.

E. L. Crandall, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, had charge of the show while B. Y. Morrison, of the Department of Agriculture, judged the flowers. The display will be open until 9 o'clock tonight.

PROCESS PURIFIES EUROPE'S WATER

Bunau-Varilla Conquering Microbes by Simplified Chemical Method.

DISAPPOINTED AT CANAL

Paris, April 10 (A.P.).—Fever balked Col. Philippe Bunau-Varilla years ago in his efforts to dig the Panama Canal, but he is conquering water microbes in Europe now.

He has discovered a new method of purifying water. The battle of Verdun, where soldiers drank impure water, spurred him to find a means of freeing water from all dangerous microbes.

His system has been adopted by a hundred cities of France and rapidly is coming into use by cities throughout Europe.

Col. Bunau-Varilla's method is comparatively simple. In the past chemists introduced vast quantities of hypochlorite, a salt, which made water bitter. He has devised a system of pumping hypochlorite into water, by which he is able to reduce the purifier to one-fortieth of the previous amount.

This pumping causes the chloride to produce violet rays, which sterilize and purify the water.

When typhoid fever broke out at Carassonne, France, citizens sent an appeal to this French engineer. The fever resulted from impure water, and Col. Bunau-Varilla then established his purification system in that city.

Deriving its name from Verdun, his method is called Verdunization of water.

McCormick Loses $1 On Tip From Mother

(Associated Press.)

His mother's victory in the Illinois primary left young Medill McCormick, 13, with a grievance.

In the gay excitement that attended Mrs. McCormick's return to Washington yesterday he attempted in vain to tell somebody about it. Finally spying a microphone set up to broadcast the informal celebration that occurred after his mother left the train, he strolled over to it.

"I don't know whether I'm glad or sorry that mother won," he said, "because I lost a dollar. Mother told me she was going to lose and I believed her. I put a dollar on it with our chauffeur, Lester, and then she went and won."

He reflected a bit and then added:

"Well, if mother gets elected it's all right."

CAMPAIGN PLANNED BY MRS. M'CORMICK

Prohibition Will Be Issue Between Lewis and G. O. P. Nominee.

FUNDS INQUIRY FAVORED

Chicago, April 10 (A.P.).—The task of selecting candidates at the primaries fulfilled, political leaders and voters of Illinois today began laying the groundwork for the fall campaign which finds prohibition put forward as the dominant issue between Ruth Hanna McCormick, Republican senatorial nominee, and James Hamilton Lewis, the choice of the Democrats.

Followers of the former Democratic senator will hold their convention at Springfield a week from tomorrow, getting the jump on the Republicans by adopting the first platform. Former Senator Lewis is to be the keynoter at the convention, and is expected to outline the principles on which he will make his race against the woman whose husband, Senator Medill McCormick, unseated him twelve years ago.

In defeating Senator Charles S. Deneen for renomination the people of Illinois ran true to form in refusing to send its senators back for more than one term. Since the Civil War only one Illinois senator has served two or more full terms. He was Shelby M. Cullom, who was returned to the Senate four times.

Latest figures on the victory of Mrs. McCormick over Senator Deneen today gave her a plurality of slightly more than 200,000. Returns from 6,672 of the State's 7,117 precincts gave Mrs. McCormick 651,052 and Senator Deneen 449,254, Cook County (Chicago), giving the Congresswoman 160,000 of her lead.

Late figures on the Democratic contest gave former Senator Lewis 218,298 votes out of 281,447 cast in 5,241 precincts. He had four opponents.

Informed of the Senate's action today in passing a resolution calling for investigation of campaign expenditures at this year's contests, Mr. Lewis said he was in accord with the Senate's views. He said the Senate did right by not waiting until the campaigns were over to take its action.

Virtually complete returns made little change in the Republican race for congressman at large, with Richard Yates, incumbent, and Frank L. Smith, who twice was refused a seat in the Senate, assured the nominations. None of Illinois' present delegation in the House who sought nomination failed to attain it.

rapidity with which it was collected during the closing days of the campaign. Mr. Hanna established the necessary connections with financial circles and then organized the collection of contributions as carefully as he had previously organized the distribution of reading matter. Banks, insurance companies and other large corporations were assessed in accordance with the benefits which they were supposed to receive. As a corollary to the practice of assessing corporations, it was found that large corporations would contribute to both parties in order to make sure that their business interests would be protected whichever was in power. Sometimes the money was given freely and voluntarily and sometimes it was demanded by political leaders."

Wheeler recounted some of the activities of Senator Grundy in campaigns and how he frankly told the lobby committee that the contributors considered their contributions as investments upon which they expected ample return.

Observers at the Capitol, however, did not expect Mrs. McCormick to experience anything like the hapless Bill Vare in 1926.

There are at least two skilled investigators on the committee, Senators Johnson and Wagner, but both by nature are chivalrous. It would take one of the out-and-out progressives who really believed the women when they said they wanted to be handled like men to go after Mrs. McCormick without kid gloves.

Not in connection with Mrs. McCormick, but there is reason to believe that Senator Norris is disappointed that some one like Senator Wheeler or Senator La Follette or Senator Blaine did not get on the committee.

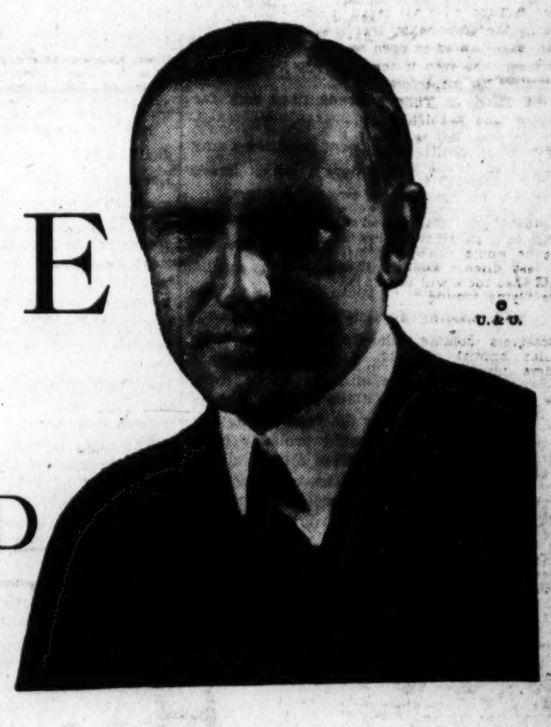
SPEAKS HIS MIND



MR. COOLIDGE has been a private citizen for a year. He has looked back over the events of that year, and in the forceful, direct—and at times epigrammatic—style that characterizes everything he writes, he tells his fellow Americans just what he thinks and feels.

We, of course, are proud that he again has chosen Cosmopolitan as the medium to convey his message to the country.

American Business Record-Breakingly Selects Cosmopolitan

A YEAR ago Calvin Coolidge chose Cosmopolitan as the magazine to publish the story of his life . . . a work that was an inspiring history of our times; and a noble record of progress from humble beginnings to the greatest office the American people can bestow.

Today, Calvin Coolidge confirms his original choice of Cosmopolitan as a means of speaking to the intelligent families of America.

The judgment of American business leaders coincides emphatically with that of Mr. Coolidge in selecting Cosmopolitan.

Here is the evidence:

16 consecutive issues have shown a gain in advertising linage and revenue—an unparalleled record among large monthly magazines.

June Cosmopolitan is the largest in advertising linage of any issue in the history of the magazine.

It beat its great record made the previous month, for May Cosmopolitan was up to that time the largest in advertising linage and revenue in Cosmopolitan's history.

We speak from knowledge when we predict that 1930 will be Cosmopolitan's most prosperous advertising year . . . what was a trend on the part of American business toward Cosmopolitan is now a habit.

THE ILLINOIS CAMPAIGN.

Former Senator James Hamilton Lewis does not lose a moment in his effort to make the Illinois contest revolve around the wet and dry question. He issues a statement thrusting this question to the front, and lays emphasis upon the suggestion that the people of the United States are in the grasp of a soulless, dry despotism concentrated in Washington. His statement might be taken by the ignorant as a cry for liberty or death.

Mrs. Ruth McCormick is not to be caught napping in the forthcoming contest. She is an aggressive fighter, quite as resourceful as her gallant opponent. She may not acquiesce in the opposition plan to make the wet and dry issue the exclusive feature of the campaign. Other issues are arising, and no one knows what will be paramount later in the summer. Senator Lewis' League of Nations record may become an important consideration if the world court protocol should be come an issue.

The Republicans of Illinois are hard to alienate. If they had preferred to be wet rather than Republican they would have given Al Smith a plurality, but Hoover carried the State with nearly 500,000 votes to spare. The prohibition question cuts across parties rather than dividing them. Mrs. McCormick may call upon Senator Lewis to declare whether or not he favors the enforcement of law. His statement goes very far toward advocacy of lawbreaking. The voter who looks deeply into current conditions may look askance at any program which has a tendency to break down respect for law.

Before the eighteenth amendment can be modified or repealed, if the people are determined to change it, there must be a solid sentiment in favor of some concrete substitute. Mere dissatisfaction with existing conditions is not a platform. Mrs. McCormick is warranted in asking Senator Lewis what proposition he has to offer as an improvement upon prohibition. He may be embarrassed in answering, for the reason that any plan he may propose would probably meet with as much opposition from other wets as it would from the drys. The wets suffer a disadvantage in not having reached an agreement upon a substitute for prohibition. The drys hold a tenable position, at least, when they insist that law, as law, should be respected and obeyed. It is not up to them to propose modification or repeal. The responsibility for offering an improvement rests with the wets. Thus far they have not found it possible to agree among themselves upon any program.

CROPS ON RECLAMATION PROJECTS.

Overproduction of agricultural crops has brought so much distress to the American farmer that every enterprise designed to open up new lands or improve the quality of areas under cultivation is viewed with suspicion. The Government's reclamation projects have occasoned severe criticism. On one hand, it is said, the Government is trying to curtail agricultural production, and on the other is extending the area available for cultivation. Facts and figures show that the inconsistency is more apparent than real.

Dr. Elwood Mead, Commissioner of Reclamation, announces the results of a census of crops grown in 1929 on Federal irrigation projects. The aggregate yield was valued at $161,272,000, or $59.40 per acre. This is double the average value of crops per acre for the United States as a whole. Foremost among the products were alfalfa hay, which was fed locally to range and dairy cattle; cotton and cottonseed, a large part of which was the long staple variety; potatoes, apples, sugar beets and similar food crops.

"Analysis of the figures of acreage and the value of specified crops," says Dr. Mead, "discloses that these Federal oases in the desert are the source, for the most part, of specialized crops which compete only slightly, if at all, with the crops grown in the more easterly humid regions." It should be noted that in the United States there is a shortage of long staple cotton such as these areas produce.

The wheat from irrigation projects amounts to less than six-tenths of 1 per cent of the Nation's crop and the percentage of other grain crops produced in these oases is much smaller. Most of the crops are hay, seed, sugar beets, fruits and vegetables which do not enter into glutted agricultural markets.

The opening up of new lands for production of staple crops of which the country already has a surplus is obviously costly folly. But noncompetitive crops should be produced. Greater diversification of crops should relieve the distress of the wheat, corn and cotton producer. Few reclamation projects put virgin land under cultivation. Most of them simply make it possible for farmers already located to produce more profitably. If the crops thus made possible do not compete with the staple products of which there is a surplus the tendency should be to extend rather than restrict the market of the staple grower.

COOLIDGE AND THE SENATE.

Former President Coolidge writes a most interesting article in a current magazine, extracts from which have been made public in advance. Referring to the possibility of holding office again he says:

> When I left Washington I left public office. It is an incomprehensible relief and I have no intention of returning to it. If I were in the Senate it would not be agreeable to many of my colleagues, and with all of my desires to be helpful it would probably oftentimes be an embarrassment to the administration. To have a former President in Washington exercising political power would result in all kinds of uncomfortable complications. Only the necessity of serving in some national crisis, so great as to subordinate all other considerations would warrant it. Nor do I have any sympathy with those who are discussing again making me President. The service that I could give to the people in that office I feel is done.

This expression is frank and characteristic. It does not dampen the enthusiasm of Coolidge admirers. They can not find in it an insuperable obstacle to the nomination and election of Mr. Coolidge in the event of "some national crisis," which may be interpreted to mean a crisis in the Republican party.

When Mr. Coolidge refers to the "embarrassment to the administration" that might result from his serving in the Senate, it is obvious that he means the present administration. It would not cause him any embarrassment to serve during a Democratic administration, and any embarrassment he might bring to such an administration would not bother him. Like all other Republicans, he desires the success of the Hoover administration. He would not run the risk of embarrassing it by taking a seat in the Senate.

There is a precedent for electing a former President to the Senate. Andrew Johnson, after two failures, succeeded in reaching the Senate on March 4, 1875, and he made at least one brilliant speech there, facing members who had voted to impeach him. History does not record that either Johnson or the Grant administration was embarrassed by his presence in the Senate.

FRANCE'S POPULATION PROBLEM.

Ever since the World War France has been making desperate efforts to increase its depleted population. In spite of all that has been done the birth rate has fallen steadily. Now a sudden upturn in the death rate is spreading alarm throughout the country, for deaths exceeded births last year by more than 12,500. This issue can not well be injected into international politics, but it may be viewed as one of the reasons why France is demanding a security pact at London.

Marriages and births are on the decline, deaths and divorces on the incline in France. Despite the cries of statesmen that "France must live, not die," the depletion goes on. In 1920 there were 834,411 births in France, compared with 728,540 in 1929. The annual number of deaths rose from 674,621 in 1920 to 741,104 last year. The birth rate in France is about the same as it is in England and Belgium. A decrease is shown in the statistics of every civilized country. But France has the unfortunate combination of a low birth rate with a high death rate, and therefore has the smallest percentage of population increase of any European country.

The most recent statistics available show the percentage of gain in Germany to be six times that of France, that of Britain five times as great, and that of Spain, Bulgaria, the Netherlands, Portugal, Italy and Lithuania to be from 10 to 12 times as great. Since France suffered an actual decrease in native population last year, the disparity is now still greater than those figures indicate.

The natural increase of population in the United States is about 7.4 per cent annually, which is nearly six times that of France. In addition this country is drawing immigrants at a rate that is unknown in Europe. Japan is likewise making rapid gains in population, and is confronted with the difficult problem of securing a hinterland into which its surplus people may flow. It is not surprising that France is alarmed at is own diminishing strength. Other nations are struggling against diminishing population, but nowhere is the problem so acute as in France. Coupling this situation with the geographical location of the French republic, it is not difficult to understand why that nation is persistent in seeking added guarantees of national security.

SAFEGUARDING BEAUTY.

The Shipstead bill as approved by the Senate on Monday would provide an effective safeguard against the construction of unsightly buildings adjacent to public structures and parks. The Commission of Fine Arts and the District Commissioners would be given authority to regulate such development along the lines of good taste and public interest. A reasonable degree of control would be exercised over the height, color, texture and general appearance of buildings erected adjacent to the Capitol, the White House, Pennsylvania Avenue between those two structures, Rock Creek Park, the Zoological Park, the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, Potomac Park, the Mall and its adjacent buildings.

When application is made for permits for construction or alteration of any building adjacent to or abutting on any street bordering these areas, it would be submitted to the Fine Arts Commission for approval. The commission could approve or suggest changes that would make the development harmonize with its surroundings. The District Commissioners would be given authority to enforce "reasonable compliance with such recommendations."

When an attempt was made to extend architectural regulation to all property in the District numerous protests were made. But this bill, relating only to the more important public areas, was unopposed. Most owners of property adjacent to beautiful public structures realize that the value of their holdings is increased by the accident of their location. Owners are usually willing to cooperate with the Fine Arts Commission in preserving architectural harmony. But to take care of unusual cases a statutory safeguard is necessary.

The Capital is now in the midst of an extensive building program. It is of the utmost importance that the beauty and dignity of public grounds be preserved from unsightly encroachments in adjacent areas. The House can make a notable contribution to the orderly development of the Federal City by early enactment of this measure.

OUR AGREEMENT WITH JAPAN

By Commander H. H. FROST, U. S. N.

A month ago I suggested in The Washington Post a plan for limiting naval armaments. While this had in view a five-power treaty, it may be interesting to recall that in it the United States was alloted a total of 547,000 tons of cruisers, destroyers and submarines and Japan 379,000 tons of similar craft. The ratio was 10 to 6.93. This was considerably above the ratios discussed in the Washington and Geneva conferences.

John L. Balderson states that the tentative agreement "in principle" between our delegations at London gives us 526,200 tons against 367,000 for Japan. The ratio is 10 to 6.98. Not only are the ratios almost identical, but the details of the proposals are remarkably similar. I state this fact merely to show that I am in complete support of the figures given by Mr. Balderson—even though they involve great sacrifices from a naval viewpoint. In general, Japan concedes us a 10-6 ratio in 8-inch cruisers, while we concede them a 10-7 ratio in 6-inch cruisers and destroyers, and parity in submarines. It was a three-to-one trade.

These figures are fair to us. But apparently a number of restrictions and reservations are being agitated at London. These on the one hand, restrict our building to the allotted totals, while permitting Japan to build above them or gain other advantages. I use the word "agitated" advisedly, because they are obviously proposals advanced by the Japanese which our delegation has not accepted.

First, we hear that only fifteen 8-inch cruisers may be completed by the United States in 1936. There is a proposal that the first additional cruiser may be commenced in 1933, the second in 1934, and the third in 1935. If this be so, in 1936 we will have one about two-thirds finished, another above one-third, and the last just commenced. Thus the three ships under construction in 1936 will have an actual value equivalent to one completed ship. So, instead of having 180,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers when the treaty expires, we will actually have only 160,000. Of course, after 1936 the Japanese have an absolutely free hand. Actually, therefore, the treaty gives us only 506,200 tons of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, instead of 526,200. In 1936, when we enter the next conference, the actual ratio with Japan will be 10 to 7.23.

Second, there have been many indications that Japan is much dissatisfied with her allotment of 108,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers—her one and only concession to us. If we decide to commence our last three 8-inch cruisers in 1933, 1934 and 1935 Japan very much desires to match them with 18,000 extra tons of similar vessels. Clarence K. Streit in the New York Times says that we must decide in 1932 whether or not we intend to build our last 30,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers and communicate our decision to Japan, which "would be in a tactically better position to reopen the 70 per cent question in 1932." Assuming that one Japanese cruiser of 10,000 tons were commenced in 1933 and one of 8,000 tons in 1934, the equivalent of one ship of 10,000 tons would be ready in 1936. That would raise her total to 377,000 tons and the ratio would then be 10 to 7.45.

Third, Japan has proposed to substitute for 20,000 tons of destroyers an equal tonnage of submarines. That obviously would increase the power of her fleet quite considerably. It is reported that both British and Americans are combating this proposal.

Fourth, Japan has requested that she may replace certain vessels before their age limits have been reached. The reason stated is that it is necessary to keep her shipbuilding plants in operation. However, this also will very considerably increase her naval power, because new ships are probably 50 per cent more efficient than those at the age limits. This applies with special force to the proposal to replace existing 8-inch cruisers.

Fifth, according to the Associated Press, "Japanese naval officials are reported to be planning a demand that part of the savings likely to be effected by the naval agreement be used for increased naval air forces." It is suggested in Tokyo that the air squadrons be increased from 17 to 28. After the Washington conference the money saved by Japan by the limitation of capital ships was used to build cruisers, destroyers and submarines which were still not limited. Now that these types will be limited, the savings are to be used for increasing the air squadrons. Of course, there will be no legal restriction on the formation of these eleven new air squadrons—any more than there was on the enormous programs of cruisers, destroyers and submarines which all the great powers but the United States commenced after limiting capital ships at Washington.

These last two proposals show how little weight Japan gives to economy as compared with national security. When one considers how three successful wars have made her one of the greatest world powers, one must admit that her reasons are good.

Our delegation at London has made no detailed official statement of the contents of our tentative agreement with Japan. It has maintained throughout an attitude of absolute fairness toward that nation. We believe that they have been maintaining, at the same time, the legitimate interests of their own country with skill and firmness. We further are confident that when the agreement is announced it will allot to the United States 180,000 tons of 8-inch cruisers and to Japan 108,000 tons—without any restrictions or reservations.

HARDWOOD ASHES.

Gardeners frequently ask if coal and wood ashes make good fertilizer for garden soils. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, wood ashes from hardwoods contains considerable potash and a little lime, and are a valuable fertilizer. Fairly dry unleached hardwood ashes may be applied at the rate of not more than 50 pounds to 1,800 square feet. Wood ashes from softwoods, and hardwood ashes that have been exposed to the weather and have had the potash leached from them, have little fertilizer value. Coal ashes have little value as fertilizer, their use being mainly to loosen the soil and make it more workable. On heavy clay soils, coal ashes tend to lighten the soil.

UNIVERSAL SYMPTOMS.

All hearts rejoice in welcoming
The first green buds of early spring,
All pulses faster seem to beat
When first the breeze blows soft and sweet,
And none indifferently can pass
The first red robin on the grass.

The tired old man exults to see
The tender leaf upon a tree,
Even the scoffing cynic will Delight to find a daffodil,
And toilers at some grim machine
Proclaim the tulips they have seen.

The first blue skies and sunbeams stir
The blood of prince and commoner
And set all eyes and cheeks aglow,
With happiness they have to show,
And all express in humbler ways
What poets sing in lofty praise.

Not all in poetry can sing,
The beauty of the coming spring,
Some tell it with a lifted eye,
Some with a glad word passing by,
But strangely that first crocus small
Makes happy poets of us all.

The Most Hated Enemy Is One Who Caused You to Hate Yourself.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MANY years ago a man named Smith quarreled with a friend and made plans to get revenge.

The friend was treasurer of the lodge to which both belonged, and kept such unprofessional records that nobody could understand them without an interpreter.

Smith took advantage of this carelessness and began to whisper insinuations that resulted in a neighborhood quarrel, a lodge trial, and an audit of the books.

The treasurer was declared innocent and Smith withdrew from the lodge.

Thereafter, until the day of his death, his heart was filled with malice. He compiled a list of those who had voted to acquit the treasurer and called them his enemies because they would not hate his enemy.

He talked of little else, and brooded over his fancied wrongs until he seemed always on the verge of madness.

Does it seem reasonable to you that a man should embitter his life and sacrifice his friends merely because his enemy was acquitted of wrong-doing?

Consider another and similar case.

A young woman of unusual ability married an older man who owned a profitable business.

She became his chief assistant and learned the business so well she could handle it successfully during his occasional absences.

After a few years she began to make frequent reference to the difference in their ages and so worked on his fears and his affection that he consented to sign papers delivering the entire business to her.

Within a year she brought suit for divorce on the ground of cruelty. She had stripped him clean and had no further need of him.

But she was not content to stop there. While he lived she continued to persecute him in countless subtle ways and publicly and privately to defame and slander him.

Her heart was filled with a malice that gave her no peace.

How do you explain such cases?

They are efforts to soothe a nagging conscience.

Hate is a kind of "defense mechanism"—an effort to justify wrong.

If an enemy wrongs us, we can forgive him or in the course of time forget; but if we wrong another man, we must hate him more and more to convince ourselves that he deserved such treatment.

We dare not forgive him or concede that he was blameless, for thus we would convict ourselves of wronging an innocent man.

Hate is a fire that needs refueling; and if there are no continued wrongs to inspire it, there is a guilty conscience that is afraid to let the embers cool.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Slow-Poke Driver More of a Nuisance Than a Menace—Considerate Drivers on the Increase.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent statement in your letter column that "the 'slow-poke' driver is the greatest menace of the highway" is too extreme, in my opinion. It is the temperamentally eager and headstrong driver who is the greatest menace of the highway. It is he and not the slow-poke driver who is responsible for fatal accidents in which victims are tossed anywhere from 20 to 30 or 40 feet along the roadside.

To say that the slow-poke driver is the greatest nuisance of the highway may be correct. But in this respect he is sometimes equaled by the speed-up driver. As a regular street car patron I have observed that the latter very often forces his way thoughtlessly in front of street cars and thereby causes traffic jams quite as unnecessary as those of the slow-poke. And everywhere, in his thoughtless anxiety to get there, he needlessly slows up traffic on congested streets.

But fortunately the selfish slow-pokes and speed pokes are comparatively few. After all a vast majority of the common run of drivers are useful and accommodating, and in my walks about the city I am glad to note that the number of those who may truly be called golden-rule drivers is on the increase.

Flimsy School Shacks Will Bring Disaster and Death in Time of Storm.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It does seem strange that, in the Capital of the greatest country in the world, thousands of school children are housed in buildings so flimsy that they are likely to be blown to pieces by the violent storms which frequently visit this section. A slight increase in the wind which tore the roof of the Jefferson Junior High portable the other day and a calamity it makes one shudder to think of would have resulted. The same thing has happened before and will continue to happen from year to year, until finally the dreaded calamity will occur.

It seems to me that in making appropriations for school needs the first consideration should be the safety, not to speak of the comfort, of the scholars. There is something barbarous in the contrast between palatial office buildings for grown-ups and rickety shacks for school children. "Is civilization a failure and is the Caucasian played out?" A Wet Hopes Howell Plan to Search Homes Without Warrant Will Pass, So That Public Will Wipe Out Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a soaking wet I hope the Howell bill permitting policemen without warrant to enter District homes in which they think they smell booze will become a law. My guess has been that it would take another ten years to bring about a sane modification of the Volstead act. But the widespread reaction from the proposed legal outrage should bring about the early repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Wet as I am, I have never felt inclined to look on the drys as actual "fanatics." But the fact that they fail to realize that prohibition is in the way of being done to death by dry intolerance indicates that too many of them are fanatical.

Government Is in the Grain Gambling Business, So Why Not Go Into the Power Business?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial which appeared in Sunday's edition, "Norris Socialism," was quite interesting.

You expressed a fear that if the Government enacted the Muscle Shoals resolution "it would force the Government to enter into business in competition with its own citizens." Why overlook the fact that the Government is now in business on a very gigantic scale (grain and cotton)? If the Government being in business is right and helpful, why not try the power game? This would reach more people than any branch of business I know of, and I am quite sure would prove less hazardous to the taxpayer.

Judging from what is now taking place in the grain and cotton markets the Government is in the gambling business.

George Washington did surveying for a time in an orderly, limited way. But we have progressed, says the New Republic. Often efficiency destroys romance—but there is nothing dreary or machine age about the Alaska aerial survey. Airplanes equipped with cameras have discovered a hitherto unknown power site of more than 20,000 horsepower in the Tongass National Forest. Before this aerial expedition began operations very little of Southeastern Alaska had been surveyed.

The chief beauty of the Tongass National Forest lies in the fact that it can supply 25 per cent of the pulp paper needs of the United States in perpetuity. Under forest service administration the timber will be cut no faster than it grows.

INGALLS BARES CUTS IN NAVY PLANE SUMS

Tydings to Ask Comparison of Nations' Aircraft at Session Today.

FUNDS HELD INADEQUATE

(Associated Press.)

David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary for Aeronautics, yesterday told a Senate committee that naval estimates for aircraft development had been consistently cut down by $1,000,000 by the Budget Bureau during the past three years.

The statement resulted in heated argument between the official and Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, with the latter questioning persistently in order, he said, to find out whether "the Budget Bureau, the President or Congress" were responsible for what he termed American failure to keep abreast with other nations in development of fast airplanes.

Ingalls' statement followed an assertion by him that the Navy is engaged in a study of the feasibility of pursuing speed development "with the money we now get from Congress." The Secretary said the investigation started last fall, after the only American plane under preparation failed in tests for the Schneider cup races.

Tydings called upon Ingalls and other high naval officials to give a comparison of American and other nations' navy planes today in the privacy of executive session, explaining that he wanted "the whole story" from the Navy.

The committee began its investigation on Monday. Lieut. Alford J. Williams, racing pilot, testified he resigned from the Navy instead of obeying an order transferring him to sea duty. He said he wished to carry forward high-speed experimentation.

Tydings criticized failure of the Navy to come to Congress over the heads of the Budget Bureau after Ingalls said that the Navy had received $2,000,000 instead of the $3,000,000 it had asked for aircraft development during the last three years, with the result that only a small amount could be devoted to speed development.

Ingalls responded that such demands, if made by Navy officers to an appropriations committee, would be "considered insubordination because the budget figures have been fixed by the President."

The Secretary said that the Navy had abandoned its racing program in 1924 "for reasons of economy."

Chicago Swelters In 90-Degree Wave

City Unprepared for Rise in Temperature After Recent Blizzard.

Chicago, April 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Chicago was smothered in a hot wind from the Southwest today that drove the temperature up to 90 degrees, breaking all existing records for any April. The hottest April day which heretofore had the record was April 1893, with a temperature of 83½.

The heat came up from Kansas and caught the city unprepared. Two weeks ago Chicago had 19 inches of snow and the worst blizzard of the year. Heavy garments were in service today when the heat arrived.

From a low of 50 early this morning, the mercury began a leap that marked 70 at 7 a. m. Early workers began shedding outer garments on street cars. The mercury kept on climbing until 4 p. m., when the 90 mark was scored. By that time the street crowds had reached shirt sleeves. The whole West suffered from the heat wave and none worse than Kansas, where a drought has prevailed for a month. This has sent the price of wheat up 10 cents a bushel.

Film Official Denies Guilt in Studio Blaze

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—Through counsel, John C. Flinn, executive vice president of the Pathe Sound Studios, Inc., pleaded not guilty before Judge George F. Donnellan in general sessions court today on an indictment charging second-degree manslaughter.

The indictment, which also named Harry F. Lalley, studio manager, resulted from a studio fire at 134th street and Park avenue last December in which eleven lives were lost. Flinn was given ten days in which to file motions or change his plea and bail was set at $5,000. It was said that Lalley was on his way here from California and probably would be arraigned for pleading next week.

Ruling Asked on Double Rum Case Prosecutions

(Associated Press.)

Attorney General Mitchell yesterday asked the Supreme Court to decide whether the Government may prosecute sellers of illegal liquor under both the prohibition enforcement and internal revenue laws.

The question arose in a case brought against Anthony Lafranca, proprietor of the Delmonico Restaurant in New Orleans, La., convicted under the Federal prohibition law. The Government failed in the circuit court of appeals when it attempted to also prosecute him under the internal revenue laws for failure to pay taxes imposed on retail liquor dealers.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

HERBERT HOOVER is radiant over reports from North Carolina indicating that the Republicans may capture a senator there this fall, possibly, and also have a better chance than was expected some time back of holding the two seats in the House gained in the anti-Smith landslide.

Mr. Hoover has never liked the thought that his great victory was due to any considerable extent to religious prejudice. Down at Miami, just before inauguration, it will be recalled, Stuart W. Cramer, of North Carolina, then under consideration for Secretary of the Navy, was asked whether the Republicans could hold their gains in the South if they did not have the religious issue to help them. Mr. Hoover was also interested in the extent to which prohibition had played a part. Mr. Cramer talked quite freely to the newspapers about this interesting conversation and, probably as a result of that, was promptly eliminated as a Cabinet possibility.

But the incident tended to put emphasis on Mr. Hoover's hopes and desires with regard to the South. His recent appointment of a Charlotte judge to the Supreme Court, surprising all the forecasters and all of his friends, has drawn more attention to that same wish.

* * * *

THE truth is that if there is any chance at all of North Carolina sending a Republican senator to Washington it is due not to any particular Republican strength, but to bitterness and dissension inside the Democratic party in the Old North State. Gradually the resentment against Senator F. M. Simmons has been developing into possible action.

Lieutenants and friends of the veteran statesman have been dropping away from his organization, one by one, until the old Simmons machine has been pretty well whittled down. It is a surprising situation, in a way, because Simmons as a matter of fact in 1928 was voicing the sentiments of a considerable majority of the people of North Carolina, even if it happened to be a minority of those who regularly voted the Democratic ticket. Smith lost North Carolina by about 64,000.

* * * *

BUT the Democratic leaders who feel bitterly toward Simmons are all the more resentful because of that very fact. They point out that they supported men picked by Simmons, as boss, whether they liked them or not, but that Simmons, the moment the national convention picked a man he did not like, threw the party down. It is quite true that most of these very leaders did not like Smith much better, if any, than Simmons did. It is also true that they had followed Simmons all these years not so much from sheer loyalty as because their bread happened to be buttered on that side. Opposing Simmons has not been very nutritious, politically, for the three years which ended with the Smith campaign.

But now, with a chance to smash Simmons, the "regulars" are flocking to Josiah W. Bailey, a brilliant orator who has never, hitherto, shown much genius for political organization, but who seems to have capitalized the anti-Simmons sentiment to his own advantage. Bailey is making a strong race against Simmons, and he has been smart enough not to inject any bitterness against the old leader in his speeches. The bitterness is there, under the surface, in the hearts of the leaders and some of the rank and file. He does not need to rouse it.

* * * *

SUCH a course, his friends point out, would merely result in arousing sympathy for the old lion—a sympathy which might easily sweep him to victory again. Bailey is not wet, or even moist. He is a former editor of the Biblical Recorder. So on the "great moral issue" he is satisfactory to the very men and women who followed Simmons out of the Democratic party in 1928.

Gambling on his chances—for they do not believe they could defeat Simmons—the Republicans are in a mad scramble for the senatorial nomination. For the first time in a generation they will be forced to hold a primary to select the nominee. Leaders had picked David H. Blair, former commissioner of Internal Revenue, against the possibility of Simmons' defeat in the primary. But so far he has not entered.

Maj. George E. Butler, brother of former Senator Marion Butler, has filed in the Republican primary, as has Henry G. Dorsett, a Baptist preacher. Representative George Pritchard, of the Asheville district, will, it is believed, also enter. They may all be wrong. Democracy may triumph. But it looks inviting.

GANDHI PREPARED FOR EARLY ARREST

Will Wait in Motor Car for Officers When Time Comes, He Says.

SUFFERS FROM ILLNESS

Jalapur, India, April 10 (A.P.).—Mahatma Gandhi, the veteran Indian Nationalist leader who has been manufacturing salt this week in defiance of the government monopoly, said today he was fully prepared for arrest.

He said he would be sitting in his motor car with two or three books whenever the arresting officers came, prepared to accompany them, but was not prepared to go to jail through shedding blood, as some newspapers had reported. Newspapermen who had reported his words in that sense either had misunderstood his language or else his language was at fault, he asserted.

The Mahatma had an attack of his old complaint, high blood pressure, this morning so he was forced to rest most of the day. Tonight he went to the marshy plains near Abrama to urge mass civil disobedience.

Youths In Altercation.

Before he arrived some Indian youths and officers of the excise department had a slight altercation over contraband salt, and when Gandhi reached the place a crowd of women rushed to welcome him. The leader greeted them and then led the group in taking salt from sea water. Later, in a speech, Gandhi said that last night he was disturbed in his sleep by a figure which told him he was going to be arrested.

In a letter to a friend today, Gandhi referred to the arrest of civil disobedience leaders in the Gujerat district, and said the inhabitants should now be urged to carry on without leaders. He repeated his instructions that volunteers should not surrender their contraband salt "even if their wrists are broken."

"Whether all can do this or not only experience can show," he added, "but faith can move mountains. The people may weaken if they like but they should not abuse or injure officers and should go to jail cheerfully.

Bombay Gives Cash.

"Our object is to prevent as far as possible our salt from getting into the possession of the government, and to distribute it to every house and village."

A deputation from the Bombay Stock Exchange visited the mahatma this morning and presented him 2,000 rupees (about $720). Gandhi promised to visit Bombay shortly to infuse enthusiasm into the people of that city, and he urged them to boycott foreign cloth and break the chains of foreign domination.

From Patna tonight came word that four men had been sentenced to prison for violating the salt laws in the Saran district. Naravan Prasad Singh, former member of the legislative assembly, was sentenced to one year's simple imprisonment.

Meanwhile, collection of illicit salt in numerous parts of Gujerat is continuing. The social boycott of government officials in several areas of that state is growing more intense. It is reported that in some cases they have been denied necessities and supplies are being rushed to them.

VETERANS' AGENCIES MEASURE TRIMMED

House Cuts Out Provision Intended to Help in Consolidation.

HOOVER IDEAS BATTLED

(Associated Press.)

Increased opposition to President Hoover's proposal for consolidation of governmental veterans' agencies succeeded in the House yesterday in striking from the Williamson measure a provision to authorize the Chief Executive to eliminate and redistribute functions of the various organizations.

Led by Representative Gasque, of South Carolina, ranking Democrat on the expenditures committee, supporters of the Pensions Bureau, which handles Civil and Spanish-American War veterans' affairs, by a vote of 96 to 63, pushed through an amendment removing a section of the bill which they said would permit abolition of the agency.

Opposition to the measure developed unexpectedly in the House Tuesday after Chairman Knutson, of the pensions committee, said the proposal was conceived in the Veterans' Bureau even though it was sponsored by the American Legion and other World War veterans' organizations.

After a day of bitter wrangling, the House adjourned with final passage of the bill uncertain, many of the administration followers being absent from the Capital. Republican leaders have yet to decide whether consideration of the measure will be resumed before Monday.

Chairman Williamson, of the expenditures committee, author of the bill, said off the floor that while the Gasque amendment deprived the measure of some of its elasticity, he did not feel that it would destroy the purpose of the bill.

An effort may be made to restore the provision of the bill giving President Hoover authority to consolidate the Veterans and Pensions Bureaus and the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers into a new organization to be known as the "administration of veterans' affairs."

Representative Cramton, of Michigan, chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee handling the Pensions Bureau allotment, warned that enactment of the bill would pave the way for a pensions system for World War veterans. He added that the Pensions Bureau, dealing with a comparatively small number of former service men, would be submerged in the new organization, with the World War veterans receiving the bulk of attention.

U. S. WOMEN SEEK AUDIENCE AT HAGUE

Doris Stevens Demands That American Delegation Hear Their Plea.

EQUALITY OF SEXES AIM

The Hague, April 10 (A.P.).—Miss Doris Stevens and her colleagues of the National Woman's party of the United States today demanded an interview with David Hunter Miller and the full American delegation to the conference for the codification of international law, asking Mr. Miller "to uphold President Hoover's pledge to the women that the United States delegation would be instructed to work for equality in nationality."

They further requested him, continuing efforts begun several days ago, to endeavor to prevent the adoption by the conference of the nationality convention drawn up by its committees.

Mr. Miller made no comment on the request. Pressed by the women, he disavowed responsibility for the Dutch official action in recently closing the Peace Palace, where the conference sessions are being held, to all except delegates and accredited journalists.

Miller Withholds Comment.

When he was reminded that the delegates of other countries, notably Uruguay, had protested against exclusion of the women propagandists from the palace he again refused to make any comment.

After this interview, Miss Stevens declared: "I feel that the United States delegation has shown no initiative in carrying out the expressed wishes of President Hoover and of American women. If the true state of affairs here were known at home, the women would not tolerate inaction on the part of our representatives."

Commenting on the order barring women from the palace, issued yesterday by Theodorus Heemskerk, president of the conference, Miss Stevens, chairman of the inter-American women's commission, affirmed that equal rights for all was the watchword of the women attending the sessions at The Hague.

Equal National Rights Sought.

"Since the beginning of the conference we have made it very clear that we are here for the sole purpose of seeing that all conventions should be based on the principle of equal treatment between men and women on their nationality rights."

She asserted that "the expulsion order was a drastic measure taken to prevent failure of adoption of the nationality convention."

Mayor Denies Plotting With Slot-Machine Ring

Scranton, Pa., April 10 (A.P.).—Former Mayor Edmund B. Jermyn, charged with conspiracy in permitting the operation of slot machines under police protection, today took the witness stand in his trial in the Lackawanna County court, and made a complete denial of the accusations against him.

Jermyn, a millionaire, and twice mayor of Scranton, is one of the principal figures in the crusade against slot machines in the city. Harry J. Friend, former civil service commissioner in the Jermyn addministration, is also on trial. WICKERSHAM UNDER LOBBY HEARING FIRE

Wheeler, which said that Mr. Wheeler, as head of the Antisaloon League for many years, controlled six Congresses, dictated to two Presidents and directed legislation in most of the States, Representative Tinkham demanded:

"What respect should be given a law shown to be a composition of a highly paid and a powerful lobbyist?"

Representative Tinkham denounced the prohibition law as "coercion of Congress by lobbying and a vast expenditure of money" and as a "perversion of representative government."

"It is to lead to lawlessness" he asserted, "because people knowing those things will not respect such a law."

Expressing the opinion that in no other country is legislation dictated by persons outside of Congress, Representative Tinkham added that unless the United States adhered to the "sound American principles of government" this country would ultimately become a "dictatorship."

spective bridegroom had just purchased.

Arriving at the License Bureau, the girl and boy, both bashful, walked up to the clerk and asked for a license.

Detective Sergts. Bagby King and T. J. Sullivan, who, by the way, still are a romantic pair, hesitated at first to halt love's sweet symphony, but duty called and they questioned the pair.

"You are too young to apply for a license," the policemen chorused.

"Indeed, not," replied the bashful, but still defiant, bride-to-be, "I'm 18 years old."

The detectives, however, decided to take them in custody. Miss Teele was taken to the House of Detention and McIntyre was lodged in the First Precinct.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Fetes Are Set For Japanese Girl Visitors

Unofficial Envoys Will Be Greeted by Hoovers During Stay.

As cherry blossoms and magnolias reach their peak of loveliness in Washington five Japanese maids of noble lineage, bringing greetings from Tokyo and Yokohama, will slip into the picture to add to the official season a touch of feminine diplomacy. Laden with gifts for persons of rank in American life the smiling maids of Japan will arrive on Monday to express to President Hoover and the American people the gratitude of their country for aid during the earthquake of 1923.

Coming to the Capital from St. Louis the young women will be guests at the Mayflower during their four days' stay and will be received by President Hoover.

As honored visitors and guests of the United States Chamber of Commerce and of Mr. John Barton Payne, of the American Red Cross, several days of entertainment have been arranged. On the evening of their arrival the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi will give an informal supper and on Tuesday will entertain at luncheon when they will include also a group of Japanese friends.

A reception in honor of the five maidens will be held in the assembly room of the national headquarters of the Red Cross at 3 o'clock on Tuesday. On Wednesday the girls will be the guests of Mr. Payne at luncheon and later in the afternoon Mrs. Larz Anderson is giving a tea. The United States Chamber of Commerce will entertain at luncheon on Thursday.

The young women are Miss Kimiko Ashino, whose brother is Consul at Portland, Oreg., and who is related to Mme. Debuchi, wife of the Ambassador of Japan; Miss Yoshiko Matsudaira, niece of the former Ambassador to the United States. Her sister married the Crown Prine of Japan; Miss Yoshi Sato, third daughter of Baron Sato, and classmate at the Peeress' School with Princess Chichibu, who was at that time Miss Satsudo Matsadaira, daughter of the Ambassador to the Court of St. James; Miss Sumiko Tokudo, daughter of a former paymaster in the imperial army and a winner of the Lincoln essay prize contest, and Miss Keiko Nakamura, of Yokohama.

Dispatched to America, not as official envoys of their government, but through the initiative of the Jiji Shimpo, Tokyo newspaper, the young girls are accompanied by its representative, Mr. H. Yokoyama, and by Mrs. Toshiko Matsadaira and several companions. Chosen by the foremost schools and organizations of Japan, they come with the support of their government and bearing the good will of their people. While in Washington the girls will be chaperoned by Mrs. John K. Caldwell.

The girls represent families high in social and official life in Tokyo and Yokohama, the cities hardest hit by the earthquake and largely rebuilt through the aid of contributions from the United States. The completion of reconstruction in the two cities prompted the mission of good will which extends to the larger cities of this country.

Chairman John Barton Payne will welcome them. Mr. Cyrus E. Woods, attorney general of Pennsylvania, Ambassador to Japan at the time of the earthquake, will receive with Mr. Payne, together with the following members of the reception committee: Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Merritte W. Ireland, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles E. Riggs, Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, Solicitor General and Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, jr., Col. and Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell, Mr. and Mrs. James K. McClintock, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Fieser, Miss Isabel Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Macveagh, Miss Clara D. Noyes, Miss Elizabeth G Fox, Miss Clyde B. Schuman, Mrs. Isabelle W. Baker, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. Keefer, Mrs. Theodore W. Richards and Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson.

Japanese flags will be flown with the American flag from the American Red Cross Building, and will be used for decoration in the assembly hall. Forty members of the Junior Red Cross from District of Columbia schools will greet the visitors, presenting flowers and souvenirs, and members of the various services of the District of Columbia Chapter will be present, wearing the distinctive uniforms of their services. The Marine Band Orchestra will play. Mr. Payne and others of the reception committee will escort the young ladies over the Red Cross Building and through the Museum.

Mr. Payne has invited to meet the group at his home on Wednesday the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi, Mrs. Toshiko Matsudaira, Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Col. and Mrs. Ernest P. Bicknell, Mrs. John K. Caldwell, Mrs. H. C. Corbin and Mr. Hideomi Mori.

As chairman of the committee of women members of the Chamber of Commerce arranging a luncheon at the Mayflower on April 17, Judge Mary O'Toole will preside. Although the Ambassador of Japan and Mme. Debuchi are invited to share honors with the quartet of maidens, it is not certain that they will be able to attend the luncheon. Among the guests at the luncheon will be Mrs. Merritt O. Chance, president of the Women's City Club; Mrs. Karl Fleming, president of the American Association of University Women; Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Voteless League of Women Voters, and Mrs. Richard Gasch, president of the District League of American Pen Women.

Hoffman, Miss Mary A. Lindsley, Miss M. Pearl McCall, Mrs. Ada C. Payne, Mrs. Caroline B. Stephen, Mrs. Mina C. Van Winkle and Miss Marjorie Webster.

$20,000 OPPORTUNITY CAMPAIGN
Wonderful Prizes Now Ready for Victors

After holding the unwavering interest of the community for weeks, and establishing a new record in the newspaper annals of this section, the last chapter of The Post's great $20,000 Prize contest will be written Saturday when delivery orders for the big automobiles and radios, now waiting at the various salesrooms, will be presented to the candidates named on this page. Since the auditors took charge of the checking of votes the count has progressed steadily while thousands of people anxiously awaited the result. Rivalry was intense and competition very close for some of the prizes, but The Post feels assured that the successful ones merited the prizes for which they so earnestly strived. The conduct of the count has been methodical and businesslike and conducted with the greatest accuracy through the efforts of the official auditing company. The staggering task of tabulating votes and verifying the authenticity and character of each subscription was approached with a genuine desire to expedite the process and to relieve at the earliest possible moment the anxiety which must be felt by every competing candidate.

Winning Candidates

Those whose names are here listed as winners of Automobiles or Radios are requested to call at the campaign office, for orders that will deliver their prizes to them, on—

SATURDAY, APRIL 12
Between 10 A. M. and 5 P. M.

Other candidates will receive their commissions by checks which will be mailed within the next few days.

From now on this is YOUR paper and you will find it ever active in serving the best interests of your community, reflecting your sentiments and giving you the news of all the world with extreme accuracy, completeness and timeliness. A Message to Those Who Did Not Win

In any contest there must be losers. If there were not there would be no joy in competition, no glory in winning. But the loser in a race, the defeated baseball team, the vanquished fighter feels no regret if he has done his best. They offer no alibis—they realize that the other contender must have given just a little more energy, had a trifle more stamina, the greater determination to win. This contest throughout has been conducted by the fairest rules of sportsmanship and has been reflected in both the character and activities of candidates. The Post regrets that it is not possible to award every worker an automobile, but it extends its deepest appreciation to all those who helped to make this campaign such an overwhelming success.

TWO LUNATICS HELD AS BRIDEGROOM DIES

Charged With Slaying as Bride Tells Police of Attack Near Auto.

PAIR ESCAPED INMATES

San Antonio, Tex., April 10 (A.P.).—Two escaped inmates from the San Antonio State hospital for the insane were charged with murder today after the mutilated body of J. W. Bradshaw, bridegroom of a month, was recovered from the Guadalupe River, 40 miles northwest of here.

Although Homer Edwards and Ernest Young were formally charged with the slaying, their insanity status will preclude prosecution for murder.

The body was found after Bradshaw's bride reported to county officers she was forced to wait in an automobile near the river last night, while Edwards and Young, who recently escaped from the State hospital, took her husband away and a short time later returned to the car and said "we have given him the beating of his life."

Officers hurried to the scene, on a farm near Waring. They found Bradshaw's clothes rolled up in a small clump of bushes. A short distance away they located the body, mutilated and weighted down with rocks, in the clear water of the stream. The bridegroom had been shot in the head.

Edwards and Young were arrested here and taken to the Kendall County Jail at Boerne. Both were adjudged insane after they had been convicted of robbery and theft.

Mrs. Bradshaw, sister of Young's wife, told officers she and her husband were kidnaped yesterday and were driven to the farm near Waring. Her alleged kidnapers were arrested early today and charged with kidnaping before Bradshaw's body had been recovered.

Two Are Shot to Death In Alleged Bank Holdup

Fort Worth, Tex., April 10 (A.P.).—Two Negroes who attempted to rob the First State Bank of Polytechnic, a suburb, were shot to death today in the bank. Assistant Cashier J. M. Fry was wounded, perhaps fatally. One of the Negroes was shot down by Detective H. E. Weatherford, and the other was slain by John Alsup, special guard at the bank.

Mr. Weatherford, stationed on a balcony, opened fire at the two Negroes when they commanded Fry and other employes to "stick 'em up." The Negroes returned the officers' fire, and one of their bullets struck the assistant cashier in the head.

Man Killed, Wife Hurt As Automobiles Crash

Trevose, Pa., April 10 (A.P.).—William J. Brogan, of Baltimore, Md., was killed and his wife injured today when their automobile was overturned in a collision on the Lincoln highway here.

Theodore Miller, of Eddington, Pa., driver of the other car, surrendered to the State police at Langhorne.

Death of Woman Writer Held Suicide by Police

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—The body of Florence Bloodgood, 31, a writer, was found in her gas-filled apartment in West Tenth street today. Police said she committed suicide.

Two notes were found directing the disposal of her belongings.

Stabbed Convict Refuses To Name His Assailant

Trenton, N. J., April 10 (A.P.).—John Doris, a convict, was stabbed and seriously wounded while marching from the mess hall to his cell in State prison today.

He refused to name his attacker.

CLERIC IN RUM RAID DENIES POSSESSION

Minnesota Pastor Is Arrested by Dry Agent in Hotel Room and Jailed.

LIQUOR FOUND IN HIS BAG

St. Paul, Minn., April 10 (A.P.).—The Rev. William F. Diehl, of Faribault, Minn., arrested in a hotel raid yesterday, denied today that any liquor was served to him, that he had purchased any liquor, and that he had any knowledge of how a bottle of liquor happened to be in his baggage.

The minister, known throughout the Northwest for his activities in the Lutheran Church, recently resigned the pastorate of St. Lucas Evangelical Church at Faribault, effective May 1.

Maurice L. Silverman, assistant prohibition administrator, said the minister would be charged with possession of liquor. Mr. Silverman said liquor was found in the minister's traveling bag and that two drinks were on the table at which he and Henry Yeske, one of the hotel proprietors, sat when the place was raided.

Dr. Diehl, held in the county jail, said he had come to St. Paul on business. Having some extra time before returning to Faribault, he said he talked to Mr. Yeske and his partner about the sale of some furniture on behalf of a member of his congregation.

He said Mr. Yeske suggested to go to a room upstairs. After a short time, the minister said he left the room for a few minutes and just after returning the agents entered.

"They asked me if the bag was mine and I said it was. They opened it and found a package inside of which I had no knowledge. It was a bottle of liquor. I did not buy the liquor or put it in my bag. I did not see any one else do it. I am not a drinking man. There were no drinks on the table or any other liquor around that I saw."

Mr. Yeske and Albert E. Kallsen, proprietors of the hotel also held in jail, corroborated the pastor's statements regarding the furniture transaction. Both asserted he was innocent of wrong doing but declined to comment further.

Citizenship Papers Revoked by Court

Man Who Deserted Ship Must Comply With Statute, Is Declaration.

Holding that no alien has the right to naturalization unless all statutory requirements are complied with, the District Court of Appeals yesterday revoked citizenship papers granted by the District Supreme Court to John Nickoloan Kreticos, a native of Greece, who deserted his ship and filed a declaration of intention to become an American citizen on April 12, 1922. The opinion was written by Justice Peyton Gordon, of the District of Columbia Supreme Court, and reverses Justice William Hitz, of the same tribunal. Justice Gordon sat on the appellate court bench last month during the absence of Justice Charles H. Robb.

Justice Gordon ruled that Kreticos' entrance into the United States was a mere landing and that he never has begun his residence in the United States and can not begin to reside continuously until he enters in accordance with the requirements of the immigration laws.

The court held further that naturalization laws must be interpreted and construed in connection with the immigration laws.

Sale of Madison Birthplace Made

Chicago Man Is New Owner of Belle Grove, Virginia, Estate.

Belle Grove, birthplace of President James Madison and beautiful old plantation on the Rappahannock River in King George County, Va., has just been sold to John P. Hooker, of Chicago, for an undisclosed price, through the office of the L. S. Scott Corporation of this city.

Mr. Hooker until recently was president of the Chicago Real Estate Board and is prominent in the business and social life of that city. It was stated that he and his family will in the near future make Belle Grove their permanent home.

President Madison spent most of his youth at Belle Grove and also owned the estate of Montpelier in Orange County, Va., which later belonged to the late William du Pont. The Belle Grove house is surrounded by the traditions and history of the colonies. It is of purest colonial architecture, the details of which have frequently been referred to in architectural journals. The plantation comprises approximately 600 acres.

Man Seeks Annulment Of Marriage in 1927

Asserting that the woman he married June 4, 1927, at Alexandria was not legally qualified to enter into a marriage contract, Francis Vehue, of 2422 Eighteenth street northwest, yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court to grant him an annulment of his marriage to Cecelia Vehue, of Calvert street northwest near Nineteenth street.

Vehue tells the court through Attorney Harlan Wood that his wife divorced a former husband in Wisconsin in July, 1926, but that under the terms of the court's decree she was prohibited from remarrying until after a year had elapsed. He asserts that he knew nothing of the prohibition and expresses the belief that at the time she was still the wife of the other man.

Dutiful, Anyway

During the latter part of 1917 I was trying to conduct an officers' mess near Langres, France. Due to the shortage of Army cooks, two old French women were employed as cooks and a young artilleryman was detailed as K. P. We used Army ranges and had a half hogshead connected up to the waterbacks to furnish hot water for the dish washing.

The French cooks could speak no English and the K. P. could speak no French, consequently there was much discord and many misunderstandings. The K. P. was disgusted with his job from the start, but he kept at it fairly well until one afternoon, after he had taken aboard a bit too much vin rogue, the cooks completely floored him. When I visited the kitchen a short time later he asked for immediate relief.

It seems the cooks wanted the K. P. to carry some hot water from the barrel to the sinks. They had pointed to the barrel and cried, "L'eau, l'eau, l'eau!"

"Lieutenant," complained the K. P., "I can't stand this any longer, these women are crazy and I soon will be. Do you see that barrel over there? I've poured water in it until it is running over and still they are yelling 'Low, low, low!' I'm going to duck them in it if they don't shut up."

"The Lost Pants"

You all have heard that story of the "Lost Battalion," but I am going to tell you the story of the "Lost Pants"—and to the individual it will mean just as much:

We were in reserve back of Conde-en-Brie awaiting the German developments in July, 1918. It was very quiet, "the lull before the storm." The very quietness of the front was a dreaded silence. We had pitched our tents in a small clump of rather high bushes, and had made it as much like home as possible. We even acted as if we were home.

The war was forgotten momentarily and we would retire with no preparations for an emergency. Thus we lived each day, doing routine duties and at taps would undress, smoke, talk of home and various subjects and retire in "de luxe" style.

On the evening of July 17 we retired as usual, laying our clothes neatly on a pile, taking our smoke and having a treat in the way of some chocolates one of the boys had gotten at the "Y." One by one we dropped off to sleep and soon the little camp sounded like a sawmill of no mean proportions. During the night, around 12 o'clock, "Fritz" arose and began to send over some of his choice assortments of street cars, mustard for our sandwiches, shrapnel, G. I. cans and what not, all lighting rather close to our quarters. Up we all jumped and each made a dive for his clothes—it was a scramble (but I got mine), shoes, socks, pants, jackets, and what not, sure was flying around. Everybody hit for the dugout, there remained but one lone soldier crawling around on his hands and knees crying above the din, "Where are my pants? Who has my pants?" The distress of the call beckoned us back and we at once began a thorough search in the dark for the lost pants.

For what can a soldier do at the front without his pants? With great promptness the lost pants were soon found—50 feet away from the nearest pup tent lying in a manner and position that indicated they had been thrown wildly into the air and drifted sloppily to earth.

The pants were put on and we returned on a "double-quick" to the dugout. The humor of the situation only lasted for a short time, however, for soon the mangled and torn were brought in and the war was on.

Nous Comprey!

While with the Graves Registration Service I was checking over the records of burials in French civilian cemeteries. Stopping at a crossroads cemetery, I looked in vain for the three or four American graves that were supposed to be there.

I saw a peasant coming down the road, so stopped him and asked in my best A. E. F. French, "Where find themselves the graves of the American soldiers?" The peasant explained that they had been exhumed, but so peculiar was his accent, and so limited my powers of comprehension, that his response did not register.

Evidently the peasant had had previous experience with Americans and knew with which French words they were familiar. In desperation he finally declared that they had all promenaded to Souilly.

A False Alarm

We steamed out of Hoboken one night, the latter part of February, 1918, on the transport Agememnon, formerly Kaiser Wilhelm II, a German boat. In this convoy were two other transports and a couple of cruisers, one being the Seattle, which carried Secretary of War Baker over. About the fifth day out, late in the afternoon, while on deck, there was an outburst of bells ringing, and our boat gave several long blasts from her whistle and stepped out full speed ahead. At the same time the Seattle on our left made a quick left turn and looked as though she was going to stand straight up, and fired two shots in quick succession, at what was claimed to be a submarine periscope.

We were all ordered to our respective quarters in order that we could reach our designated raft or lifeboat, in case we were torpedoed, as we had been drilled.

Nothing further happened that afternoon, but about midnight there was a terrific grinding noise, which sounded as if the boat was being torn apart, the sudden shock throwing several men from their bunks. I am sure that the majority felt the same as myself, that we had been torpedoes, after the excitement we had the afternoon before. We were assured that nothing had happened, but learned the next morning that one of the transports had gotten off its course, as we were all running without lights, and had crossed our path, and it was necessary to reverse our ship's engines to prevent a collision.

It was a grand and glorious sight that greeted us the next morning, as several United States subchasers had come out from the other side to escort us through the danger zone.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

Flowering Plants For Partially Shaded Places.

OF LATE I have had a great many letters from readers inquiring about plants which will grow and bloom in places hardly shady enough to require ferns and yet having too little sun to enable many of the usual garden plants to do well. These requests have been so numerous that I have decided to devote an entire article to this subject.

As I have so often said, flowering plants must have sun—not necessarily sun the entire day, but at least a part of the day. The following plants are all flowering, and though with the exception of the spring flowering bulbs they are not gorgeous, they are beautiful and worthwhile in every way.

First, let me suggest the myrtle. This always does well when once it becomes established. It is a rapid grower and will form a perfect carpet under a tree where even grass usually refuses to live. While its flowers are not bright, they are lovely, subdued, pale blue—a rather unusual tint which you are sure to admire. Myrtle is hardy and will withstand severe winter weather.

Forget-me-nots also do well in partial shade. They must, however, have sun a least an hour a day. You can set out even the smallest forget-me-not plants any time during the summer, for they will at once take hold and blossom until late fall. When the flowers begin to fade, cut them back, and thus encourage them to send forth more blossoms. You must also cut off the dead or dying blossoms to prevent their going to seed.

Tuberous-rooted begonias get along very well in partial shade; in fact, they crave such an environment. This variety of begonia must, however, have a rich soil and must be placed in well-drained loam. Do not forget that none of the begonia family is hardy, and that the tuberous-rooted varieties must have their bulbs lifted in the fall, to be kept in a dark, dry, warm place until spring.

Now, while those persons with partially shaded plots can not have especially radiant gardens in midsummer, they can have a gorgeous array of colors for at least six weeks in early spring. This should make up for a bit less color later on. I refer to the spring-blooming bulbs, which always do well in partial shade.

What could be lovelier than a bed of Darwin tulips, jubilant daffodils, starry narcissus, delicate snowdrops, piquant scilla and inquisitive crocuses which raise their wee buds before the last snowflakes have melted? You see, any one with a yard of ground at his disposal can have an attractive garden with even these few varieties.

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

"L'Enfante"—a youthful creation of black faille and tulle, with lovely touches of silver lame. (Courtesy of Bernard et Cie, Paris.)

Paris, April 10.

YOU will pardon me if I rave once more about fantastically enameled fingernails, won't you? Now that all Paris has gotten quite accustomed to them, one wonders how we ever lived without 'em! Flaming red? Pauf, an every-day occurence! Nacre (mother of pearl), pouf, a twice-a-week occurrence, may be, depending upon the individual taste and type of the wearer.

And then there is mauve, worn by lovely white-haired ladies with the mauve tints in their hair, which Antoine made so popular a few seasons ago. And green, worn by green-eyed females and others not green-eyed who match fingernails with jade or green cabochon.

You'd be surprised how accustomed you can get to it, how much you can really like it. Oh, it's just a fad, of course—so why not let's indulge to our heart's content before it becomes tiresome?

• • • •

Black moire, a lovely silhouette, and a silver appliqued flower tells the Bernard et Cie story of today's illustration. Oh, yes, the hem is edged in black tulle!

• • • •

Wouldn't a lovely black laquer screen with a simple design of gold or silver be a perfect background for a favorite vase? With black enamel by way of paint and tinfoil pasted down and varnished a certain way for the decoration, you can make this screen yourself—first sending, of course, your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about it.

• • • •

And then there are the new boudoir caps, which are so utterly unlike anything we ever remembered as a boudoir cap, that every one of us just must have one or two at least with which to cover our sleep-tousled locks for the morning cup of coffee. Lanvin's beautiful silver evening hat, with its classical and flattering lines, has been copied in lovely real lace for the boudoir—you know, I sketched it for you one day as an evening hat?

• • • •

Some Parisiennes like them so much they are wearing two of them to be doubly attractive—one on each arm or one on each hand! Modernistic bracelets and rings, of course.

The Russian artist is being ultra lovely these days in a red and black modernistically designed sweater, a black skirt, and, lo and behold, two modernistic rings, one black and one red, of cut crystal. It's so-o-o-o smart!

• • • •

In these days of backless evening dresses, when is a back not a back? The answer is—when it is an insert of very fine tulle, pale flesh, in a Mag-Helly evening frock, especially with black taffeta, or with white or silver lame. It gives a most softening and beautifying effect to backs that haven't been especially favored by nature.

Sometimes this flesh tulle appears in the front decolletage or subtly edges a gown of gold lace. The result is always graciously lovely.

Now for another interesting paragraph! The weekly Dare fashion letter appears each Sunday, exclusively in the Capital, in The Washington Post.

School Head to Study Overhanging Roofs

Elimination of overhanging roofs on portable schools, nailing down of the roofs and installation of rain spouts are expected to be recommended by school authorities as the result of the tearing off of a roof by wind of a portable building at the Jefferson Junior High School last Monday.

A study of portable schools of the District is to be made by Jere J. Crane, first assistant superintendent in charge of business affairs. The chief danger of the portables is thought to lie in the fact that the roofs overhang, thus giving the wind more leverage. The fact that the roofs are screwed down, instead of nailed, is pointed out as another dangerous feature. Mr. Crane is expected to make his recommendations to the Board of Education at its next meeting.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"ARIES."

IF APRIL 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this day are from noon to 2 p. m., from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m., and from 11 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7:30 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Those who may base their "luck" or happiness on material things, will not be particularly benefited by astrological controls on this date. Others, who look for mental treasures in their coffers, will find this a most auspicious time. Good for professional people.

The child born on this April 11 will be distinctly literary and artistic, and will be classed as a mental type individual. It will be highly strung, and will be inclined to suffer from "nerves," if it is allowed to dwell too much on self and self-interests. It will be tenacious in its beliefs.

You are superficial in some respects and very strong in others—selfish in many ways, and very unselfish in other directions. When it comes to your own comforts and pleasures, you let nothing and no one interfere. You graciously and good-naturedly step on people if they are in your way, and you can almost make them like it. You have that indescribable charm—possessed by a few—which has been called "it" by a popular present day author. It is the magnet which draws people to you. It is the power which blinds them to your faults. You are undeniably popular, and you will always have a following of fresh admirers.

You are unselfishly generous with your money—a liberal spender on yourself and others. You would probably share your last penny with a friend, although you would not make other more personal denials. You make an almost perfect host or hostess, but you are not the kind upon whom people would "drop in," at any time or on any occasion. You would not want to be bothered.

Many of the present day fads and cults interest you, but you will cleave to none indefinitely. You are restlessly in search of something more satisfying than the material life you are now living—your subconscious mind is trying to awaken the spiritual side of your make-up.

Successful people born on April 11:

1. Charles W. Couldock, actor.
2. Henry G. Marquand, philanthropist.
3. William O. Partridge, sculptor.
4. Paul Dwight Moody, clergyman.
5. George Canning, English statesman.
6. Charles Evans Hughes, Chief Justice.

WORK ON BRIDGE

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

Last Friday we considered some situations in which a Declarer who desired to obtain extra tricks in his dummy, might overlook the right way to do it merely because the wrong way seemed more obvious.

Suppose, playing No Trump, Declarer needs three Diamond tricks to make game; and that his two hands contain these Spades and Diamonds, dummy having no entry in either Hearts or Clubs.

Spades: K-x
Diamonds: K-Q-10-9-2

DUMMY
CLOSED HAND

Diamonds: J

If West led a small Spade, it would be "natural" to win with closed hand's Jack if East did not play the Queen; but how much better it would be to win with the Ace in the closed hand and keep dummy's King as an entry. Then the Diamonds could be led (dummy covering closed hand's Jack) until the play of the adverse Ace established that suit; after which the Spade King would put dummy in to cash the established Diamonds. Even with the seven adverse Diamonds divided 5-2, this play must ensure three Diamond tricks, whereas the Declarer might not take a Diamond if he won the first Spade trick with the Jack of Spades.

Another case:
Diamonds: Q-J-10-4-2
Clubs: Q-10-2

DUMMY
CLOSED HAND

Clubs: A-J-9

Supposing that dummy has no entry in either major suit and that a small Club is led, dummy playing the Deuce and third hand also playing small. Closed hand should win with the Ace, not the Jack or Nine. This play will not cost a Club trick in the end (Declarer would make two either way) and it will enable dummy, after closed hand's Ace and King of Diamonds have been played, to get in with a Club and run his three remaining Diamonds.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"A Hurt Spirit."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I have been such a constant reader of your column. I pin my hopes on the chance that you may be able to help me.

Five years ago, when I was 22, I had a child. I refused to marry the man, he belatedly offered, and supported the baby in a boarding home for three years. Then I was taken down with a complete nervous breakdown and gave him away although there was no adoption. Now, Miss McDonald, I am on my feet again after two years of every sort of hardship. I have a little shop and home above it where I could have my darling. But the woman will not give him up and her husband stands by her. The baby's father says he wants his child and wants to marry me. Now I love this child and want him and his father says I have not a chance if the foster parents go to court as I have no standing in a court as an unmarried mother. He wants me to marry him and then a court might give me the child. Must I marry the one who wrecked my youth, spoiled my whole life? I adored him, and he proved a coward when calamity came to me. He pleads youth, that he feared his people's wrath. His people know everything now, respect me, and want me to marry him and have a real home for the child. I do not want him or them, I only want my dear little son.

A MOTHER.

Poor child, you are sorely hurt, and your reaction any sensitive woman could understand. But if you can possibly forgive the child's father that would be best for all. If he were an older man and had forsaken you, my opinion in the matter would be different. But the very young boy who finds himself in the position you depict is as panicstricken as the girl. He was, momentarily, yellow and you went down into the depths from which no girl ever emerged quite the same.

There is no other tragedy of human experience quite so blasting, no other revelation of human frailty quite so devastating as love's betrayal, yet woman quivering in unbelief, suffering in soul and body does survive even this.

You have been brave. You deserve to be a happy mother, not just a worried mother. Try to forgive and establish a normal home for the small boy who means so much to you. There is no truth in the statement innocently made by the child's father, that an unmarried mother has no rights in court. Our laws are pretty dreadful, but we still concede that motherhood was known on the sad old earth long before marriage was. You have the right to the child. The sole question would be your ability to provide a proper home. Your status in court is the same as that of any other good mother, so you are entitled to the child, and can get him even without going to court by having an attorney call upon the foster parents.

But just to normalize your own life, to stabilize your own emotional organization, to heal the hurt spot in your spirit I suggest you try to love and to forgive the boy who erred as you erred only through youth. Won't you try?

MILK SOUPS.

(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

A good way to serve milk to children is in soups. Milk vegetable soups are made from cooked vegetables, chopped or strained, which in this form may be given to even the youngest children, and milk (whole or skim) slightly thickened. The vegetable may be asparagus, peas, beans of various kinds, celery, potatoes, turnips, carrots, spinach, kale, chard, beet roots or greens, parsnips, lettuce, cress, cauliflower or almost any other.

General Recipe for Milk-Vegetable Soups.

2 cupfuls of milk
1 tablespoonful of flour
1 tablespoonful of butter
Salt
2-3 of a cupful of a thoroughly cooked vegetable, finely chopped mashed, or put through a sieve.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

MR. HARRY RAPLEY, manager of the National Theater, was traveling abroad last year with his beloved wife. He met on the Mediterranean a celebrated wielder of the camera, Mr. Burton Holmes. Ma. Holmes took pictures of the Rapleys. They were shown, these pictures, on the screen of the National yesterday afternoon in the Holmes' travelogues having to do with the Mediterranean—and there were great gustos of applause as the audience recognized the distinguished movie picture subjects.

• • • •

Right after the travelogue, Mr. Harvey Cobb, the erstwhile newspaper man now turned lawyer, opened his new restaurant, the Press Grill—in the National Press Building. He had as his guests most of the confraternity; but sitting at the captain's table were Mr. and Mrs. Lange, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Jacob, Mr. and Mrs. Kolb, and this family. Shad roe was the piece de resistance which led Mr. Jacob to remark: "I wish shad more roe."

• • • •

Mr. George C. Tyler, the eminent producer, writes from New York that he has engaged the National Theater for one night—May 11—and will bring in his all-star cast playing "The Rivals." He asks: "What chance do you think I have of filling the National Theater on Sunday night?" Mr. Harold Phillips, sitting at the desk while Mr. Steve Cochran, the manager of the National, attends the races at Bowie, gives the answer: "If the theatergoers of this town don't hurry up and file their orders they won't be able to see 'The Rivals' at all, at all." And that's the talk. First come, first served.

• • • •

George F. Hummel, vice president of Horace Luveright, the publishing company, writes: "I am mailing to you Gene Fowler's book, 'Trumpet of the Dust,' which David Belasco will make into a play next season. Gene, by the way, is getting a gorgeous break in the press." And why not? Gene Fowler, 0 years sitting on a newspaper desk, always saw to it that someone or other got a gorgeous break. This is his turn. And may he make the most of it. Turn about, you know, is only fair play.

• • • •

Away up in New Haven, conn., where the Yale students sing Boola Boola in what remains of the old Taft Grill, Mr. Jed Harris, the producer, opened a night or so ago "Uncle Vanya," Chekhov's play. Of this the playful reviewer of the Evening Register had to say:

"For many reasons this opening should take rank as the most momentous theatrical event New Haven has known in a long time.

"First of all for the profound beauty of what is surely in existence; second, for the superb piece of staging done by Jed Harris, the producer; third, for the quite indescribable beauty and magic of Lillian Gish's performance as Helena, and fourth, for the delicately encompassed, minutely adjusted performance of the rest of the cast. And as a further ornament to the evening there were some fine settings by Jo Mielziner."

From this of course it will be seen that the Register Reviewer lived "Unde Vsuya." It was a good play when Poli's harbored the Moscow Art Theater several years back.

Tonight the devils will dance, and the flames of Hades rise high, as the far-famed Mask and Wig players from the University of Pennsylvania swing back and forth at the Belasco Theater in their newest production, "John Faust Ph. D." or "Faust As You Like It."

Commuters Elude Census Workers

Moran Leaves Blanks With Government Offices to Speed Up Task.

Elusive Government employes who live in Washington and work out of town are leading the takers of the present census a merry chase, it was learned yesterday.

The problem of locating these out-of-town residents of the District has become so serious that yesterday J. Sterling Moran, supervisor of the census in the District, made a tour of all the larger Government departments and distributed schedules which he asked the heads of the departments to mail to the field workers.

Mr. Moran announced that more than 50 of the enumeration districts have been completed and that the enumerators in these districts have been transferred to uncompleted sections. More than twenty portfolios were turned in yesterday. There are 403 enumeration districts in Washington, and half of these should be completed by the end of the week, Mr. Moran said.

NATS TAKE NINTH STRAIGHT, BEATING BRAVES, 8-1

Pegler

NEW YORK, April 10.—The baseball clubs are hobbling home to convalesce from their spring training and, by the time the season begins next Monday, the matters of salary and conditions of labor which have been agitated in the press again this year will have been forgotten.

Judge K. M. Landis was going to do something really drastic about the relation between the players and the magnates eight or nine years ago, but the courts are never impetuous and the habit of years on the bench still persists. As matters stand the contract between the player and the baseball firm is not binding on the firm and the athletes do business under a boycott.

A case of the moment is that of Ed Roush, the Indiana dirt farmer and center fielder of the Giants. Mr. Roush received $23,000 last year but was offered only $15,000 this year and that with a proviso that if he were hurt in the performance of his work the contract might be readjusted in the favor of the firm. He rejected the proposition on both counts and is devoting himself to the work of digging a cellar by hand on his acres at Oakland City, Ind.

Would Be Costliest Cellar.

Thus, the cellar on Mr. Roush's farm may cost as much per cubic yard of digging as though it had been a municipal project, executed by contractors with political connections. With common labor to be had for $4.50 a day, he will forego a $15,000 season in the baseball business to do it himself.

I am strangely calm about the grievances of all farmers, understanding that the rural vote is responsible for the policy of poisoning the alcoholic beverages of the city people, and still less excited about the plight of a farmer who can afford to turn down $15,000 a year.

But the point is that if the New York Giants had offered Mr. Roush no more than a nominal wage of $1 a year he would have had no choice but to accept the dollar or retire from the game. The baseball player must accept the wages offered him, and those who refuse are subject to suspension on the opening of the regular season and debarred from seeking employment in the same line of work elsewhere. That is, all the other firms in this baseball trust are forbidden by common agreement to offer him employment, which would be known as tampering.

Ladies of the Chorus Protected by Union.

The public always has taken an interest in the labor troubles of the baseball players, which is a curious thing in itself, because the patrons of the drama, who include most of the patrons of the ball clubs, never concern themselves about the amount of money which Mr. Jake Shubert or Mr. F. Ziegfeld pays his chorus ladies, comedians or juvenile leads. However, these entertainers, who are in reality the colleagues of the baseball players in the amusement business, have their unions, the chorus equity or the actors equity, as the case may be, which insist upon a standard form of contract in which their rights are protected.

If a chorus girl should decline to accept one dollar a week from Mr. Ziegfeld, she would still have the right to proceed a few blocks up the street and negotiate with Mr. Shubert, Mr. George White or Mr. Earl Carroll without prejudice. If any of these gentlemen should refuse to employ her on the ground that she belonged to Mr. Ziegfeld, the chorus equity would be quite likely to call out the casts of all his shows, and possibly call out the carpenters, the electricians and the saxophone players of the orchestra, as a demonstration of strength.

Are Dependent on Legs Like Ball Players.

I do not mean to insist that a producer is bound to give a chorus lady a job in such circumstances, because chorus ladies, like baseball players, are dependent on their legs for their livelihood. Mr. Shubert would be quite justified in saying, "Nothing doing, because the legs are too skinny," or "the legs don't get around as fast as they used to; try Coney Island."

In fact, Mr. Ziegfeld would not even be allowed to offer a chorus lady $1 a week in the first place because the chorus ladies have a minimum wage agreement with the producers who know the chorus equity will protect the working girl.

Having no union, the baseball players are plainly at a disadvantage. I have somewhere an old prospectus of a players' union, organized about 1921, and a roster of members which, in the first enthusiastic days of the union's existence, included all the prominent major leaguers. But gradually the strength of the union was waved out the majors and eventually out of the minors ot wind up in the

Voigt Reaches North-South Semifinal

Shoots Brilliant 67 to Beat Finlay, 4 and 3, at Pinehurst.

Somerville, Hunter Also Survive in Amateur Play.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 10 (A.P.).—Favorites came through handily today to win their matches in the second round of the North and South amateur golf tournament. Some of them, however, were forced to shoot a brand of supergolf to reach the semifinals step.

George Voigt, for instance, negotiated the tricky No. 3 course in a 67 to take a decision from Phillips Finlay, of Redlands, Calif., 4 and 3. The defending champion shot par or better on every hole.

C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont., hammered out a par 71 to defeat J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., 2 and 1.

Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., was shooting par golf, but was forced to stage a brilliant comeback to defeat J. A. Fownes, of Pittsburgh, by one up.

The fourth match saw James T. Hunter, North Adams, Mass., defeating W. E. Donahue, Newark, N. J., 4 and 2.

Voigt Takes Lead On First Hole.

Voigt started his brilliant work on the first hole with an easy par four. He went into the lead on the second hole and from that time was in front. He landed a birdie four on the hard sixth, repeated with a birdie two on the short seventh and again made a birdie on the eighth.

Finlay was two down at the turn and was unable to stem the tide, as Voigt continued his dizzy pace. Another birdie on the eleventh helped Voigt's card and the match was over on the fourteenth, which they halved.

Finlay's card shows he, too, was shooting spectacular golf, making a 73 on the 18 holes.

C. U. Battles Harvard; Maryland Meets N. C.

Two local college nines are due to perform on home fields today as Catholic University entertains Harvard at the Brookland Stadium and Maryland returns from a Southern trip to tackle North Carolina University at College Park. Both games are slated to begin at 3:30 o'clock.

In meeting Harvard, wnich yesterday lost to Georgetown, C. U. will be seeking its fifth straight win. Lee Hurley, Cardinal ace, is likely to oppose Devens, erstwhile Crimson grid star and reputedly the best pitcher of the Northerners. Harvard has not been particularly successful on its Southern trip, having lost three while winning one game.

Maryland will be seeking to stay above the .500 average while avenging an earlier defeat when meeting the North Carolinians this afternoon. The Terrapins were defeated by today's foe, 7 to 2, on the latter's stronghold. Harry Milburn, former Central High pitcher, will probably pitch for Maryland.

Giants Release Two To Cards for Roettger

New York April 10 (A.P.).—The New York Giants today traded Eddie Farrell, infielder, and George Fisher, outfielder, to the St. Louis Cardinals for Walter Roettger, outfielder.

Roettger joined the Cardinals in 1927 after playing with Syracuse in the International League, and Houston, in the Texas League. He was hitting .341 in 1928 when he broke a leg July 14. Last season he played only 79 games and never struck his hitting stride, finishing with an average of .253.

Farrell has been with the Giants and Boston Braves since he was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania. He joined the Giants in the summer of 1926 and was traded to Boston the next year. Last year another trade brought him back to New York. Farrell batted well in his first two years in the majors, but slumped to .215 in 1928 and .210 last year.

Fisher was purchased from Buffalo, of the International League, where he batted .338 last season, his hits including 36 home runs.

MARYLAND U. NINE BEATS VIRGINIA

Batson Hurls Runless Ball Until Ninth in 11-2 Triumph.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 10. Maryland's nine closed its Southern trip by trouncing Virginia here today, 11 to 2, breaking even on the jaunt.

Two of the twirlers on the mound for the Cavaliers, Millen and Costello, were lambasted for a total of fifteen hits. The former did not last two innings, while the latter retired after the eighth in favor of Mielzinger.

Berger, Radice and Hetzel each contributed three hits, the first man getting a single and two doubles and Radice two singles and a triple.

Batson Puzzle Until Ninth Inning.

Batson was a puzzle to the Virginians up to the ninth, when a single by Bryant, a double by Capt. Byrd and Chalmers' overthrow of first base accounted for two runs.

The fielding features were Cronin's catch of Byrd's drive near the left-field fence in the fourth frame and Hetzel's one-hand stab of Dent's line drive in the seventh. Pinder, Virginia third baseman, pulled down Radice's long foul after a long run in the sixth.

Don Makes 182 Miles In Attempt at Record

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 10 (A.P.). Fine mist, which collected on the wind shield of Kaye Don's Silver Bullet machine and obscured his vision today, prevented the British racing champion from attaining a speed of more than 182 miles an hour in his unsuccessful attempt to break the world's straightaway speed record.

He said he would take the machine onto the course again about 10 a. m. tomorrow to renew his assault upon the world's record of 231 miles an hour, established here a year ago by his fellow countryman, Sir Henry Segrave.

Don made four runs over the 10-mile sandy stretch today, but the speed of 182 miles an hour made on his first trial was the fastest he was able to attain.

G. U. Defeats Harvard for 9th in Row

1,500 Watch Hilltoppers in 4-2 Victory, Aided by Errors.

Shortstop Dunn Is Hero Afield; Poole Winning Hurler.

By JACK ESPEY.

HARVARD'S husky baseball team, with a scattering of football talent in its line-up, became Georgetown's ninth consecutive victim of the season at Washington Barracks yesterday, the Blue and Gray carrying off a 4-to-2 decision before a crowd of 1,500, the largest that has witnessed a college ball game here in several years.

With Ben Ticknor, Barry Wood, Batchelder and Mays, of the 1929 Crimson eleven in action, Harvard showed an appalling lack of ability to handle a ball as small as a baseball, at the same time offering evidence that heavy hitting isn't essential to the winning of baseball games.

The weird, butter-fingered acts of the Cambridge collegians—they miscued or threw wildly eight times—were directly responsible for Georgetown's winning margin, while in contrast the Hilltoppers turned in defensive work of major league caliber with Johnny Dunn, shortstop, in the star role.

Misplays General In Infield.

In justice to Big Ben Ticknor, Harvard's all-American center last fall, it must be noted that he was not guilty of an error, but Wood missed two grounders, Batchelder missed a third strike and made a wild throw, and Mays booted an easy infield roller. The fever also caught Pitcher Warren Page, Nugent, the second baseman, and little DesRoches, the third sacker. All in all, the Crimson defense appeared to have more holes th. n a carload of Swiss cheese.

Georgetown gained its decisive margin, as later events proved, in the fourth inning, when the visitors' fielding efforts were most ludicrous. Two runs veritably trickled over the plate in this frame.

The score was 2 to 1 in Georgetown's favor when Mooney's slow roller sifted through Wood's glove. Then Mays, rushing in to back up Wood, grabbed the ball and threw it over first base, which was uncovered, Mooney going to second. Johnny Evers, jr., next up, laid down a bunt in front of Page, and the latter's low throw to first enabled Mooney to score and Evers to reach second. Johnny stole third, and then came home standing up as Batchelder tossed into left field in an effort to catch him off the far corner. Although Nugent erred on Donovan's grounder immediately following, there was no more scoring.

Poole Always Shows Control.

The value of these two runs became apparent to Georgetown as the game progressed, as Harvard's batters were meeting the ball solidly. In the sixth Harvard scored its second run.

Hal Poole, Hilltop hurler, displayed nice control, not passing a single man, but he might have met a lot of trouble or even lost but for the scintillating support given him by teammates afield.

Dunn cut off one potential Harvard run in the fourth when the visitors seemed to have solved Poole's slants. The G. U. shortstop stopped Ticknor's smash on the grass and snuffed out McGrath, attempting to score from third, with a speedy throw to Donovan. Again in this inning, Dunn saved trouble when he started a double play with one out and one Harvard run already across and runners on first and third.

The gem of Dunn's work came in the eighth as he raced in behind the pitcher's box, snared a slow hopper in his gloved hand and tossed to Mooney to retire McGrath.

Nats Groomed for Fast Start in Race With Pitchers in Form and Bats Booming

Team Has Won 14 of 16 Games Played in South.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

RICHMOND, Va., April 10.—Although the Nationals are scheduled to reach Washington late tonight and their Southern training trip is at an end, they will not show before a home audience until Saturday, when the Baltimore Orioles will be their guests, with the Rochester team due to furnish the opposition Sunday, the day before the games that really mean something get under way.

As minor and major league teams are all rated about even in the spring, with the "little fellows" taking more chances in an effort to win, the Nationals again have been awarded the "Grapefruit League" title, despite the fact that they have faced no big league opponents other than the Boston Braves. Including today's game, the Nats' record of fourteen victories as against but two defeats, was so much better than that of any other team, with the exception of Cleveland, that they are practically sure of finishing as front runners.

Training Routine Angers Well.

What Washington fans no doubt are hoping now is that the Nats do not consider these honors are sufficient and stop dead as soon as the regular season starts, as was the case last year. And every indication is that the Nationals will keep right on playing good ball, for their training routine has been quite different this spring from that of 1929.

In the first place, there is no question but what Manager Johnson's insistence that his pitchers work like galley slaves has put practically all of RICHMOND, Va., April 10.—It is said that "even a blind sow will get an acorn once in awhile," but the Boston Braves did not subscribe to this theory here this afternoon as they lost their ninth straight and the fifth and final of their series with the Nationals, who have now won eight in a row. The final score was 8 to 1, with one of the lucky breaks which the Braves have had during the set preventing them from being shut out.

Two brilliant catches and a home run, all by Goslin featured the game. The "Wild Goose of the Potomac" almost single-handedly stopped a Boston threat in the sixth, while his four-base clout gave the Nats their final two runs in the eighth. Jimmy McLeod also gave the gallery of about 2,000 cause for cheers in the eighth when he turned in a great diving catch.

VANDERPOOL WINS KINDERGARTEN PURSE IN GALLOP

Allen Juvenile Takes Fifth Straight

Beats Schooner 1½ Lengths at Bowie, Unextended.

Her Grace Noses Out Billy Blake; Five Favorites Win.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

FURTHER proof of the class of Mrs. M. P. Allen's Vanderpool was presented at Bowie yesterday when the 2-year-old son of Camp Fire—Bramble Rose, won the Kindergarten Stakes, Bowie's big feature for juveniles without being extended. It was the fifth consecutive victory for Mrs. Allen's undefeated 2-year-old and he has to his credit two of the year's early stakes, as the Miami Juvenile fell to him before he came North. Five favorites won during the day of formful racing.

The five that ran against Vanderpool gave him practically no opposition, even though the Rancocas Stable's Schooner was within a length and half of the winner at the end of the four furlongs. Four lengths farther back finished the Dorwood Stable's Golden Legend and then came Sonny Fronk, Airliner and Gay Caballero in the order named. Vanderpool carried 124 pounds, which was conceding 9 to Schooner and more to the others and won in 47 seconds flat. This is the fastest time of the meeting, although Gigantic, winner of the opener, also was timed in 0:47.

Colt's Speed Not Yet Tested.

The difference between Gigantic's race and Vanderpool's was that Gigantic was doing his best under 115 pounds, while the Allen color bearer was just romping under 124 pounds. How fast the colt can go will hardly be shown at this meeting, as nothing has come out that looks as if it could force Vanderpool to get up steam.

Bill Kelsay came down from New York especially to ride Vanderpool and he got him away smartly. Schooner was the quickest to begin, however, and the short dash to the far turn found the Rancocas horse a part of a length to the good. But Kelsay and Vanderpool breezed past on the bend and left Schooner laboring.

At the top of the stretch Vanderpool was breezing with three lengths to spare. Kelsay looked back over each shoulder, saw nothing to worry about, and let the Camp Fire colt gallop. He came on through the stretch as serene and easy-going as you please. Eddie Steffen's rousing ride on Schooner got that son of Bud Turner within half a length of Vanderpool but there was no chance of him winning. The winner paid 1 to 4.

Inception Never Headed In Mount Royal.

The Mount Royal was snatched down to five starters, Frumper, Clean Play and Red Briar having been withdrawn. Mrs. O. C. Haney's Inception led all the way, winning by a length and a half, the fourth favorite out of five races to score. A. W. Wentzel's Titus, Florida Derby winner, was second a length and a half in front of Ululniu, and Wellet was fourth.

The winner paid $5.10. He was ridden by Cimerak. They ran the 7 furlongs in 1:25 3-5. Cimerak always had the race at command and when Ululniu challenged on the back stretch, Inception moved away.

Gigantic Easily Takes Maiden Number.

J. E. Davis' Gigantic, a Trojan colt which made a good impression in his first start last week, won the first race for maiden 2-year-olds today with east in spite of the unnecessary lashing administered by Ambrose when the colt was leading by four lengths. Gigantic had unseated Ambrose at the barrier. He broke from outside, went around the field and drew away, running the half mile in 0:47. Howard Bruce's colt, Royal Mystery, a first starter, was second, a length and a half from G. T. Stryker's filly. Aulularia was third.

The Bedwell pair, Mental and Fair Ester, broke in front and led to the first run, but faded away. Bruce, owner of Royal Mystery, is a new man in flat racing. He is a Baltimore capitalist and owner of Billy Barton.

The race was run within two-fifths of a second of the track record.

Encamp, Choice, Beats Band of Platers.

Fourteen platers paraded in the second race, with five horses grouped in the field. The race was a $2,000 top and bottom claiming affair, with G. W. Campbell's Encamp the favorite.

Encamp led virtually all the way, winning by a half length. Shasta Pebble was second, Business, third. Drena Lee, prominent throughout, forcing the pace of Encamp, was fourth. The time was 1:13 2-5. The winner paid $5 while the field was $6.10 for place. C. Quillen rode Encamp and rode a hustling ride all the way.

Her Grace Beats Good Three-Year-Olds.

There were some Preakness and Derby candidates in the third race, in which eight 3-year-olds paraded. Ral Parr's filly, Her Grace, entered for both the Derby and Preakness, won by a nose. Billy Blake, also a candidate for both the classics, was second, a half length in front of Lost Agnes, third. St. Tuscan was fourth.

Colossal broke badly and could never get to the front. Skirl, the Whitney candidate, never could get through the bunched leaders. G. Arnold had the mount on Her Grace and she paid $22.10. Her Grace is by Bright Light—Markiluna. The running time was 1:12 4-5 for the 6 furlongs. Her Grace had early foot, leading from the barrier and was in front all the way, but was ridden out at the end when challenged by Billy Blake and Lost Agnes.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACKMEN IN ACTION

Tech vs. Episcopal; Inter-Class Meet at Central.

TWO track meets will hold the spotlight of the scholastic athletic realm today, with the one scheduled for a local field, a strict family affair. While Tech goes to Alexandria to meet Episcopal High School, the second annual interclass meet will hold forth at Central High School with over 80 nonletter winners entered in the events to be staged at the Columbia Heights Stadium.

In the only baseball game of the day, Georgetown Prep will seek to stop the St. Alban's Nine, which has won its last two games—one by a four-run rally in the ninth and the other by a 26-2 score. They will clash on the St. Alban's diamond.

With all signs pointing to a banner day at the stadium, the Central Parent-Teacher Association, the "C" Club and the Alumni Association, who are sponsoring the affair, are looking forward to a successful day which will set a precedent for years to come.

Sixteen gold and silver medals at stake for first and second places, respectively, in the eight events has raised the student interest to a high pitch, with many envious eyes being cast at the handsome awards.

Pinckney, of Grid Fame, to Run.

Larry Pinckney, football hero, who is attempting track for the first time at Central, will lead the junior class in its attempt to score over its three other rivals.

Kern will lead the freshmen, Price the sophomores and Coleman the seniors. It is a step on the part of those connected with the school to interest more students in track, a title which Central has been without for some time.

Possessing an extremely green team, Coach Hardell nevertheless has hopes of his Tech men "taking" the Alexandrians. The Maroon and Gray has engaged in two meets this year—the indoor meet at Catholic University last month and the University of Virginia events. Each time Tech ran second to Eastern.

Pratt's Whirlwind Five Plays Takoma Firemen

To keep in trim for the intercounty basket ball championship next week, the Takoma Firemen will tackle the Pratt's Whirlwinds, 145-pound A. A U. champions of the District, tomorrow night at 8:30 in the Takoma Fire House.

The Firemen, champions of Montgomery County, are due to tackle the Brentwood Hawks, Prince Georges County winners, in the last of a three-game series next week for the intercounty title. Each team has won one game.

IOWA'S GAME WITH G. W. IS SET BACK

Elevens Will Meet in 1931 and 1932; List South Dakota.

OUT of deference to the wishes of Iowa University to schedule Purdue, Western Conference champion, for a football game next fall, George Washington University, through its director of athletics, James E. Pixlee, yesterday canceled its game with Iowa originally set for October 18 in Iowa City.

In place of the Iowa game, Director Pixlee scheduled South Dakota University, the contest to be played in Washington, and then secured a promise from Iowa to meet the Colonial Eleven in 1931 and 1932 on a home and home basis.

The cancellation of the Iowa contest for 1930 and the arrangement with South Dakota took place virtually at the same time, Pixlee and the representatives of the other two institutions carrying on communications by telegraph.

Iowa's game with Purdue is the first "Big Ten" football game it has scheduled since its return to the conference.

By scheduling South Dakota, George Washington gained a local attraction for its program which had not looked particularly impressive from the viewpoint of home fans. A game with Catholic University, listed on November 22, was the only other one of major importance slated for home consumption.

Under the tentative agreement with Iowa, George Washington will visit Iowa City for a game in 1931 and the Hawkeyes will return the visit in 1932.

CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE UNLIMITED NINES GAIN FIELDS

District Group In Meeting Tonight

Section Again Draws Leading Teams for League Play.

Montgomery County's Clubs to Complete Their Plans.

DISTRICT unlimited nines seeking Capital City League honors this season will not be handicapped by a shortage of suitable diamonds it will probably be determined tonight at a meeting in the Municipal Playground Department in the District Building when teams seeking berths will meet for the first time at 8 o'clock.

Three of the applicants for franchises have diamonds available and it is probable that a fourth team claiming a home diamond in the District will be represented tonight. Corpl. Robert J. Anderson yesterday announced that the Army Medical Center Team is anxious to battle for the championship and has the Walter Reed diamond available.

St. Joseph's A. C. has secured the use of the Gonzaga High School diamond on Benning road and Burroughs A. C., another newcomer to the circuit, will have use of the Burroughs School field, one of the best conditioned diamonds in this section.

All Unlimited Teams Invited.

Representatives of all unlimited teams within the District are invited to attend tonight's session. It is probable that all arrangements for the season will be completed at this meeting and the teams will be ready to start the season early next month.

Frank Cinotti's St. Joe Club, already on the field, will defend the title won last year. Burroughs A. C., an offspring of the recently organized Burroughs Athletic Club, and Tony Barruto's Modern Woodmen of the World, including several of last year's Tremonts, are both newcomers to the circuit.

Hess A. C., after several years in independent ranks, plans a comeback in league competition. Army Medical Center's nine also returns to the circuit after several years of independent campaigning. The Aztecs may be among the contenders and the Monroe A. C. and Montrose A. C. nines are probable entrants.

Northern A. C. Nine Expected.

Northern A. C. is expected to be represented and the Try-Me Aces, winners of the senior title last year, are ready to move into faster company. At least ten teams are expected to comprise the circuit.

Complete arrangements for the Montgomery County section of the unlimited division will be drafted tonight at a meeting at 8 o'clock in The Washington Post Building. Representatives of all teams seeking berths should attend this meeting as all rules, schedule and other details will be drafted.

BASEBALL PLAYERS AT OWNERS' MERCY

cigar store business and the gas station business back in their old home towns, such as Oakland City, Ind. Recruiting was not maintained and, in time the baseball players union went the way of all neighborhood improvement associations, press clubs and current events societies.

Not All Magnates Are Reasonable.

It may be a bit fantastic to say that a baseball firm would offer a $20,000 player as little as $1 a year. A player who is worth $20,000 a year must be worth anywhere from $50,000 to $150,000 as an item of property in the assets of the firm and no reasonable business man would cancel an asset of such value out of spite. But although baseball magnates are thorough business men, not all of them are reasonable and some of them, on the contrary, have shown a remarkable capacity for meanness and vindictive persecution.

In any case, there has never been a reasonable minimum wage in their business below which an athlete might appeal to Judge Landis of a league president or any one else.

This is a matter which seems to have slipped from the Judge's mind because he plainly stated when he accepted his job as the great arbiter or eulvocator of the baseball business that he was the friend of the athlete and would be inclined to side with him in all conflicts between capital and labor, if baseball playing can be called labor. Whether he ever did intend to do anything about the standard contract or not, I do not know, but inasmuch as he draws his wages from the employers and not from the athletes, one might easily realize how the problem escaped his attention.

Now and again young graduates of the law schools break into the baseball business for more or less extended careers and when they read over their articles of agreement they doubtless marvel at the thoughtfulness of the attorneys for the magnates who devised this document in the first place. It concedes the player no rights and no redress while reserving all rights for the magnate, including the power to sit as judge, prosecutor, complaining witness and jury and to assess fines.

The spirit of the contract has been responsible more than anything else for the decline of the combative spirit which Mr. McGraw laments from time to time. The athletes are thrown into a class together and given to understand that the magnates are another class, opposed to them with the means to reduce their pay by common action or to whisper them out or worry them out of the game by petty persecutions.

BUILDERS MEET TONIGHT.

A meeting of the Building Contractors Duckpin League will be held tonight at the Arcadia at 8 o'clock at which time prizes will be distributed and plans made for next season. A handicap system is planned for next year.

V. P. I. MEETS VIRGINIA ON TRACK

Poly Strong in Field Events; Freshmen Teams Clash.

Special to The Washington Post.

BLACKSBURG, Va., April 10.—Contrary to V. P. I. traditions, the Tech Track Team will rely upon the field events for points in the annual meet with the Virginia Cavaliers in Miles Stadium here Saturday. The biennial visit of the university runners will find the Techmen firmly entrenched in the field, but weaker in the cinders events where Tech strength was always massed in past campaigns.

Not in a decade has a V. P. I. team scored as few victories in the running events in dual competition as in the opening meet with William and Mary here last week. Stanley Rhinehart, former Virginia scholastic dash champion, christened his first set of varsity togs with a new record of 50 seconds for the quarter mile, and Julian Preble breasted the tape a foot ahead of the field in the low hurdles to give the V. P. I. her only first places in the races. William and Mary, with as sturdy a band of runners as Miles Stadium has seen in some time, was master in the high hurdles, dashes, mile and half mile.

Freshmen Teams Also Meet.

But gloomy as the prospects appeared in these events, the Gobblers showed unexpected strength in the field events. The strength apparently is centered where it has long been lacking. Carlyle Wade looks to be on the threshold of his best year in the high jump. Jim Swart, another soph, who shattered a record in his first varsity meet, tossed the shot almost 44 feet. Ed Zirkle is looked to for points in the eights and Red Weaver for points in the pole vault.

Few, if any changes are in the air on the eve of the Cavalier invasion. With the advent of warm spring weather, the Gobblers hope to catch up on their training program and show to better advantage in the running events.

The Cavalier freshmen will accompany the varsity team to clash with the Tech freshmen in the other half of a double attraction. The meet will be the first for the Goblers, who will make their debut against a powerful foe who already have an overwhelming win over the V. M. I. freshmen to their credit.

Routin's Drive Allows Generals to Win, 4-2

Special to The Washington Post.

Lexington, Va., April 10.—Routin, Washington and Lee's diminutive shortstop, gave his team a hard-earned 4-to-2 victory over the Davidson Nine here this afternoon when he crashed one of Kugler's low shoots deep into right field in the fifth inning, scoring Cross ahead of him.

Both teams played heads-up ball, and it was only the Generals' ability to hit in pinches that gave them the victory. Kugler, Davidson mound ace, had the edge over Atwood, Washington and Lee hurler, by sending nine Generals back to the bench via the strike-out route, while only three Davidson men were fanned. Kugler distributed no walks, while Atwood allowed one.

Davidson opened up in the first with Parrish's walk, Goodson's long hit to right and Richardson's error, allowing the two to score. Routin's single, Parrish's error on Thibodeau's grounder and Richardson's sacrifice fly gave Washington and Lee the tying runs in the fourth frame. A fast double play, Cross to Routin to Williams, cut a Davidson rally short after Parrish and Miller had opened the last inning with singles.

Marine Nine Defeats Randolph-Macon, 11-1

Special to The Washington Post.

Quantico, Va., April 10.—The All-Marine Baseball Team easily defeated Randolph-Macon, 11 to 1, on the post diamond here today. The Sea Soldiers grabbed off four tallies in the first on hard hitting, added one in the fourth and sixth and five in the eighth. Yanshak, one of the Marines' young pitchers, held the visitors to a shut-out until the ninth, when two walks, an error and hit allowed the Yellow Jackets to prevent a shut-out. Burger, the collegian shortstop, had a perfect day at bat with five bingles in five tries.

WESTERN 7-2 VICTIM OF EMERSON

Series Nine Is Behind After 3d; Shackleford Stars.

EMERSON INSTITUTE'S Baseball Team victimized its second high school nine in as many days yesterday when it defeated Western, 7 to 2, on the Monument lot. Emerson defeated Eastern last Wednesday. Although both teams made but five hits, Emerson took advantage of six Western errors to register their runs, also being aided by eight walks granted by the two losing pitchers, Albert and Poore.

Western started off well enough, scoring two runs in the first inning without the aid of a hit, when three of the winners' four errors allowed Fox and Tabler to cross the plate. Emerson came back with one in its half, however, but waited until the third inning to take the lead, when it added three more runs, and ended the day with a trio of tallies in the seventh. Western never threatened after the opening frame, being held in check by Pitcher Shackelford, of Emerson.

A feature of the game found Charley Albert, Western's starting pitcher, hurling them plateward to his brother, Bob, who played short stop for Emerson. Charley forced him to foul to the catcher in his first trip to the plate, but on the next attempt Bob got even and socked out a solid double, squaring family matters for the day.

Saks Co. Enters Baseball Field Again

Led by Dick Mothershead, the Saks Co. Baseball Team is preparing for the coming season and will practice Sunday on diamond No. 5 of the Monument Grounds at 12:30 o'clock. Saks has added a number of new players, including Austin, Yingling, Fletcher, Anderson and Roberts. For games with Saks, call Manager Mothershead at District 3050.

Navy and Temple Grid Squads Will Scrimmage

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 10.—The football squad of Temple University, Philadelphia, which, like Navy, is engaged in a protracted practice session this spring, will arrive in Annapolis tomorrow and will hold informal workouts against the Midshipmen gridders in the afternoon and again on Saturday.

Temple developed a formidable aggregation last fall and practically all of the regulars will be in the party. The practice should be mutually beneficial to both groups, although the Navy squad now at work is made up largely of new recruits from the 1929 plebe team, as many of the regulars are participating in one or another spring athletic activity.

GEORGIA WHIRLWINDS PLAY.

The Georgia Whirlwinds will play the De Molay Nine Sunday at 2:30 o'clock, on Diamond No. 3, of the Monument Lot.

them in or close to top form, while the shift to Chattanooga, where weather similar to that to be faced during the first few weeks in the North was battled, has the players hardened so that no perceptible change should be noted. Last year, it will be remembered, the quick jump from hot to cold weather was generally held responsible for the almost overnight loss of form by practically all of the mound staff.

Hadley Has Twice Gone Route.

Irving Hadley already has gone the route twice this spring, holding the Braves to but three hits at Winston-Salem Tuesday, while Ad Liska has gone one nine-inning route and is scheduled to go another in Baltimore tomorrow. While the young subway hurler faltered in the ninth his last time out, he has undergone some training punishment since and should be able to travel at full speed all the way tomorrow if he is right.

Fred Marberry, who is scheduled to perform on the hill in the season's opener against the Boston Red Sox at the Griffith Stadium Monday, proved quite adisappointment against the Braves in Norfolk yesterday in his final prep for the inaugural. Previously, however, he not only had granted but eight hits in twelve innings, which had netted only one run, while fanning and walking seven, but he had looked to have "everything" while flinging in stick drills. He contends that he simply had an off day, while the Braves were hitting "better than they knew how," and in a band-box park, that it will be different Monday. Maybe he's right; time will tell.

Goslin's Batting Encouraging

Another thing which makes the Nats' chances of a good 1930 start appear much brighter is the manner in which Goose Goslin in particular and the other Nats in general are swinging their war clubs. Goslin, a failure at bat last year, was hitting an even .500 before this afternoon's game, his blows including four homers, a triple and two doubles, while he had driven home twelve runs.

Everything considered, the Nats' prospects for a good start appear bright, but, as all turf followers know, there are many dope upsets, and the mutuels don't pay off until after the race has been run, putting it squarely up to the Nats to live up to their promise in this respect.

William and Mary Nine Routs Juniata, 16 to 0

Special to The Washington Post.

Williamsburg, Va., April 10.—William and Mary's Indians went on the warpath today to massacre Juniata College, of Pennsylvania, 16 to 0, in their second shutout game this week. Taking advantage of their opponents' six errors, the Indians stretched fourteen hits into sixteen runs, while Scott and Rux allowed Juniata but three safeties.

William & Mary started the fireworks in the fourth inning, finding Snyder for three hits and three runs to send him to the showers. Fraker, who relieved him, was treated worse, the Redmen bouncing four runs off him in the fifth frame and seven more in the sixth.

GOSLIN BRIGHT STAR AS NATS WIN AGAIN

performing well, the southpaw allowing but two hits and Jones three. The Nats cracked out twelve safeties, these being bunched sufficiently to result in runs in four innings.

When Jones took the slab starting the sixth, the Nats were enjoying a six-run lead. Braxton had performed brilliantly and after granting a single in each of the first two frames, had put on the brakes and seen but one alien on the runways thereafter, this was Welsh, who drew a pass in the third, but who immediately was wiped off the bases as a double-play victim.

While Braxton had been mowing down his opponents in rapid order, Brandt, also a southpaw, had been having his troubles. Loepp led off with a single and before the end of the found, one basers by Goslin and Myer and Cronin's sacrifice fly had netted two runs. In round 3 the Nationals added another tally to their total, having the bases loaded at the end as a result of singles by Loepp, Goslin and Cronin, Myer's sacrifice and Bluege's pass.

Myer Scores After Double Steal.

In the fifth the Nationals doubled the count, getting three more runs. These tallies were coined on singles by Rice, Cronin and Judge, a hit batsman and a double theft by Myer and Cronin, with the former going all the way from second to home on this latter play. After Myer had pilfered third, Cronin was trapped between first and second, Buddie sneaking in during this run-down.

The Brayes finally scored in the seventh on a lucky break. After Jones had walked Moore, first up, and the runner had advanced on Sisler's out, Kahn singled off the second sack, the ball caroming over toward left field.

This run was regained with interest in the lower half of the frame, Powell beating out a bunt down the third base line and counting when Goslin laced a liner into the right field for a home run, his fifth in the seven games in which he has participated this spring. This was the last hit of the game as the Braves went down in order in their ninth.

Penn State Boxer to Risk College Jinx in Pro Ranks

Wolff, Intercollegiate Champion, Tries His Hand Where Munn, Marriner, Montgomery and Others Failed to Become Stars.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, April 10 (A.P.).—Six years ago Allie Wolff, a huskily molded Jewish boy, was a Dick Merriwell from the sidewalks of Brooklyn in interscholastic football and baseball. Last June he was graduated from Penn State with a string of nine varsity letters and three intercollegiate boxing championships.

Today this same Allie Wolff is about to become a professional fighter, a middleweight with the jinx of a college education upon him. All of which brings up the ancient cauliflower debate: "Can a college man ever become a really successful professional gladiator?"

The graybeards of the ring, pointing to the records of Sully Montgomery, of Centre College; Big Ed Garvey, from Notre Dame; Dr. Ludwig Haymann, with a string of German degrees behind his name; Monte Munn, of Nebraska; Les Marriner, of Chicago, and a sprinkling of others, say it can't be done. Wolff is getting ready to show them that it can.

College Athlete in Shape, Says Wolff.

"A college athlete," Wolff grunted between body bends in a stuffy little gym, "should have two strikes on the rest of the fighters staring in if he really likes the game. The college athlete has at least four years of body building training under the finest posible instructors. He learns to obey orders. He develops speed, stamina and instant coordination of mind and muscles.

"Fundamentally seizing the right instant to make a flying tackle in an open field is no different from grabbing an opening to shoot a right-hand punch to the chin. Both take the same kind of thinking and coordination. Perhaps the reason more college athletes aren't successful fighters is because they start so late."

Wolff, 22 years old, is fast, a clever boxer, perfectly conditioned and a husky puncher. He won 28 successive matches in intercollegiate competition. He doubles as a physical instructor in a Brooklyn high school.

Several of the smartest managers of cauliflowers watched Wolff work today. They thought he was a nice boy, might make a fighter, but:

"No college guys for me," said one. "Gimme the dumb guys; the rough, tough, ignorant guys. The dumber the better."

Old Timer Shuns Educated Boys.

"Gimme the kids with about enough imagination to try to put out a fire with gasoline. No educated guys for me," said another.

"College birds are too old at the start," commented the third. "They won't mess and sweat at the bottom, in the kindergarten for a couple of years. Ten bucks don't mean the world to them."

Dumb Dan Morgan, the cauliflower philosopher, closed the argument.

"They ain't fighters," he announced sagely. "Fighters are guys that have a extra layer of bone in their skulls, for in case they fall off roofs."

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 10.—Alexandria High School Baseball Team will face its first real test tomorrow afternoon when it plays Washington and Lee High School in the first game played in the third district this season. The visitors are coming here with a strong team, coached by Carter Diffey, former University of Virginia star, who has turned out excellent teams since he has been at the Ballston school.

Mr. Diffey so far has turned out teams that have been in every race for the third district championship. Coach Reynolds, although having tough luck in losing two of his best players, will place one of the best teams on the field that has represented the local high school in baseball for the past three years. Since baseball has created so little interest in the Alexandria High School it is hard for him to place a championship team on the field. He only has about sixteen boys on his squad.

Episcopal High School's green but ambitious trackmen will have their first test tomorrow afternoon when they take on Tech High School from Washington on Hoxton Field, beginning at 3:30 o'clock.

The Episcopal coaches are expecting Tech to give them a real battle tomorrow and know that they will have their hands full in turning back the Washington lads. Track at the Episcopal institution is the leading spring sport and therefore a large number of Alexandrians will

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE GARY SCHOOL DENTAL SERVICE.

THE Gary public schools have a method of dental service for school children in the first five grades that is not in use elsewhere, so far as I know. Each child pays a fee of 50 cents a semester or $1 for a school year. The method of collection for this purpose is indirect. The pupils in the Gary public schools pay a fixed sum yearly for purchase of supplies, such as pencils, paper, drawing paper, crayon, music, account books, slates and memorandum books, and for the rental of text books. This runs from 75 cents a semester, or $1.50 a school year, for the kindergarten years to about three times that sum in the later years, when the textbooks are larger and other material is more expensive. Of this sum $1 a session is set apart for dental work in each of the first five years. This sum is used to buy dental supplies and to pay the salaries of the dentists, hygienists and clerks. For it each pupil gets his teeth cleaned and otherwise put in order about three times in each two years. Some teeth are pulled, some gum boils are lanced, and some other mouth conditions are treated. Cavities are located and these and other mouth conditions needing treatment are set forth on a "diagnosis and recommendation" card, which the child takes home to the parents with a view to having needed work done by the family dentist. This is not a complete service, nor is that claim made for it. All the authorities claim is that they will supply as much dental service as can be given for $1 a year, economically administered.

In some of the schools the dentists and hygienists are provided with a room and fixed equipment. In addition there is portable equipment which is moved about among the schools not provided with fixed equipment. Each operator is expected to take care of at least 20 children a day. When the plan is somewhat better developed and children are delivered to the dentist automatically and on time, as is the case with teachers, this number can be increased materially. The technical work is passed upon by a nonpaid advisory board supplied by the Gary Dental Society. In addition to this more direct dental work done by the dental department, there is teaching as to which foods prevent tooth decay and disease of the gums, which is done by other departments. The objective of the entire plan is to keep the child's milk teeth and 6-year molars and his gums in good order during the earlier years of school life.

POPCORN IS HEALTHFUL.

Mrs. F. E. M. writes:

1. Is popcorn healthful?

2. Is it fattening if eaten with a little butter and salt?

REPLY.

1. It is. Popcorn is quite rich in carbohydrates and fats. It therefore supplies a good many calories. Since this cereal contains all of the corn it is richer in minerals, vitamins and proteins than is bolted corn meal.

2. Yes, if much of it is eaten.

NO HARM IN MILK.

M. R. writes:

1. Is it detrimental to one's health to drink three to four glasses of milk a day?

2. How much should a boy weigh who is 19 years old and is 5 feet 9 inches tall?

REPLY.

1. No. I assume you are not fat, that the milk is safe, and that it agrees with you.

2. 155 pounds.

STOCKS' INDEX RISES TO NEW 1930 PEAK

Violent Bullish Display at Opening Is Marked by Anticlimax.

5,681,370 SHARES SOLD

New York, April 10 (A.P.). — The stock market was treated to one of the most violent bullish displays in its history in the first half hour of trading today. Although the remainder of the session was somewhat of an anticlimax, favorable industrial developments buttressed the market against heavy profit taking and a renewal of short selling in individuals issues.

Closing prices were somewhat irregular, and on the whole substantially under the highest levels of the day, but the index of 90 representative issues showed a net gain of about one-half point, recording another 1930 peak. Total sales, swelled by a turnover of more than 1,000,000 shares in the first half hour, aggregated 5,681,370 shares, the second largest of the year.

The news most pleasing to the bull faction came after the close of the market, when the weekly Federal Reserve brokers' loan compilation disclosed an increase of only $26,000,000. As the market has made substantial progress during the period covered by these figures, they can only indicate that stocks are passing into strong hands, or that pool operators are heavily borrowing from nonreserve bank sources, and the latter explanation is not regarded as likely. The weekly banking statements indicated continuance of favorable money conditions.

Call Money at 4 Per Cent.

Despite the month-end requirements, New York banks increased their Federal Reserve borrowings by only $6,000,000. They withdrew $76,000,000 from the call loan market, but this was more than made up by loans of about $80,000,000 from out-of-town banks and a small increase in loans for "others." Call money remained plentiful, again ranging from 4 to 3½ per cent. Time money was a little easier, the shorter maturities sagging one-fourth of 1 per cent to 3¾ to 4 per cent.

Outstanding developments in the day's business news were the ending of the crude oil price cutting, with announcement of an increase by Humble Oil, which initiated the movement in January to force curtailment of production. An announcement by United States Steel of an increase of about 90,000 tons in unfilled tonnage during March The Steel Corporation's total backlog of unfilled business is now the largest in four years. Of course, this business has been permitted to pile up by a moderate rate of operations, compared to this time last year, when mills were running at practical capacity.

Less favorable items were first quarter earnings statements by Nash and Underwood Elliott Fisher, showing substantial declines from the like quarter of last year. Wall street, however, is prepared to receive many such reports on first quarter operations.

Utilities Quite Strong.

The utility shares displayed the most conspicuous strength, but were joined by several chemicals, food shares, motors and specialties. Oils responded but moderately to the increase in crude prices, and rails were largely neglected. United States Steel sold up nearly 3 points on the tonnage report, but lost some of its gain before the close. General Motors sold up moderately to a new 1930 high. J. I. Case mounted 10 points to 308, but closed at 300. Allied Chemical, American Water Works, Freeport Texas, Hershey Chocolate, Penick and Ford, Raybestos, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard of Kansas, United Carbon and Warner Quinlan were among issues selling up about 2 to 5 points, mostly to new 1930 tops. Soft spots were American Telephone, Eastman Kodak and United Aircraft, losing about 2 to 3 points. Johns-Manville was depressed 8 points.

Commodities were somewhat irregular. Wheat sold up about 2 cents early in the day, but lost its gain on reports of needed rains in Kansas and the Southwest. Corn sagged nearly a cent on bearish weather. Cotton futures were steady, closing 50 cents a bale higher to 10 cents lower.

Foreign exchanges moved sharply upward when the Bank of England failed to announce another cut in its discount rate.

Sterling cables rallied ¼ to $4.86⅛, and other Europeans were mostly firm.

BOND FLOTATIONS MARK TURNOVER

Day's New Issues Reach $130,000,000; Rails Rise Slightly.

FOREIGN GROUP IS FIRM

New York, April 10 (A.P.).—Investment bonds made some progress today, despite the fact that the day's new financing reached one of the largest totals of the year, aggregating more than $130,000,000. Short-term time money was slightly easier, and call funds repeated the 4 per cent to 3½ per cent movement.

Rails displayed the most encouraging tone in several days. Convertibles were highly irregular, with the trend generally downward. Of the United States Governments only the first Liberties closed lower, gains in the others ranging from one to ten thirty-seconds. Foreign bonds were firm.

An extension of bank buying pushed numerous carrier liens higher. Santa Fe general 4s, Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Delaware & Hudson 4s, Morris & Essex 3½s, New York Central debenture 4s, Pere Marquette 4½s and Pennsylvania gold 5s, among other high-grade issues, advanced from one-half to 1 point. Several secondary bonds showed considerable strength. Chicago & Eastern Illinois 6s rose 3½, and Erie Consolidated 4s and Mobile & Ohio 4½s each gained a point.

Tobacco Bonds Sag.

The demand for utilities and industrials was not so broad and was rather selective, involving several of the higher yield obligations. Hoe & Co. 6½s rallied 4½ points to the new high of 90. Northern States Power 6s rose nearly 2 points. Tobacco bonds sagged: Liggett & Myers 5s and Lorillard 5½s easing more than a point. Oils were dull.

In the stock feature group, American Telephone 4½s sold off nearly all day, closing 2¼ lower. Amusement bonds followed an uncertain course and the General Theaters 6s and Loew's 6s dipped 3 and 1, respectively. Pathe 7s advanced nearly 2 while Shubert 6s made a new high around 67. Warner Bros. Pictures 6s closed even. American I. G. Chemical 5½s came within a small fraction of their year's peak of 108¼. International Telephone 4½s netted half a point higher.

Kreuger & Toll Rises.

The most active foreign bonds was the Kreuger & Toll 5s, with warrants. The volume in this issue was $400,000, and it attained a new high of 100¾. Berlin City Electric 6½s rose 1½. German Republic 7s were firm at 109. Serbian 7s equaled their high of 88½.

Lively inquiry was reported for the $50,000,000 issue of Argentine government short term treasury 5s and the subscription books closed around noon. The largest piece of financing was the Republic Steel Corporation's $60,000,000 block of 6 per cent convertible preferred stock, which likewise found a receptive market.

Substantial flotations of new securities are indicated for the week-end. Among tomorrow's offerings are a $20,000,000 issue of Consumer Power first lien 4½s at 97, and a Texas Power & Light Co. $4,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent loan at 98½.

LACEY IS ELECTED AS BANK CASHIER

Columbia National Honors World War Veteran by Promotion.

IS INSTITUTE GRADUATE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Robert H. Lacey, assistant cashier, Columbia National Bank, was elected cashier of that institution to succeed Arthur N. Mitchell, retired, at a meeting of the bank's board of directors held yesterday. Mr. Lacey was born and reared in this city and entered the banking business as an employe of the former American National Bank, coming to the Columbia National Bank in 1923 as a bookkeeper.

By persistent application, coupled with a charming manner, he has made rapid strides in the banking profession, his various promotions bringing to him the opportunity to gain experience in all the departments. He is a graduate of the American Institute of Banking and has been active in the work of its Washington Chapter for several years, holding office as assistant secretary, as treasurer and serving on numerous committees. This year, as chairman of the chapter's membership committee, he reported a record enrollment.

Mr. Lacey is a World War veteran and took part in all the major engagements in which the American Army participated. He was wounded in action at the Marne and in the Argonne. He is a member of Costello Post of the Americna Legion, and his banking friends will be glad to know that as a hobby he plays a "bang-up" game of golf.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 10 (A.P.).—Wheat prices fluctuated sharply within a narrow range today, a dull day in the cash dealings, with market action depending on chances of moisture relief in drought districts. Effects of the Government crop report were confined to the early session, which, however, proved transient in the face of heavy profit taking sales as well as forecasts of showers Southwest.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, at ¼c net decline to ⅜c advance, compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed ¾c off to unchanged, with lower to ¼c higher and provisions varying from 15c setback to a rise of a shade.

At first the wheat market here showed a pronounced upward trend owing to the bullish character of the United States Government April crop report and lively upturns in Liverpool quotations. The report was taken as confirming bad conditions in soft wheat States and as leaving little likelihood of a summer harvest in Oklahoma or Kansas. Nevertheless, an official forecast of showers tonight over drought territory induced heavy selling which at times more than counterbalanced the influence of the Government report, especially as Farm Board allies appeared to be letting go of their holdings and the Liverpool market had closed at a complete setback from early upturns.

Late reports from Kansas, however, told of high winds and heavy dust storms prevailing. Under such circumstances the majority of traders switched hastily to the buying side of the market at the close. Late estimates of North American wheat export business today were also bullish. European purchases being figured at 700,000 bushels, whereas earlier the amount bought was described as negligible. Some buying at the last was likewise attributed to Kansas official advices that drought had damaged wheat all over the western half of the State.

Free selling from rural sources weakened the corn market. Farmers were reported as having their spring work unusually far along, a circumstance that appeared to be facilitating an increase of corn marketing, with dry weather improving the quality of offerings. Oats were governed chiefly by changes in prices of wheat and corn.

Provisions were somewhat easier, sympathizing with downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities:

Wheat—May, 1.12; July, 1.16⅛ to 1.16⅜; July, 1.12⅜ to 1.12½; 1.17¼ to 1.17⅜; September, 1.15¼; 1.20½ to 1.20⅝; December (bids), 1.19¼. Corn—May, 83½, 83⅝; July, 86½ to 86⅝, 88 to 88⅛; September, 87½ to 87⅝, 89¼.

FAIRFAX BAR GROUP LAUDS JUDGE SMITH

TEACHERS ARE TO MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

The Fairfax County Bar Association held its regular monthly meeting in the office of Commonwealth's Attorney Wilson M. Farr, in Fairfax, and ordered a telegram sent to Gov. John Garland Pollard yesterday unanimously reaffirming its former action in indorsing the appointment of Douglas S. Mackall for the office of judge of the Sixteenth judicial circuit court to fill the vacancy created by Judge Howard W. Smith, who is resigning, effective April 19, to actively engage in the coming congressional campaign, in which he is a candidate. The telegram also stated that the association believed Mr. Mackall's appointment would meet with the approval of the people of the circuit.

A resolution was also adopted which stated that it was the opinion of the Fairfax County Bar Association that Judge Smith had presided over the court with dignity, ability, energy and fairness and had made an enviable record during his tenure of office, and that his resignation was one to be regretted. The association also expressed its sincere appreciation for his services as judge of the circuit court and sent its regrets that he had seen fit to resign.

A committee consisting of Wilson M. Farr, George B. Robey, A. C. Ritchie and F. Sheild McCandlish, appointed to investigate the arrangements of the interior of the courtroom at Fairfax and recommend to the court and the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors in regard to rearranging the railing and seating of the members of the bar inside the railing, reported that the matter had been taken up with the supervisors and suggestions made, but that many persons had strenuously objected to any change being made to the courtroom and that plans for this project had been discontinued for the present. The committee also stated that they planned to meet again at an early date to make a further investigation of this situation.

The District Heights Teachers Association will meet this morning at 11 o'clock in the Madison School at Falls Church for its annual conference, which will last through tomorrow. Emerick, of Purcellville, divisional superintendent of Loudoun County, is chairman of district H, and Miss Beatrix Clark, of Manassas, is secretary. The white schols of Fairfax County will be closed today and all teachers are required to attend the conference.

The program committee of this meeting consists of P. B. Smith, Superintendent R. C. Bowton, Miss Beatrix Clark, Superintendent T. W Hendrick, Miss Gaylord Gibson, S P. For intermediate grades, "Correlation of Social Studies" will be given by Miss Katherine Smith, and Miss Kate Trent of the State Teachers College, at Fredericksburg, will talk of phonetics; Miss Trent will also speak on the same subject before the primary grades. Mrs. J. A. Eason will explain "Teaching Writing." For one and two room schools, physical health and education will be discussed by Miss Marie Creel; tests and examinations, by Miss Sadie Embrey, and combining and alternating subjects, by Miss Vivian White.

Following this at 11 o'clock there will be a general session with addresses by T D Martin director of the division of records and membership of the National Education Association. STUDENTS CAMPAIGN TO BOYCOTT MOVIES

Virginia University Campus Stirred by War With Two Showhouses.

CONFERENCE IS CALLED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 10.—Outcome of the conference tomorrow between Fred W. Twyman, representing the company which operates the two local moving pictures houses, and a students' committee is awaited by the student body of the University of Virginia. The committee will present the management a petition signed by hundreds who have agreed not to attend the theaters unless the management consents to a price reduction.

The petition is as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby agree to refrain from patronizing the local movies until the price is reduced to 35 cents. No further student demonstration is anticipated, certainly not until after the conference tomorrow."

After leaving the theater district at 10 o'clock last night, the thousand or more undergraduates returned to the university campus where they built a shack of boxes, labeled it "The Jefferson Theater" and set it on fire. The chapel bell in the historic rotunda was rung at intervals until after 3 a. m. Fire alarm boxes in the university were pulled, but there was no response by the volunteer fire company, the action being regarded by the firemen as the outcome of proceedings during the earlier part of the night.

Casualties last night occurred when four policemen walked out into the crowd and tried to determine who had spattered one of the members of the force with an egg. During the clash that followed a number of students were struck with guns and night sticks and one officer was knocked to the ground and roughly handled.

Chief of Police Greaver stated today that no arrests will be made and that he called his men to the scene merely for the purpose of protecting the theater property. He said he regretted having had to resort to physical force to repulse the advance upon the playhouse, and to prevent a panic within the theater.

A meeting of the directors of the amusement corporation will precede the conference tomorrow morning between President Twyman and the student committee. In an editorial yesterday, under the caption, "Boycott the Movies," College Topics, student newspaper, expressed the hope that "no violence wou'd be used."

The surprising fact is, said the writer, that there have been no mob scenes enacted by angry students outside the theater. With the trend of prices in other places steadily downward, a call is being issued to students to display no violence but to boycott the local movies until admissions have been reduced to a fair level."

ARLINGTON TO GREET HEALTH DELEGATES

Tour of Three Centers Will Be Made by Members of Association.

DOCTOR PRAISES WORK

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POET.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Preparations have been completed for a tour of inspection of Arlington County under supervision of Dr. P. M. Chicester, county health officer, by representatives from every State in the Union today.

The group came to Washington yesterday to attend the annual conference on child hygiene sponsored by the American Child Health Association.

"Health work accomplished in Arlington County under the direct supervision of Dr. Chichester stands out, and is recognized by those who are in any way connected with such work. It is known to many of those who are attending the conference in Washington and the trip to the county was arranged with Dr. Chichester that they may see for themselves what is being done in the way of child health work in Arlington County," Dr. Draper, Assistant Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, said.

"During the six years that Dr. Chichester has been in charge of the health department of Arlington County, the practical eradication of diphtheria and the successful campaigns against tuberculosis stand out," he said.

"Too much praise can not be given the department for its work in the county schools and it can well be taken as a model for other sections," he declared.

According to Dr Chichester, the group, numbering more than 50 persons, which will be headed by Dr. Draper and Dr. E G. Williams, of Richmond, State health commissioner, will reach the county this morning about 10:30 o'clock, going first to the Cherrydale health center. From there they go to the Clarendon health center and then to the new center recently opened in Jefferson district to replace the one near Alexandria.

There will be one of the county nurses at each of the three health centers to explain just what is being done in the county in the way of infant welfare and child hygiene, Dr. Chichester explained.

The visitors will be met by a group of representative citizens from each of the three districts.

Intense interest was manifest yesterday in county courthouse circles in the possible successor to Circuit Court Judge Howard W. Smith, who has set Saturday, April 19, as the day he will leave office.

In Arlington County, Attorney Charles T. Jesse and Harry B. Thomas, judge of the juvenile and domestic relations courts, stand out as active candidates for the office, while Walter W. Varney and Amos C. Crounse are being mentioned as dark horses in race.

In Prince William County the name of Thomas Lyons has been before the governor and Douglass Mackall is a candidate from Fairfax County.

With the April term of the Circuit Court of Arlington County set for April 21, it is expected the appointment will be announced soon.

Resolutions asking Congress to return to the District of Columbia the original 10-mile area including Arlington County, will be adopted by the Back to the District Association at a special meeting to be held at its headquarters in the Rucker Building at Clarendon at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement made last night by Vice President Richard L. Eacho.

According to Mr. Eacho, the decision to call the meeting is the result of a letter which has been received by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, who promises to introduce and support in the Senate legislation to establish the original District lines.

"This meeting is open to the public and it is hoped that all citizens in Arlington County interested in the movement will attend the meeting," Mr. Eacho said.

Special Lenten services tonight at St. George's Episcopal Church at Clarendon will be conducted by the Rev T. K. Nelson, of the Virginia Theological Seminary.

The Rev. Minor C. Miller, general secretary of the Virginia Council of Religious Education, of Bridgewater, Va., will address the pastors and Sunday school workers of Arlington and Fairfax Counties tonight at the Baptist Church at Falls Church at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Miller will present the plans for a State-wide enrollment Sunday school campaign and other matters of importance to church and Sunday school workers.

Plans for the program of the annual convention of the Virginia Council of Religious Education, which will be held at Richmond, May 14, 15 and 16, will also be presented by Mr. Miller.

Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, released a communication yesterday which his office has received from Dr. Ennion G. Williams, State health commissioner, calling the attention of the citizens of the need of careful inspection of all drinking water and sewerage disposal.

Students of Washington-Lee High School in the auditorium will present the comedy, "A Little Clodhopper," tonight. The play is being given under the direction of H. T. Stuckey and is for the benefit of the school athletic association.

Those taking part are: Gordon Walker, Lloyd Warrington, Sylvia Shipman, Dorothy Moreland and Doris Hopkins.

There will be a meeting of the joint committee on schools of the Parent-Teachers Associations of the county tonight in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at which time the proposed school bond issue for the enlargement of a number of the county school buildings will be considered. The meeting is called for 8 o'clock.

The Parent-Teachers Association of the James Monroe School held its weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the schoolhouse at 12:30. The luncheon was, in addition to the mothers, also served to the children. Those in charge of arrangements yesterday were: Mrs. L. C. Price, Mrs I. C. Richmond, Mrs. H. H. Snarr and Mrs. Wildman.

Boy Who Ran Away Returns After Two-Day Adventure

Lyon Park Student, 12, Sleeps in Auto and Freight Car and Earns $1 Before Picture in Post Leads to Recognition.

After a thrilling two-day adventure Robert Cohen, 12-year-old student of Gordon Junior High School in Georgetown, spent a peaceful night at his home in Lyon Park, Va.

Young Cohen was stricken with wanderlust Tuesday and left his home to make his own way in the world. He traveled a little more than 14 miles in two days. Tuesday night he crept into a parked automobile and fell asleep. He awoke at daybreak, and being a healthy youngster, the pangs of hunger gripped him.

He went to a golf club in Virginia and hired out as a caddy. He trudged with his heavy burden of golf clubs all day, earning $1, and then spent a major portion of the sum for food.

Thrilled at the fact that he had earned money, the boy that night decided to continue to absent himself from home. Wednesday night he went to a railroad yard, planning to "steal" a ride to Baltimore. He crept into a freight car and fell asleep, awakening to find that the car had not moved during the night.

In the meantime a wide search was being made. His picture appeared in The Post, and a story telling of his absence. Mrs Wiser, of Lanham, Md., had just placed the paper on the table after having read the account when she noticed a boy walking down the railroad tracks.

She called to the boy to come into her home, but being frightened, he started to race down the tracks. He was stopped by Mrs. Wiser's neighbor, Mrs. Charles Houser.

The boy admitted to the women that he had run away from home. He told them his adventure and later was taken home by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cohen.

DEVILBISS GETS LIFE IN WRECKMAN DEATH

West Virginia Jury Returns Verdict in Case After Overnight Tie-Up.

NEW TRIAL IS SOUGHT

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., April 10.—Jacob R. Devilbiss, 26-year-old miner, was found guilty of first-degree murder with a recommendation for mercy by a Morgan County Circuit Court jury here shortly before noon today. The verdict means life imprisonment if a motion for a new trial, to be argued Monday, is not allowed. Devilbiss was charged with slaying Theodore Wreckman, 26, of Crucible, Pa., near here early on February 23.

Devilbiss showed no emotion over the verdict. He was returned to the Berkeley County jail at Martinsburg, W. Va., immediately after the trial, until Monday. If the motion for a new trial fails he will be taken then to the State prison at Moundsville. The jury took the case at 4:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon after a three-day trial.

Jurors said there was never any division among them, the delay in reaching a verdict coming from a disagreement as to the degree of punishment. Devilbiss, the only defense witness, pleaded self-defense in the killing, declaring he felled Wreckman with a rock when Wreckman threatened him as they drove in Wreckman's car along a lone road near here.

Both had been drinking and he shot Wreckman when the latter recovering from the first blow came at him again, Devilbiss testified. He threw the body over an embankment and went back to Crucible where both had worked as miners and had been friends. He was arrested there some days later by State police.

The State, alleging deliberate murder, said Devilbiss' motive for the slaying was to get possession of Wreckman's automtobile. Devilbiss was a native of this county, living at Great Cacapon, but had been working at Crucible for some years. He and Wreckman were en route to visit Devilbiss' relatives when the killing took place.

A packed courthouse followed the trial throughout the three days. The day Devilbiss testified many of the spectators brought their lunches to the courtroom and sat through the day.

Defense counsel said it would submit affidavits in support of the new trial motion that at least two of the jurors had expressed opinions hostile to Devilbiss in advance of being called for jury duty. Devilbiss, asked what he thought of the verdict, volunteered that he had no idea what the jury would do but added, "I'm mighty glad its over."

RICHMOND GETS CUT IN REDISCOUNT RATE

Federal Reserve Bank to Go on 4 Per Cent Basis Starting Today.

ON ALL PAPER CLASSES

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond had reduced its rediscount rate on all classes of paper from 4½ per cent to 4 per cent, effective today.

The action of the Richmond Bank makes eight Federal Reserve banks now on the 4 per cent rate. Atlanta, St. Louis and Minneapolis banks maintain a 4½ per cent rate, while the New York bank has reduced its rate to 3½ per cent.

Richmond, Va., April 10 (A.P.).—Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond at the April meeting today lowered its rediscount rate on all classes of paper from 4½ to 4 per cent. The new rate is effective tomorrow.

The Federal Reserve Board gave the Richmond bank permission to reduce its rediscount rate and fall in step with reserve banks in several other cities, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, Kansas City, Dallas and San Francisco. A 4½ per cent rate is maintained by Atlanta, St. Louis and Minneapolis banks, while the New York bank's rate is only 3½ per cent.

The new rate of the Richmond bank is the lowest in the Fifth District, serving Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and the Carolinas, since March 1, 1928, Governor George J. Seay said.

The general market interest rates, business needs of the Fifth District and other factors bearing on prevailing conditions were taken into consideration by the Richmond bank directors in their decision to reduce the rate, Governor Seay said after the meeting.

The gold reserves of the Richmond bank are at a high ratio, due to liquidation of loans by other banks.

Directors will attend the annual meeting of the Stockholders Association of the Richmond Reserve Bank tomorrow. The session will be attended by bankers from five States.

Women at Convention Hit Digest's Rum Poll

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., April 10.—Of the 350 women delegates to the annual convention of the Baltimore Methodist Conference Women's Missionary Society, in session here, only 63 received ballots for the straw vote in the Literary Digest prohibition poll, it was stated in a resolution adopted by the conference today.

"We wish to go on record," says the resolution, "that this method of registering public opinion in regard to prohibition is incomplete and unreliable and we will not be misled by it. We will be guided by more reliable sources of information such as the church, press and dependable statements from other sources. This group of women representing a church constituency of 90,000 members states emphatically that we stand four square for prohibition and law enforcement as we always have done."

Lynchburg Charity Head Named.

Lynchburg, Va., April 10 (Special).—N. B. Handy has been elected president of the Associated Charities here, succeeding Mrs. H. C. McDowell, who resigned after serving twenty years.

MYSTERY SHROUDS INQUIRY IN BOMBING

Expert on Explosions Enters Seat Pleasant Case With Microscope.

WITNESSES KEEP SILENT

Surrounded with a thick air of mystery, the Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday began its investigation of the Seat Pleasant bombing case, in which three persons lost their lives last New Year's. Lawrence Leroy Brady, Washington automobile mechanic, is now held in jail in connection with the killings.

The first witness in the bombing case, called by the grand jury yesterday, was Prof. Robert W. Wood, explosions expert of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. Prof. Wood carried with him a package containing fragments of the bomb and a microscope.

Emerging from the jury room after the best part of an hour, Prof. Wood refused to divulge the nature of his testimony. He confirmed the fact, however, that he had carried the microscope with him so that the jurors could use it in examining parts of the bomb, but said that it had not been used.

Mrs. Annie Buckley, at whose home the bomb was left, evidently through an error, was the second witness.

Other witnesses were:

Leslie Hall, brother of the victims killed by the explosion; Stewart Carneal, who carried the package containing the bomb from the Buckley home to the home of John Hall; William Phelps, at whose home Herman Brady was visiting when he heard the news of the tragedy; Norris Hall, another brother of the victims, and Esther Jones, sister-in-law of Leroy Brady. rs. Jones was a surprise witness.

All of these witnesses on emerging from the grand jury room declined to talk, one witness saying that he had been told not to. Assistant Prosecutor Ryon, however, told reporters that he had made no request that witnesses keep silent. However, without exception, all witnesses did refuse.

Other witnesses called in the case and who probably will be heard today are:

Russell Jones, brother-in-law of Leroy Brady; members of the Brady family, including Herman Brady, who was widowed by the blast; his brother Emmett and his mother, Mrs. Ella Brady; Clarence Brady, uncle of Leroy, and Mrs. Leroy Brady, wife of the accused.

Two Baltimore detectives, Joseph H. Itzel and Charles J. Schalter, who worked on the case, are summoned for today, as is Detective John Fowler, of Washington, and Detective Raymond Kennedy, a private investigator retained to aid the State. Surviving members of the Hall family also are summoned. Frank Prince, of the Prince Georges County police, also will testify.

Herman Brady, whose bride was killed when she opened the package addressed to her, may refuse to testify against his brother, as he refused at the preliminary hearing, unless given a promise of immunity. This, so far, the State has refused to do.

Naomi Hall Brady, expectant mother, and two other members of the Hall family were killed in the New Year's Day tragedy. Herman Brady was eventually taken for questioning, and then his brother Leroy, a mechanic, was arrested and later accused of the murders. Herman Brady is at liberty on bond as a material witness. In the event of an indictment against Leroy Brady, the prosecution will move for an immediate trial.

In County Circuit Court yesterday, Walter Shelby, of Washington, was convicted of assault and battery on George N. Cox and sentenced to three months in jail.

Two civil cases were tried before a jury. Mrs. Helen M. Rector, daughter of Henry L. Morris, county delegate in the Legislature, failed to collect damages from Samuel A. Mensh, of Washington, as the result of an automobile accident.

A jury held that Royton T. Dodd had a year's lease with the privilege of renewal for four years, on his house at Hyattsville. A. Walker, proprietor, contended the lease ran only for one month.

The quarterly meeting of the Prince Georges County Medical Society will be held Saturday at 1 p. m., at the Terrapin Inn, College Park.

The Mellwood Woman's Club will hold a special meeting April 16, at the home of Mrs. Frank Scrivener.

Washington Pair Held in Rum Case

Two Escape Serious Injury to Crash During Wild Chsae.

Two alleged Washington bootleggers escaped serious injury early yesterday afternoon when their car crashed while racing through heavy traffic at about 75 miles an hour on Defense highway between Bowie and Vista. They were later apprehended by W. T. Booker, Maryland State policeman, who said he found six cases of liquor in the wrecked automobile.

The policeman took up the chase at the race grounds because he thought the car was stolen. The mad race ended when the fleeing car met a truck on a one-way bridge at Vista, sideswiped the truck, tore off the bridge railing, and crashed into a nearby house.

The men who gave the names of Frank A. Riccks and Benjamin A. Cannon, both of Allison street, near Fifth northwest, fled after the accident but were caught a few minutes later. They were later turned over to Prince Georges County police.

The truck driver, A. C. Calbague, of 1329 North Capitol street, also escaped injury.

Invalid Woman Rescued From Albemarle Blaze

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., April 10.—Loss of about $5,000, half of which was covered by insurance, was caused by two fires in the western section of Albermarle County at practically the same hour last night. In one blaze an invalid woman narrowly escaped death. The heaviest damage was caused at the home of S. H. Hildebrand, at Mochums River, by the explosion of a kerosene lamp. Mrs. Hildebrand, who has been confined to bed for years, was rescued by her son and a colored man shortly before the walls crumpled.

At approximately the same time the Hildberand home was destroyed. Adam K. Wyant, Whitehall merchant, lost a cow and an automobile when his stable and garage went up in flames started by a match dropped by his 5-year-old son.

EDITORS' ATTORNEYS SET DEFENSE PLANS

Montgomery Judge Grants Lawyers Time to Study Indictment Data.

LIBEL COUNTS CHARGED

After defense lawyers for the editors of the Montgomery Independent, indicted for libel, had pleaded that they would requir esome time to prepare their defense, Judge Robert B. Peter in Rockville Circuit Court yesterday granted them time to work out their plans. The judge said that other criminal cases will consume the time of the court until April 21, but asked that the lawyers try to have their plans in hand by next Tuesday in order that a definite date for the hearings could be set.

F. Barnard Welch, attorney for W. J. Casey, present editor of the paper, and Harrison B. Frenchi, former editor, and Harold C. Smith, attorney for Morris A. Beale, former editor and publisher of the paper, told the court that they expect to have to do considerable studying over the indictments returned by the county grand jury charging the editors with libel in connection with charges printed in the paper that county officials had mishandled county affairs. Attorney Welch also probably will represent W. W. Liggett, former editor, who is in the West and has not been served with the bench warrant. Beale also has not been served, his attorney contending that he is too ill to appear in court. Attorney Smith said that Beale will voluntarily surrender himself as soon as he is able to stand the trip to Rockville. Beale recently underwent an operation at a Washington hospital.

owners and the three editors have been in charge of the paper at various times since that time. The Independent is operated as the organ of the anti-organization faction of Democrats and is opposing E. Brooks Lee, county political leader, and the Lee organization.

Both attorneys intimated that they will attack the indictments on grounds similar to those set forth in the petition of Attorney Welch when the county investigation first was launched by the grand jury at the instance of the county commissioners and E. Brooke Lee. Mr. Welch contended at that time that the grand jury was prejudiced, in that one of its members is related to a county commissioner and that one or more members draw salaries from the county.

According to E. Barrett Prettyman, lawyer and president of the Montgomery County Publishing Co., publishers of the Independent, attempts will be made to quash three indictments, leaving one to be tried in open court. Mr. Prettyman declared that the board of directors and members of the antiorganization group welcome the opportunity to air their charges in the open before a jury. No change of venue will be asked, he said, but a jury trial will be asked.

Dates of graduation exercises in the county high schools were announced yesterday by Superintendent of Schools Edwin W. Broome together with the names of the members of the board of education assigned to attend the various exercises.

The dates and the members assigned are as follows: Takoma-Silver Spring, June 10, William H. McCeney; Gaithersburg, June 10, Thomas C. Darby; Rockville, June 11, Dr. George L. Edmonds; Fairland, June 11, Mr. McCeney; Damascus, June 12, Mrs Julian Waters; Dickerson, June 12, Mr. Darby; Sherwood, June 12, Dr. Edmonds; Bethesda-Chevy Chase, June 12, Mrs. Walter Perry; Poolesville, June 13, Mrs. Waters.

The following schools were awarded banners for the best attendance in their class, according to an announcement yesterday by Superintendent Broome: Damascus High School, 97.2 per cent; Germantown ninth grade, Junior High School, 97.8 per cent; Takoma-Silver Spring Junior High Schools, seventh and eighth grades, 95.3 per cent; Glenmont Graded School, 94.5 per cent; Garrett Park two-teacher school, 96 per cent, and Brighton one-teacher school, 97.3 per cent. The county average attendance was elementary schools, 90.6 per cent, and high schools, 93.9 per cent.

County schools will be given a holiday May 30.

FIVE REMAIN IN RACE FOR COUNCIL POSTS

Three City Vacancies to Be Filled by Election in Alexandria.

TWO ARE INDEPENDENTS

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Time limit for filing declarations of candidates for city council with the clerk of corporation court expired at midnight last night, with five candidates in the field. These are Edmund F. Ticer, incumbent; Arthur Herbert, banker, and Clyde C. Lamond, retired president of a tile manufacturing concern, regular Democratic nominees elected at the primary of April 1, and O. P. Angelo, railroad engineer, and L. B. Alexander, roofing contractor.

There are three vacancies to be filled, caused by expiration of the terms of Councilmen Ticer, Robert S. Jones and J. E. W. Timberman. The vacancy caused by the recent resignation of Mayor William Albert Smoot was filled by the council, through the election of Carroll Pierce.

The general election for councilmen will be held June 10, and there is little indication so far that the campaign will be spirited. The vote in the recent primary was the smallest cast here in recent years, and Democratic nomination is usually conceded as equivalent to
